A School of Solid Glass,

NEWS more important than bootleg crime or oil reserve stealing is this: Berlin will build a great public school made almost entirely of glass. Held up by a frame of steel and concrete, the school walls will be of thick plate glass, admitting sunlight everywhere.

Later may come schools of the new quartz glass that admits health giving actinic rays.

THE ages of stone, bronze and iron may be followed by the age of glass, which will mark man's final exit from the damp, dark cave to all-day sunlight. Houses of glass that stones will not break, and highways of glass, one above the other, in great cities, will be interesting steps in man's progress.

BERLIN'S public school of plate glass, to make the day beautiful for teachers and children, will be set in a beautiful park, after the fashion of California, where the most beautiful buildings are great public schools, each in its park grounds.

Our richest city, by the way, allows children to study in dark, old, school buildings, some of them fire traps. It is not that New York City could not afford public schools finer than those of California or Berlin. The people of New York entrust their public schools to those that apparently do consider our public school system either not important, or not desirable.

GERMANY'S new penal code, as important as the Berlin public school of plate glass, plans to protect society from criminals, instead of merely punishing crime, in a hard and fast way, as though for revenge.

And, most gratifying, gossips will be included among the criminal classes. Gossip, in the world's long history has done more real harm than murder. Gossip breaks hearts and condemns them to endless suffering. That is worse than killing.

THE City of Syracuse spends on motoring seventeen cents out of every dollar of income—and old-fashioned finance, wagging its head, says "extravagance." Buying new automobiles takes ten cents and a quarter, gasoline three and a half cents, accessories three cents. And that's the best investment of 17 cents on the dollar that Syracuse could make.

IF a hoptoad could buy wings for 17 cents on his dollar, and fly, instead of painfully hopping in the dust, he'd be a fool not to spend the 17 cents. Automobiling is flying. Get a car if you have not got one, or a better car, if you can afford it.

THE New York Times dwells on the financial achievements of A. P. Giannini, head of the Bank of Italy and allied corporations, with five hundred millions in capital, and shares with a market value exceeding a billion dollars.

Mr. Giannini, says the Times, gained his prestige in California in the San Francisco fire. While the fire was burning, he hauled the cash from the vaults of his burning bank, down the peninsula, where he buried it in his garden. Then he returned to San Francisco, with the fire still smouldering, bringing his cash back with him, put out a Bank of Italy sign, on his brother's house and began lending money to clients apparently ruined by the fire. He knew that a mere fire cannot destroy the responsibility of a real man.

THE Times, comparing Giannini in finance with the great Venetian, Marco Polo, in exploration, says Eastern financiers returning from California tell with amazement of Giannini's achievements, his purchase of more than 160 banks in California, of other banks in New York City and of gigantic investments totaling hundreds of millions in Standard Oil, National City Bank, New York Central, Pennsylvania Railroad, and especially United States government bonds.

THE Times seems surprised that all this should be done by "the son of an Italian immigrant, born in California's Santa Clara Valley."

The Times might remember that our first immigrant, Columbus, was also Italian, and it might help to fight the foolish immigration law that now keeps out such men as Giannini's father.

Two million more good Italian workers in California and two other millions in Florida, would add billions to the wealth of those states.

THE Vancouver Sun tells you that one hundred ships are chartered to carry 20,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat from Vancouver to Britain and the Continent in the next three months. All these ships make many cruisers necessary for Britain. We too should build fast cruisers, for we may some day wake up, and have a commercial navy.

Meanwhile, our Panama Canal, through which all the 100 ships of grain will pass, is offered to our Canadian and British brothers with no extra charge for the fact that our money built it. They pay just what our own few ships pay. Not every nation would do that.

Salient Features in Mellon Tax Cut Plan

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—(INS.)—The new "Mellon plan" provides for:

(1)—Reduction of 1½ per cent in the 13½ per cent corporation tax, with estimated revenue loss of $135,000,000 annually.

(2)—Partnership basis of taxation for corporations of under $25,000 income and with 10 or less stockholders, with probable $35,000,000 revenue loss.

(3)—Readjustment of surtax rates, especially benefitting taxpayers with incomes ranging from $18,000 to $70,000. This means a $50,000,000 revenue loss.

(4)—Repeal of the Federal estate tax.

(5)—The exemption of income derived from American bankers acceptances held by foreign central banks of issue.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—I felt like Cinderella.

I had hoped for happy days in Paris, but in my fondest dreams I never realized it would all be so marvelous.

Here I am in a luxurious, royal suite in the Hotel Lotti amidst the languorous odor of hundreds of roses and orchids sent me by both friends and strangers.

I'm writing this as if I were lost in a strange dream. Everyone—everything has been so perfectly wonderful.

I feel much rested, but the cold which I got when I plunged into the sea with the American Girl still stays with me. I'm much thinner, too. Perhaps I'll have to try American breakfasts again.

I like French breakfast of hot chocolate and rolls, although I did ask for some toast and fresh fruit this morning, which is not typically French. At any rate, I am having real, southern fried chicken for lunch.

I am resting easily today, thinking mostly of yesterday's events.

For the first time since I left New York so many days ago, I have been able to change my golf knickers and sport sweater for a real dress. Mrs. Barton K. Young, wife of the military attache of the American embassy, came to my rescue and completely outfitted me from her wardrobe.

She brought me a lovely yet simple crepe frock, a new shade of green with a dark green felt hat to match, a handsome Kolinsky coat, beige stockings and black suede pumps.

MELLON TAX PLAN MADE PUBLIC

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon proposed a tax cut not to exceed $227,000,000 when he appeared before the House Ways and Means Committee today to present the administration's views on the 1928 revenue act.

Mellon opposed repeal of the tobacco tax, which last year netted the government $376,170,000; the 3 per cent passenger automobile tax yielding $66,000,000 in 1927 and the 10 per cent admission tax on amusement tickets costing over 75 cents.

WOULD RETAIN NORMAL TAX

He favored retention of the normal tax of 1½, 3 and 5 per cent on incomes up to $10,000; exemptions, minimum surtax of 1 per cent on incomes from $10,000 to $14,000, and the maximum surtax of 20 per cent on incomes of over $1,000,000.

Under the 1926 law incomes from $14,000 to $24,000 the rate increases 1 per cent for every additional $2,000 of income and in the $24,000-$64,000 bracket the grading is by steps of $4,000.

"By adjusting the rate so that it will rise uniformly, increasing 1 per cent for each additional $4,000 on incomes from $10,000 to $70,000, some reductions will be granted to all surtax-payers but more particularly those whose incomes fall in the intermediate brackets," Mellon told the committee. "Ten per cent will be reached at $46,000, 15 per cent at $66,000, 18 per cent at $80,000 and 19 per cent at $90,000."

Mellon pointed out that in the last law there had been a drastic slash of from 40 to 20 per cent in the maximum surtax rates and an important reduction in the normal rates, with a somewhat greater benefit to the small and large taxpayers, than those whose incomes ranged from $18,000 to $70,000.

If Mellon's recommendations are written into law, or, if as expected in some quarters, Congress decides to exceed his tax-cutting program, it will mean that the American tax bill has been reduced by more than $2,000,000,000 since the war. In this period the public debt has been reduced $8,000,000,000, and despite lower

2 BUTCHERS DYING AFTER DUEL IN ICE BOX

Two rival McKeesport butchers were dying in the McKeesport Hospital today. One stabbed the other with a butcher knife and then plunged a knife into his own breast during a business quarrel, police say.

The men are Joseph Gross, 53, of 324 Strawberry street, who conducts a shop in Locust street, and Jacob Goodman, 38, of 124 Seventh street, whose shop is in Fifth avenue.

The men met in a cooler in the Cudahy Packing Company plant in Ringold street this morning. A quarrel resulted and a few minutes later Gross rushed out of the cooler, leaving Goodman stretched on the floor with deep stab wounds in his stomach and abdomen. Goodman was rushed to the hospital and police began a search for Gross.

He was found almost an hour later unconscious on the roof of the packing company plant with a gaping knife wound about his heart.

Gross, after stabbing Goodman, police say, apparently had gone from the packing company plant into his own shop, adjoining, and after obtaining one of his own knives wandered back through the building and to the roof of the plant. The knife with which police say he stabbed himself was found by his side.

The men had been bitter rivals and police believe that a business quarrel may have been the cause of the quarrel which preceded the stabbing. Friends of Gross say that he had been in poor health for two years and had been worrying over his business.

Snow, Cold Hit West

DENVER, Col., Oct. 31.—(AP.)—Rain and snow moved southward on both sides of the continental divide today to break up several weeks of Indian summer.

NEW MOVIE VENTURE BLAMED

Harry K. Thaw, now a full-fledged moving picture producer, came back to Pittsburgh today as a defendant in a $100 damage suit filed against him in County Court.

Sued by one Walter Hymans, proprietor of a newspaper clipping service in New York, Thaw spent several hours on the stand in Judge J. Clyde Miller's court room telling how Hymans had failed to collect more than one-thirtieth of the clippings to which Thaw was entitled. Consequently, Harry said he refused to pay the second half of a $200 contract.

Thaw was in high spirits when interviewed about his entrance into the picture business and about the crops on his farm at Winchester, Va. Crops, he said, were fine except for corn, of which there wasn't quite enough to feed the hogs.

"We've already made three pictures, "Thaw said, "and will make more."

Burglar, Fleeing, Shot

A Negro burglar is believed to have been wounded when he was fired upon as he fled, following an attempt to break into the home of A. J. Ganteor, at 3641 Liberty avenue, early this morning.

Ganteor was awakened as the burglar attempted to force the front door. As Ganteor appeared the burglar ran. A passing motorist saw him flee, and emptied a revolver at him.

Ganteor told police that the Negro stumbled after one of the shots, and he believed he had been wounded. A search of the vicinity by police failed to reveal a trace of the suspect and hospitals were asked to be on the lookout for him if he applies for medical attention.

YEGGS CRACK SAFE ON CITY DUMP; GET $400

STEUBENVILLE, O., Oct. 31.—Thieves carried away a small safe from the Black Bear Inn, near here, during the night, blasted it open, took $400 and left the safe in the city dump. It was found by police this morning.

HOUSE FIRED IN MINE WAR

A Republic Iron and Steel Company mine house, the old Marshall home at Russellton No. 2, was burned to the ground yesterday, and Mike Mehalick, his wife and children narrowly escaped death or serious injury. This is the second houseburning at Russellton in a week, another company house having been burned the morning of October 23. Mine officials say that the fires have been of incendiary origin.

The miners who have occupied the houses since the strike was called last April had been ordered to vacate by today, and more than 200 families are moving out, many of them going to barracks erected by the United Mine Workers of America on property leased from farmers in the district.

The Republic Company had instituted legal proceedings against the miners for back rent as its first move to have the houses vacated, but a friend of the union bought up the miners' furniture at public sale and restored it to them.

Following this the company served notices to vacate. Immediately union officials started to erect barracks to care for those who would be homeless and work has been under way at Russellton No. 1 and Russellton No. 2 for several weeks.

Many of the families have been cared for, but it is said many more will lack a place to go tonight. The Union Hall at Russellton is being utilized as a barracks and a place to store furniture.

CLARKSBURG BOMBING

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 31.—While five children were playing within, three dynamite bombs were set off under the home of John Post, a coal miner, Montpelier addition, last night, partly wrecking the structure. The children were unharmed. An automobile parked outside was blown to bits.

A detachment of state police was brought here today to aid police and deputy sheriffs in a hunt for the perpetrators.

HIGHWAY PATROLMAN INJURED BY AUTOIST

FRANKLIN, Pa., Oct. 31.—Corp. C. H. Williams, state highway motor patrolman, is recovering here today from injuries suffered Sunday when his motorcycle was sideswiped by an automobile driven by C. M. Kirkwood, of Oil City, in the Reno road. Kirkwood was arrested in Oil City for failing to stop and render aid.

LUNGS WIN CHURCH TILT

UNIONTOWN, Oct. 31.—Twenty singers, a picked contingent from the church choir, yesterday won for the Rev. Andrew B. Lemke a striking—and vocal—triumph in his fight against an order of the Fayette County Christian Church Board that he quit his pulpit because he has publicly announced his belief in "sprinkling" as a means of baptism. The board holds only immersion can prepare the soul for future trials.

Three members of the church board appeared in the Rev. Lemke's Tower Hill church yesterday to tell members of the congregation he could no longer officially address them and to hold services of their own in his stead.

Each time one of the immersionist sponsors rose to speak the 20 singers, at a wave of Rev. Lemke's hand, broke into sacred—and voluminous—song.

It was a battle of voices, and the odds of 21 to 3 were too much for the immersionist brethren.

Time after time they would interrupt the Rev. Mr. Lemke only to be promptly "sung down" as the choir burst into close and copious harmony.

EXPECT KING THIS WEEK

The work of the Citizens League will be pushed despite the dropping from sight of William L. King, its paid executive secretary, the Rev. Dr. J. Alvin Orr, chairman of the board of directors, declared last night as he announced a meeting of the executive committee for this afternoon. Plans for the work of the coming months will be made at the meeting which will be held in the Downtown Y. M. C. A., Dr. Orr stated.

That King and his wife were reunited and left San Francisco for an unknown destination last Tuesday, was reported today when Mrs. C. A. Hearne, Oskaloosa, Ia., Mrs. King's sister, disclosed the contents of a letter from the missing league director's wife. The letter was written Tuesday and declared that they were "leaving immediately." Mrs. King promised to write her sister from their next stopping place, Mrs. Hearne is quoted as saying.

Optimistic members of the league predict that King will return here this week in time to assist in the preparation of the league cases scheduled to go before the November grand jury. Others say they do not expect him and believe his absence will not seriously hamper the league's prosecutions.

BANK QUIZ BLOCKED IN AUDIT

Controller C. C. McGovern, resuming today his audit of county business, was decisively blocked in his efforts to establish the financial connection between the county and Joseph R. Gaussa, superintendent of county road maintenance, when counsel for Gaussa, Attorney Thomas M. Brenner, presented a letter in which Gaussa warned the Potter Title & Trust Company that he would sue for libel and damages if his private account were revealed to McGovern.

McGovern tried to learn why county checks amounting to $12,500 has been indorsed by Gaussa in a period of 15 months and what the checks represented, and Attorney Howard Zacharias, counsel for the Potter Title and Trust Company, suggested that if the Controller was within his rights in asking a report on Gaussa's accounts the court would grant him an order to that effect. McGovenr indicated he would seek such an order, when he declared a three-hour recess "to look up the law."

Controller McGovern following the announcement that the probe would be continued late this afternoon, charged that $1,800,000 had been illegally paid out to county employes and others not employed by the county. "I am making an effort to find out why the taxpayers' money to the amount of $1,800,000 was taken from the county treasury and what the money was used for," the Controller said.

When asked if he would seek court aid in compelling the bank to produce records of Gaussa's account, Controller McGovern said that he had no intention of going into court. "I am not going into court unless they take me," he said.

SONGS WIN FOR PASTOR

Jones, the Rev. R. G. Manley and the Rev. A. F. Hanes—attempted to announce his ouster to the congregation.

Once the Immersionist trio started for the pulpit.

Only once.

The singing choir, a 240-pound ex-football basso in the van, filed in front of the sprinkling parson without losing a single note in the second stanza of "Jesus Wants Me for a Sunbeam," the fourth number of their musical defense.

At the conclusion of the sermon the choir struck up "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," and the congregation left the church to the board representatives and a scarce dozen of their followers.

An agreement in the form of a temporary truce in the battle which has been raging for a week had been arranged for yesterday's services.

The board representatives were to occupy the Tower Hill pulpit in the morning and Dr. Lemke in the afternoon.

When the Revs. Jones, Manley and Hanes arrived yesterday morning, however, they found the Rev. Lemke already installed in the pulpit and his singing bodyguard all set for action.

Unable to get the Tower Hill congregation to support their edict, the church board is planning to ask the Hillman Coal and Coke Company, which owns the church building, to restrain the Rev. Lemke from preaching there in the future.

DITHRICH ASSAILS M'GOVERN MOTIVES

County Solicitor W. Heber Dithrich, speaking today at the Republican headquarters, declared that he had advised the county commissioners that they had no authority to grant Controller C. C. McGovern's request for an outside audit of their books, and that McGovern had failed to appeal to the courts to reverse that opinion. "Does that indicate good faith on his part or is it not additional evidence that the move was merely a gesture designed for political effect?" asked Dithrich.

MARRIAGE OR DEATH!

ETHEL HAMILTON

Miss Hamilton, 22, told police a former admirer threatened to kill her unless she married him when he broke into her apartment at 400 Collins avenue. "He beat me and robbed me of $27, all the money I had to my name," she declared.

FARMER OPENS HIS LAND TO HUNTERS

FRANKLIN, Pa., Oct. 31.—"Come and hunt all you want; you are welcome." This is the word John Eckles, of Cherrytree road, has passed around. All his neighbors have posted their farms, but Eckles lost so much produce, due to rabbits, that he wants the bunnies shot.

PARTY FACTIONS SLING MORE VERBAL MUD

The charge of Controller C. C. McGovern that "no one seems to remember that the Allegheny county sinking fund commission has transacted any business within the last three years," is untrue, according to the first statement issued today by the taxpayers' committee of Allegheny county. The statement declares that the minute book of the committee kept in the Controller's own office records 19 meetings held in 1926-27, the minutes of three being signed by the Controller himself and 16 others by the deputy controller.

The work of the committee was branded as another attack upon him and his "exposure of rottenness" in the county government by McGovern in a statement issued yesterday. He charged that three of the 17 members of the committee, R. V. Bingay, Mrs. Edith Oliver Rea and J. D. Callery, had contributed to the Republican organization campaign fund during the primary and that two others, Joseph Stadtfeld and Henry O. Evans, are speaking for the Republican candidates.

This attack was answered this morning by Evans, who issued a statement that members of the taxpayers' committee, at the primary, had contributed to independent as well as organization candidates and added, "The voters, after they have read and digested the facts set forth in the succeeding advertisements, will be able to and will form their own conclusions as to the value and impartiarity of the investigation."

MELLON TAX PLAN

taxes governmental incomes gradually have increased.

Mellon's statement indicated that American corporations are most entitled to relief from taxation. He pointed out that indirectly such a reduction would benefit 3,000,000 stockholders in businesses of the country.

WOULD AID CORPORATIONS

"Corporations last received relief from taxation in the revenue act of 1921, which repealed the excess profits tax, although increasing the income tax rate," Mellon said.

"Since that time, while other classes of taxpayers have been benefited by sharp reduction of war-time rates, corporations have continued to bear a heavy burden.

"Business conducted under the corporate form is today overtaxed as compared with individual business enterprises and partnerships, a condition which spells a hardship to the small corporation. Corporations not only are large contributors to the federal treasury, but they pay their full share of cost of local and state government."

CITES BURDENS

For every dollar of the $3,934,800,000 cash dividends of corporations in 1924, they paid 54 per cent in taxes, according to Mellon. Including both federal and state taxes the percentage of tax to net income ranges from 26.25 in Michigan to 41.04 in Connecticut, 47.72 in Minnesota and 49.78 in Massachusetts.

"There are only 2,500,000 individuals who return taxable income and the average rate of tax on their income has been reduced to 4.20 per cent, as compared with 3,000,000 stockholders who are virtually taxed on a part of their income at the rate of 13½ per cent," Mellon said. "There are less than 5,000 individuals in the United States whose average tax equals 13½ per cent of their taxable income."

One-third of the corporation tax is paid by organizations with net incomes over $250,000. Mellon said that 92 per cent of the corporations reporting net incomes paid higher taxes under the corporate form of organization than had they been partnerships.

Holding that there is a discrimination against those corporations with $25,000 or less income and that this class is entitled to additional relief, he proposed that they be permitted to file income tax returns on a partnership basis.

DEFENDS AUTO STAND

Opposition to repeal of the excise tax on the sale of automobiles was expressed because of Mellon's feeling that whereas the federal government will appropriate for good roads a total of $75,000,000 in 1929, the automobilists, chief users of the roads, should bear a share of the burden. He pointed out that the automobile is a chief competitor of the railroads, heavy taxpayers, that the 1926 law reduced the passenger motor car tax, repealed the tax on trucks and accessories and that the present rate is low.

"Narrowing of the tax base in days of prosperity inevitably means that when the time for increased tax burdens arrives those taxpayers who are unfortunate enough to remain on the rolls are compelled to pay more than their just share," Mellon said. "It should never be forgotten that in taxation the ideal to be aimed at is a broad base and low rates."

Mellon showed that the tobacco tax affects a greater number of citizens than does any other class of assessment. He remarked that "it is difficult to imagine a more ideal tax than one on $40 ringside seats at the recent Tunney-Dempsey fight."

Income Tax Cut Proposed by Mellon

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31—(INS.)—Under the new Mellon tax plan presented to the House Ways and Means Committee today, the man with an income of over $100,000 will get a reduction of $1,510 on annual tax. A million dollar income pays tax of $239,687.25 under the Mellon plan.

Comparative reductions are:

Income	Present Law Tax	Law Proposed
$ 18,000	$ 377.25	$ 387.25
26,000	1,417.25	1,227.25
30,000	1,917.25	1,627.25
40,000	4,147.25	3,497.25
50,000	5,917.25	4,227.25
60,000	6,917.25	5,917.25
70,000	9,097.25	7,927.25
90,000	13,797.25	12,197.25
100,000	16,197.25	14,687.25
200,000	41,197.25	39,687.25
500,000	116,197.25	114,687.25
1,000,000	241,197.25	239,687.25

LIKES PRIZE-FIGHT TAX

"Surely no one will contend that the men and women who were willing to pay $40 for a seat for 30 minutes of boxing could not well afford to contribute $3.84 to the Government," Mellon remarked. "The revenue yield of that particular fight was $242,065."

Under the present law a tax of 13½ per cent is levied upon the discount received by any foreign corporation on American bankers acceptances. Mellon held that this should be repealed. He pointed out that resulting from this clause is a tendency to withdraw funds from this market for investment abroad. The law places a serious handicap on the free development of America's dollar acceptance market, tending to keep foreign funds out of this market and to force American merchants to finance their transactions abroad, rather than through dollar acceptance.

Mellon prefaced his remarks by an exhaustive analysis of governmental finances, present and prospective, the high spots of which were:

1—Current revenue in 1929, $3,595,000,000, a reduction of $12,000,000 from 1928.

2—Total income, including back taxes, and special receipts for 1929, $3,808,000,000; reduction of $288,000,000.

3—Surplus 1928 $455,000,000; 1929, $274,000,000.

4—Expenditures 1928, $3,621,000,000; 1929, $3,534,000,000.

Estimates do not include any expenditure that may be incurred by reason of new legislation.

BODY OF BABE FOUND IN CONNELLSVILLE CREEK

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 31.—The body of a newly born baby boy was fished out of Whites Run near here today by Franklin Leichliter, 9. Morgue officials said the body must have been placed in the creek during the night.

Gideons to Put Bibles In Theaters for Chorines

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—(AP.)—The Gideons, who have placed Bibles in almost every hotel room in the country, today extended their efforts to the theater.

Chorus girls and principals appearing in Chicago productions will be the first to find Bibles on their dressing room tables. The Bibles were to be placed on the makeup tables by tonight. Later the books are to be placed in theaters throughout the country.

Ideal Hallowe'en Weather Is Promised

With an ideal temperature, a moon just reaching the bewitching first quarter and fair weather predicted by the weather man, all signs point to a perfect stage for the observance tonight of the annual witch and goblin Hallowe'en convention.

Except for the usual police prohibitions forbidding ticklers, confetti and talcum powder, the witches, goblins and all others so disposed may frolic and disport themselves almost without restraint until midnight.

Scores of community Hallowe'en celebrations, including parades, have been arranged and the usual unofficial parades with Fifth avenue roped off for several hours will be held downtown. Elliott and West End will hold a joint parade, Bellevue will hold its usual extensive celebration and Manchester will celebrate with a parade on Metropolitan street.

DRY AGENTS GO ON TRIAL IN BRIBE CASE

A special two weeks' term of Federal Court for criminal cases was opened this morning, Walter S. Henshell and Ambro Meheca, prohibition agents, charged with extortion, being the first to be tried. It is charged they "shook down" a North Side saloon keeper.

Robert S. Wittmer, proprietor Riverside Pharmacy, 2319 West Carson street, pleaded guilty to selling and possessing moonshine and cut liquor and was fined $1,000. His clerk, Alexander Goodman, was fined $100.

Tony Miller, Hays, pleaded guilty to operating a still and was fined $100. Three women, Adelaide Grace, Mattie Rielly and Sarah McTavish, all of Gallitzin, pleaded guilty to selling liquor and each was fined $100.

George Muehlbauer, Pittsburgh, and H. Norman Gaul, Bellevue, were fined $100 and $125, respectively, on pleas of guilty to possessing liquor.

NEGLEY SPEECH OFFENDS REES

William T. Rees, an employe in the office of Controller C. C. McGovern, has severed relations with Attorney W. G. Negley because of the latter's speech for the Republican candidates for county commissioners, the former said in an open letter yesterday. Rees, declaring "a friendship existing since school days" completely broken, accused Negley of garbling facts he secured through their acquaintance.

"No."

"Are you going to answer it?"

"Why should I? This man Thompson is always starting commissions—commissions to improve rivers, associations to bring about better air communication between cities, societies to put better landing lights on airports. He must be a candidate for President or something."

CITY PLANS ENGINE HOUSE IMPROVEMENTS

Several ordinances authorizing the letting of contracts for the improvement of fire engine houses appeared today in Council. One provided for the razing of the present building at Walter street and Proctor way housing No. 21 and the erection of a new structure. Others provided for improvements and alterations at No. 48, Chartiers avenue and Citadel street; No. 55 on Orchlee street, North Side, and Nos. 18, 22 and 23 on Eighth street, near Penn avenue.

EDGAR KAUFMANN HEADS HOUSING COMMISSION

Edgar J. Kaufmann was chosen chairman, and Harrison Nesbit, vice chairman, of the City Development and Housing Commission at an organization meeting held today in the office of Mayor Kline. A secretary will be named within a few days and an office established in the City-County Building. The other members of the commission are Robert McKalip, G. Edward Painter and George P. Rhodes.

OIL LEASE BRIBE IS CHARGED

By GEORGE E. DURNO,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The signature of Harry F. Sinclair on an oil contract that produced profits, part of which found their way into the hands of former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall, was shown to the oil conspiracy trial jury today. The government is contending the money Fall got was a bribe from Sinclair for the purpose of securing a lease on the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve.

The contract in question was between the Continental Trading Company of Canada and the late Col. A. E. Humphreys, of Texas, providing for the purchase by the Continental of 33,000,000 barrels of oil at $1.50 per barrel.

Sinclair's name appeared on the contract as a guarantor in behalf of the Continental.

The government is contending that Sinclair was the moving spirit of the Continent, for the concern was organized only for the Huphreys' deal and has never since functioned.

Former Senator Charles S. Thomas, of Colorado, attorney for Humphreys, identified the contract. He explained that Sinclair was present when it was drafted and that he had insisted on Sinclair's signature because he had never heard of the Continental Trading Company and didn't want to sign a $50,000,000 contract with an unknown concern.

Cross-examining Thomas, Martin W. Littleton, Sinclair attorney, sought to show that H. M. Blackmer, formerly with the Midwest Refining Company, was the dominant figure in the Continental. Blackmer is in Paris and had refused to obey a subpena to appear in this trial.

Littleton undertook to convince the jury that Sinclair was present as an agent for his own crude oil purchasing company, desirous of purchasing the Humphreys oil from the Continental.

H. L. Phillips, president of the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company, then took the stand and produced a contract under which that concern bought the oil from the Continental at $1.75 per barrel.

This was a profit to the Continental of 25 cents a barrel—$8,000,000 in all. Sinclair had guaranteed the Continental contract which made possible the taking of this profit from his own company.

Weather Conditions.

High pressure covers the Atlantic coast this morning, highest pressure 30.40 inches at Philadelphia, and at Eastport, its influence extending westward to the Mississippi River, over the Ohio Valley and the Gulf states, but only to the lake region in the North. A low is centered north of Lake Superior, and a string of lows extends from Saskatchewan southwestward over the Northern Plains states and the Central Rocky Mountain states to California. The low pressure areas are producing considerable cloudiness and scattered light rains over the entire West.

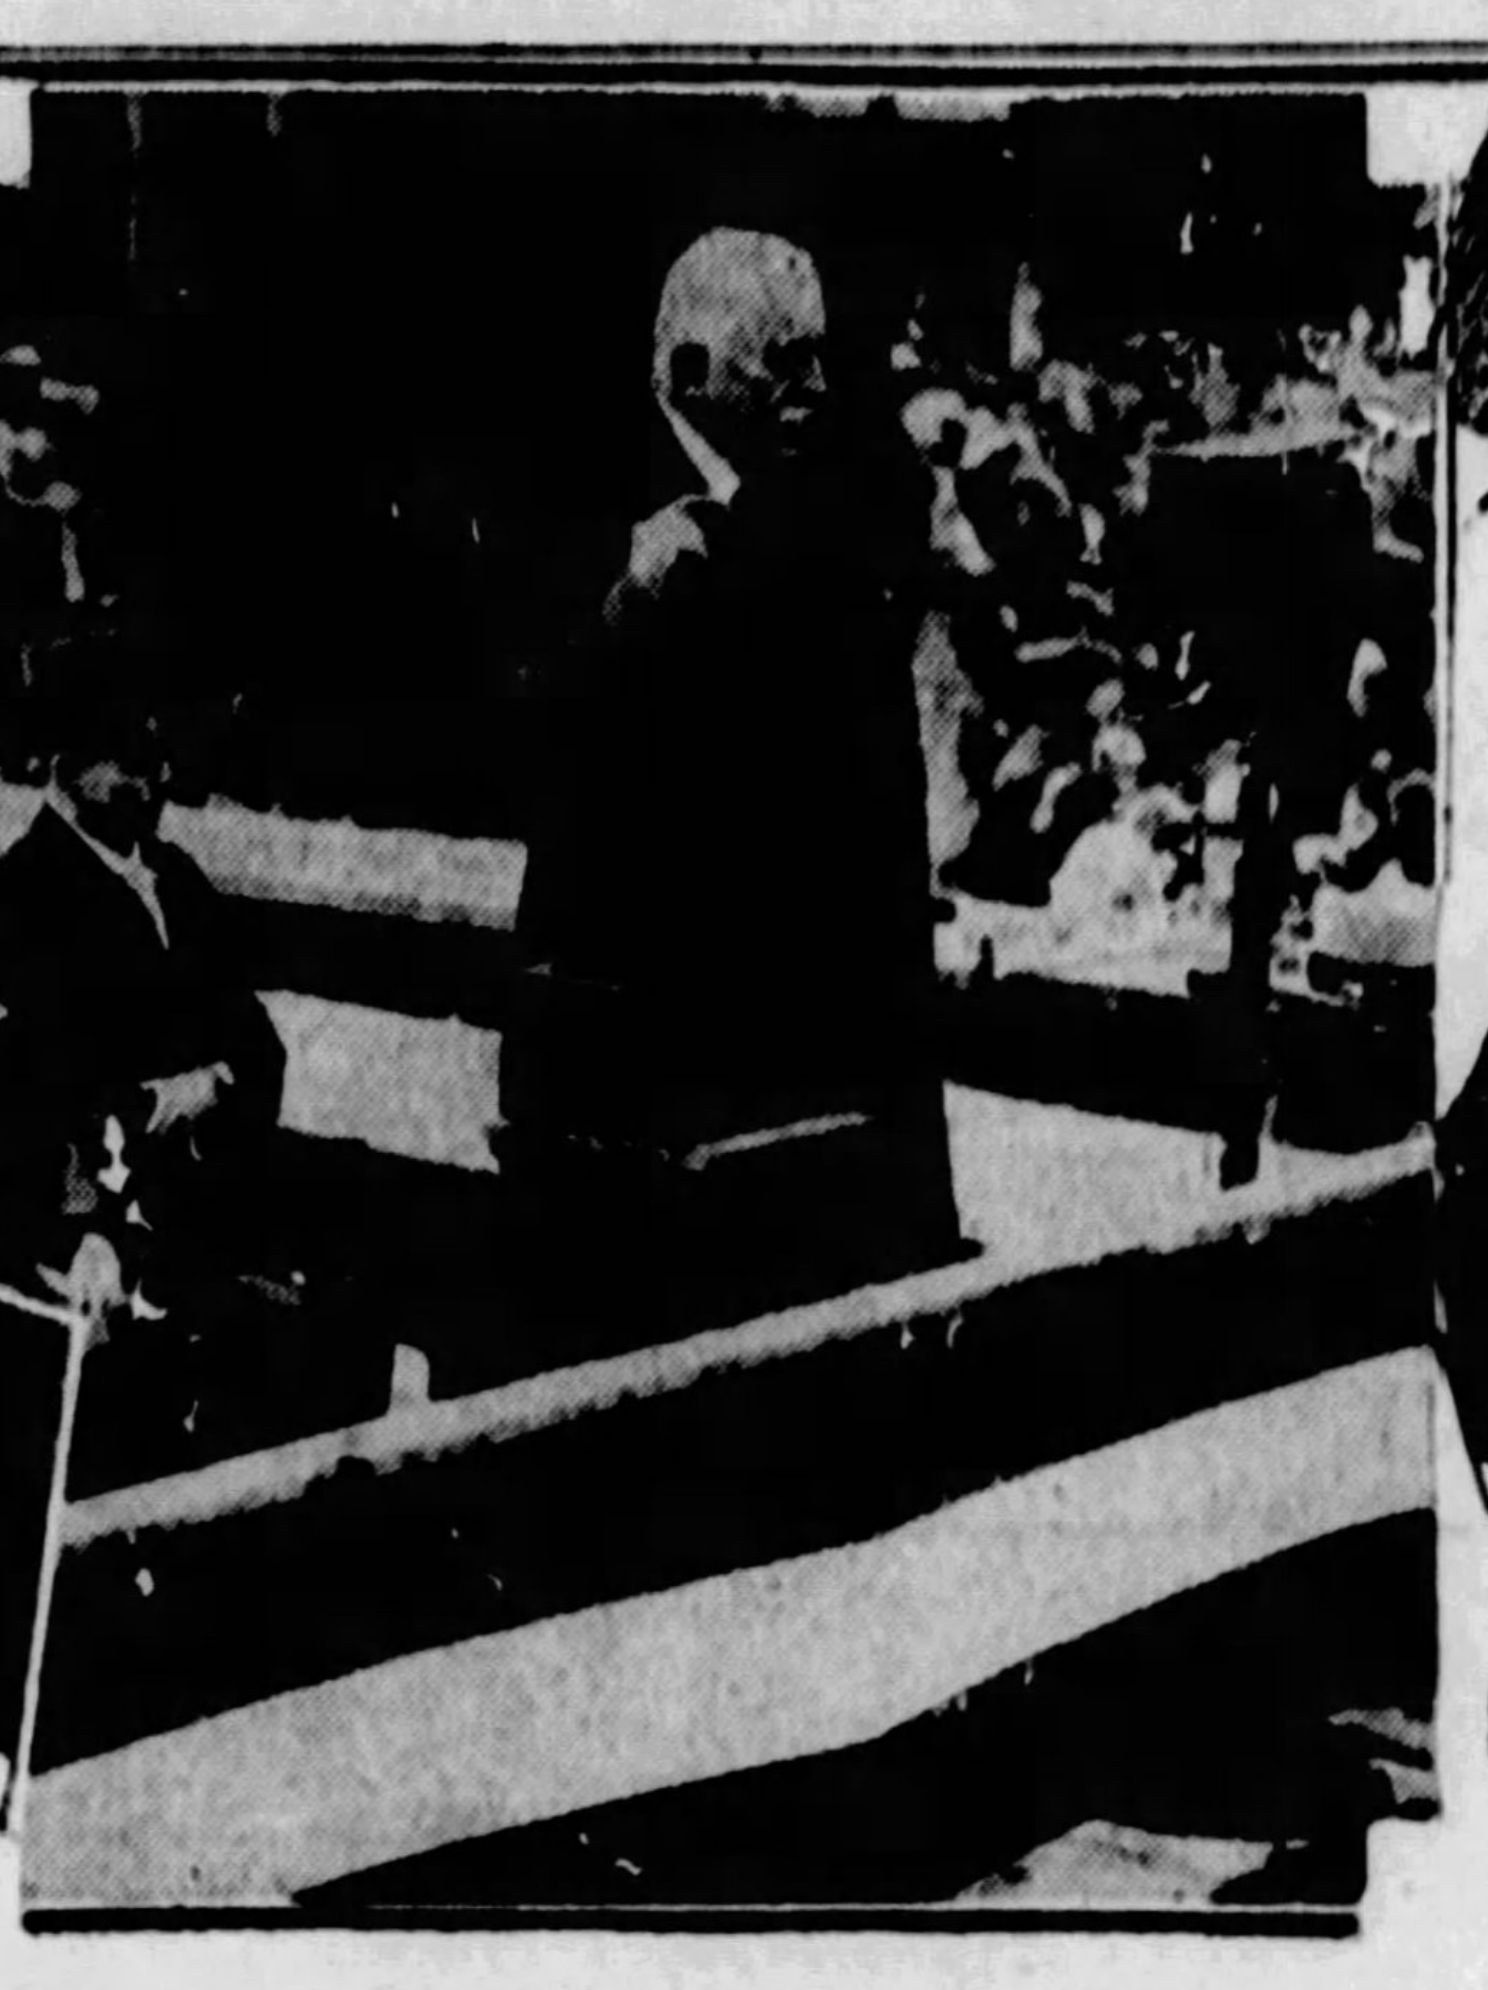
"SHIPS THAT NEVER COME HOME"

A ship put out to sea many years ago. It was one of those that never returned. The father of James A. Farrell, then 15, was aboard. He went to work in a mill to support his mother, two brothers and a sister.

50 YEARS PASS

Half a century rolls by and James A. Farrell is still of the mills—to be chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, succeeding Judge Elbert H. Gary.



DEDICATES GARY SCHOOL

A close friend of the man whose death will elevate him to the highest notch of the steel industry, Farrell is shown here speaking into the microphone at a public school dedication at Gary, Ind., the city that Steel—and Gary—built.

RECOGNIZED

J. Pierpont Morgan long before his death recognized Farrell's worth and made him president of United States Steel.

PILOT, THREE FRIENDS KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

WHAD'DA YOU CARE, HUH?

SHE WOULDN'T SAY YES—BUT SHE WOULDN'T SAY NO

"I don't know where Nicky is—and I don't want to know," Fannie Brice, stage comedienne, told questioners who sought to verify a report that she was about to remarry "Nicky" Arnstein, whom she but recently divorced. "Say, who thinks up all this stuff?" she demanded in that sweet little voice that has shaken so many theater rafters. "Can't they leave me alone? Huh?" But she didn't deny the report—and she didn't confirm it. Anyway, who cares?

Hill Killers Slip Police Dragnet

Police searched vainly today for a clue to the slayers of Joseph Russo, 31, of 92 Elm street, latest victim in the Hill district gangster war, whose bullet-riddled body was picked up in his alleged speakeasy at 18 Congress street. Though several alleged leaders in the Hill district gangs were questioned, including Frank Bruno, 45, of 41½ Congress street, said to have been Russo's partner, the "silence of Sicily" veiled all efforts to determine identity of the slayers.

The assassins took no chances on Russo escaping as he did two years ago, when he was shot down in Washington street. For three months he lingered in Mercy Hospital, recovering from wounds inflicted on that occasion, when his partner, Frank Aquino, was killed by the same fusillade. Frank Scarvamagia, charged by the police with the first shooting, went free of prosecution when the October grand jury, two weeks ago, failed to indict him. It was alleged that Russo and Aquino attempted to extort money from him.

Frank Benecosa, who lives across the street from the Congress street place conducted by Russo and Bruno, into which they moved only last Wednesday, notified the police and was held for several hours as a material witness. Bruno, said to have been bottling moonshine in the basement when the attack occurred, was held in $500 bail for the coroner. The death car, wrecked, was found later at Sixth avenue and Forbes street, a block away from the morgue where Bruno's body was taken.

Adam Fooled by Apple and So Is Mayor

The apple—that innocent first fruit of Eden, which brought disaster to Adam and Eve—was the center of another impasse today, this time in Pittsburgh. The committee boosting "National Apple Week" called on Mayor Charles H. Kline before noon to present him with a beautiful basket of apples, or a basket of beautiful apples, as you please.

The committee praised the efficacy of the Edenic fruit in ruining the business of doctors—and nervously watched for the arrival of the messenger with the basket of fruit.

The Mayor, in a hurry, was due in a conference. The committee talke some more—still no basket. His Honor had to go, and the apples didn't come. The committee said the Mayor's apples surely would be delivered before eve, and agreed that it was "adam" shame that somebody blundered.

CAUSE OF FATAL ACCIDENT MYSTERY

By Universal Service.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 31.—Four persons were instantly killed when a new Fairchild monoplane crashed about a mile south of Hadley airport yesterday.

The dead: Leroy Thomson, 28, the pilot, of Hackensack; Miss Elizabeth McGowen, of Ridgefield Park, a practice teacher in the Hackensack schools; Wesley Hubbell, 27, of Hackensack, and George Haubner, 20, of Hillsdale, N. J.

Thomson was New York manager for the Colonial Air Transport Company, Inc. The others were his friends, whom he was about to take from Hadley Field to the field at Teterboro.

The plane, only a week old, had been in the air mail service between New Brunswick and Boston and was to have been used for exhibitions on Sundays.

What caused the crash is a mystery. Thomson was a veteran pilot, and the plane, according to "Buck" Ketcham, chief mechanic at the airport here was in perfect condition.

The plane took off easily and started to encircle the field. It made half of a wide circle, and was going south, away from Teterboro, but banking a curve to start in that direction, when it was seen to slip sideways and then go into a tail spin. The engine continued to roar, according to eye-witnesses, up until the time the nose of the plane struck the soft ground of a field. Seemingly Thomson was trying to right the plane, and had partly succeeded when the crash came, for the machine did not dive directly down into the earth. The left side of the plane was completely smashed in.

Estimates of how high the plane had been flying at the time it first went into the tail spin vary, but they average about 500 feet.

There was no fire in the plane, and it was allowed to remain precisely as it had landed.

ENGAGED TO PRINCE

MRS. GLORIA VANDERBILT

BEATEN, ROBBED BY SUITOR, GIRL SAYS

Vowing he would kill her unless she would marry him, Ethel Hamilton, 22, pretty blonde, told police, William McMillian of 1219 Buena Vista street, North Side, broke into her aprtment at 400 Collins avenue, at 5:30 a. m. Sunday, beat her, and robbed her of $27.

"You have no use for me, so I'm going to kill you!" the young woman says McMillian, a former admirer, declared as he rained blows on her face and head.

"I work at a restraurant until 2 a. m.," she explained, "and when I got home I started to tidy up my rooms. While working in the hall, I was startled nearly to death when something banged against the door.

"'Who's there?' I asked. When the man answered I recognized McMillian's voice and I told him he could not come in. He had someone with him and I heard them throw their weight against the door to break it in. I ran back into the bed room as both men entered the apartment and when I asked McMillian to leave, he told the other man to go downstairs and wait for him.

"That man has bothered me for several years and always says he will kill me unless I marry him, but I can't stand him. We kept company for a while and his mother was just as anxious for me to marry him as he was."

"Why can't he leave me alone?" she sobbed as she finished. "I don't want him and I'm afraid he will try to harm me again. I do hope the police can help me."

No arrests have been made.

Rogers Prefers His "Bull" on The Hoof

SAN SIMEON, Cal., Oct. 31.—The fellows that keep saying big ranches are all done away with ought to see this one, 300,000 acres.

If this was back East they could call it Maryland, Delaware, Connecticut and Rhode Island, and eight senators and 25 congressmen would have to live off it. Out here that much beautiful land doesn't have to support a thing but wonderful cattle and horses. You can just tell the difference when you look at land that has to support a senator or a white-faced bull.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

P. S.—Yours for more cattle and less congressmen.

Gardner's Vote Move Due

What action District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner will take against election managers in more than 30 districts reported to have made false and fraudulent returns in the recent primary, was expected to be made known today. Since Friday he has been checking reports submitted by a special returns committee headed by Ward Bonsall, attorney, and Thomas W. MacDonald, investigator, for the Allegheny Elections' Association.

An alleged discrepancy of 29 votes in the First district of the First Ward, East Pittsburgh, was added to the growing list today. On all of the 29 ballots, Attorney Bonsall reported, crosses in the same handwriting were apparent. Besides the 30-odd districts now being checked for prosecutions, 134 election board managers have been released on bail for alleged "fraud and conspiracy" in making their returns. The cases are to be submitted to the November grand jury.

LINDY TO AID GUGGENHEIM

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(INS.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, trans-Atlantic flier, will officiate in a consulting capacity for the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics, and for the time being, at least, will not align himself with any commercial project, it was learned here today.

Harry F. Guggenheim, president of the Guggenheim fund, announced that "Lindy" henceforth would be a member of the organization.

"Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has determined that for the present, at least, he will not identify himself with any commercial undertaking," Guggenheim said.

TWO POLICEMEN PENSIONED

Two policemen of the Woods Run Police Station retired on pension today and both will devote their time to chicken raising on farms they have purchased in the northern part of the county. One of them, Lieut. John Loebig, has been a member of the North Side police force for 28 years. The other, Patrolman Robert Pringle, has a 21-year service record. His farm is near Warrendale.

GREEK PRESIDENT WOUNDED BY ASSASSIN BULLET

CABINET ACTS TO SUPPRESS RADICALS

By Universal Service.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—President Condouritis of Greece had a narrow escape from death by assassin Sunday when a would-be assassin fired without warning upon the president as he was leaving the town hall in Athens, where he had just participated in the inauguration of the Greek Mayors' Congress, according to a dispatch from Athens to the Exchange Telegraph.

President Condouritis received a slight wound in the head. His assailant was disarmed and arrested before he could fire a second shot.

The prisoner gave his name as Zafiris Goussios, and said he was 25 years old. He gave no explanation of his act.

SLIGHT SCALP WOUND

The president had just come out of the town hall and, accompanied by a number of other officials, walked to his waiting automobile, when Goussios pushed his way to the front of the small crowd of spectators. As Condouritis entered the car Goussios drew his revolver and fired one shot. The bullet crashed through one of the windows of the automobile and struck the president's hat, inflicting a slight scalp wound.

The crowd, and nearby police, immediately fell upon the assailant and disarmed him.

Later, members of the Condouritis cabinet called on the president and expressed their congratulations upon his escape from death.

COMMUNIST PRESS CURBED

ATHENS, Oct. 31.—Stringent measures to combat communism and attempts against the existing social order in Greece were decided upon by the cabinet following the attempted assassination of President Condouritis Sunday. The president is resting comfortably in a hospital.

REPUDIATE ASSASSIN

The Communists in a public session denied publicly that he was connected with the party. The Communists also protested against the government prohibiting the party from sending a delegation to Russia to take part in the celebration of the anniversary of the revolution.

In an official communique tonight after the cabinet meeting, the government said:

"The government, responding to the sentiment of the entire Greek people who are profoundly moved by the criminal attempt against the life of the president, declares that it has firmly decided to take appropriate measures to stifle all subversive movements directed against the state."

RUTH LIKE "CINDERELLA"

It certainly felt good to be dressed like a woman again.

As soon as I had donned the new things, we started for the Arc de Triomphe, where George Haldeman and I went to pay our respects at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

I was startled to see a large crowd waiting there for us as we came up Champs Elysees. As we approached the arc the people began cheering. I was bewildered, since I felt it was such a solemn occasion and didn't expect that they would cheer us.

PRAYER FOR MOTHER

As I approached the tomb there was a sudden swelling up in my throat which I could not control. My thoughts went out to the mother of the boy sleeping there. I wondered who she might be and I thought of all the other mothers and their suffering for their boys lost in the war.

I couldn't help but offer up a prayer to the mother of this unknown son, a prayer that she might be comforted.

I was upset and it was several minutes after leaving before I was myself again.

Guided by Mrs. Yount I started on a very important mission—that of shopping. We visited several prominent courturiers. Here was fairyland, indeed!

Paris to nearly all women is the garden beautiful with its countless and beautiful feminine things—gowns, shoes and personal things.

I had heard so much about it all that it was difficult to realize that now it was all coming true.

French styles have always dominated the world of women's fashions and it was a rich experience to see the very places where the chic and smart things came from.

To make a frank confession I have always felt more comfortable in sport clothes, but I have always been vain enough to want beautiful feminine things.

All women eventually bow to tradition—feminity desires beauty and comfort, and I believe both can be secured.

I bought some beautiful things—things every girl yearns for. It takes so much longer to shop in Paris than in America because here one must be fitted for everything. From 2 until 5 we shopped.

VISITS MADAME NUNGESSER

Then I returned to the hotel to rest. At 7 with Haldeman, George Veit and Mr. and Mrs. Yount, I visited Mme. Nungesser at her home.

I was never so touched in my life, as during the interview with this brave mother who still believes her courageous son still lives. Our talk left me unnerved.

How daringly we women hope for things that can never be. Although there is absolutely no hope, I fear, that the gallant flier will never be found, his mother still thinks he will come back some day.

Madame Nungesser showed me her boy's room, gave me a book about his life and talked to me about him. She wept and I cried with her. I couldn't hold back the tears. I wish I could have cheered for her.

What a miserable life her's would be if she ever abandoned hope of seeing her son again.

I returned to the hotel thinking of her and her brave son. What fate does to men and women!

I was exhausted and retired early, my cold still bothering me and excitement having well spent me during the day.

I left word that I was not to be disturbed until noon, and consequently was able to have an extraordinarily refreshing sleep.

IMPRESSIONS OF PARIS

Immediately after a hearty chicken dinner, George and I, accompanied by Major and Mrs. Yount went around Paris in their automobile. It is hard for me to give my crowded impressions about Paris. The yet green parks of Paris, the Royal Gardens of the Tulleries, the imposing Louvre, the Cathedral of Notre Dame and the Bois de Boulogne impressed me most.

I shall never forget the interior of Notre Dame, with its blue stained windows and its lighted candles, the music of vespers and the sound of prayers.

The Bois da Boulogne, with its beautiful trees, brought back memories of my old home state. We drove to beneath the Eiffel Tower, around which we had flown two days before. We wanted to go up on top of the tower, but we did not have time.

Then I returned to my hotel to prepare for an informal box party given for George and me at the Casino de Paris, where the Dolly Sisters are playing. We were guests of Dr. Guglielmetti of the Aero Club of France, who is an amazingly interesting man.

Dr. Guglielmetti, I am told, was a pioneer in determining what effect high altitudes have on the lungs. He spent several nights on Mont Blanc with a number of other men to test the possible effect of such altitude, and four of his party died.

Most of the dresses and hats which I bought during my shopping tour won't be delivered until Friday, but I had a number of things sent to the hotel immediately. As usual I was unable to resist buying a sport ensemble. This consists of tweed coat on straight lines, with collar and cuffs of beaver and lined with beige crepe de chine. The blouse is also of beige jersey with cuffs and hipband of coat material. The skirt is short and is of tweed. I also chose a beige-colored Austrian velour hat to wear with the sport outfit.

A DARLING CONCOCTION

Then I picked the most darling concoction of general wear, consisting of black jersey kasha coat with gray fox collar and cuffs, with a border of gray fur at the bottom; white and black jersey blouse over black jersey kasha skirt with inset bands of same material. For this I selected close-fitting black taupe hat.

Then for immediate evening wear I chose a gold lamb wrap, lined with black chiffon velvet with gorgeous black, lynx collar and cuffs; a two-piece dress consisting of sleeveless blouse with gold-embroidered black chiffon and bead-embroidered band around hips. The skirt is of black chiffon velvet.

I have two afternoon frocks, two evening wraps, half dozen hats and many others things coming.

I was as delighted as Cinderella must have been at the ball.

I feel as every American woman feels coming to Paris to get her clothes. It waas a wonderful dream being realized.

We next visited Rue de La Paix—that glittering street of jewels.

I shall go back there, as I only strolled by for a few minutes gazing in the windows. What precious stones I saw. I wish I had more money to buy some of them!

I love jewelry but I've never had the opportunity to have very much because I've had so little money.

All the jewelry I have ever had was my engagement and wedding rings. Some day I hope to have two or three fine jewels as all women dream of having.

HAS HUSBAND'S APPROVAL

But no jewel I will ever possess can take the place of the little diamond-studded wedding ring which is nearest and dearest to my heart. And I surely would love to have the dear boy who gave it to me here in Paris with me.

I've been criticized in many places for not doing my duty by my husband. People declare my place should be at home. But my husband is modern and thinks that if woman does not want to stay at home and does not need to and can be of service to the world and at the same time be happy and make her husband happy by doing things outside the home, it is all right.

Lyle, my husband, was perfectly happy to have me come on this trip. He was happy to think that I was brave enough to attempt it.

He was actually as proud as a peacock when we went to Detroit to get our plane.

Then came days when transatlantic planes were meeting disaster. There was the unknown fate of the Sir John Carling and the unfortunate end of Old Glory.

Then Lyle began to worry, but he said nothing. We have been married two years and are very close to each other. I think worlds of him and he thinks the world of me. He never told me not to go, though I knew he was worrying a great deal.

He didn't ask me not to go because he knew my heart was set on going and he did not want to make me unhappy by telling me not to go. He was very unhappy because he could not wait for the uncertain day I was to take off, as he had to go to Panama, where he is employed in the government service.

He left me, trusting in my intuition. All women have a sharp sense of intuition.

FAITH IN HUNCHES

I've always had hunches and whenever I failed to follow them I was unhappy and when I played them I was always successful.

I had a hunch I'd be safe in my attempt to fly to Paris no matter what happened. I even had a feeling that if we were forced into the water that we would come out of it safely. I was merely just playing another one of my hunches. Even if we were forced down and had to remain floating around for three or four days I even thought we would be saved.

No matter what New York and the rest of the world was saying I was determined to go and I went with the approval of Lyle.

He knew I would suffer terribly if after so many months of planning some other girl would succeed before I would.

I would have never been happy unless I had at least made the attempt.

While the whole world thought I was seeking publicity I knew I would never back out but would go ahead—bound for Paris.

So Lyle left for Panama a week before we were able to take off. He left with the knowledge that I was happy and I knew he had faith in my hunch.

Strange how all this came back to me as I stood in front of the jewel shop on Rue de la Paix.

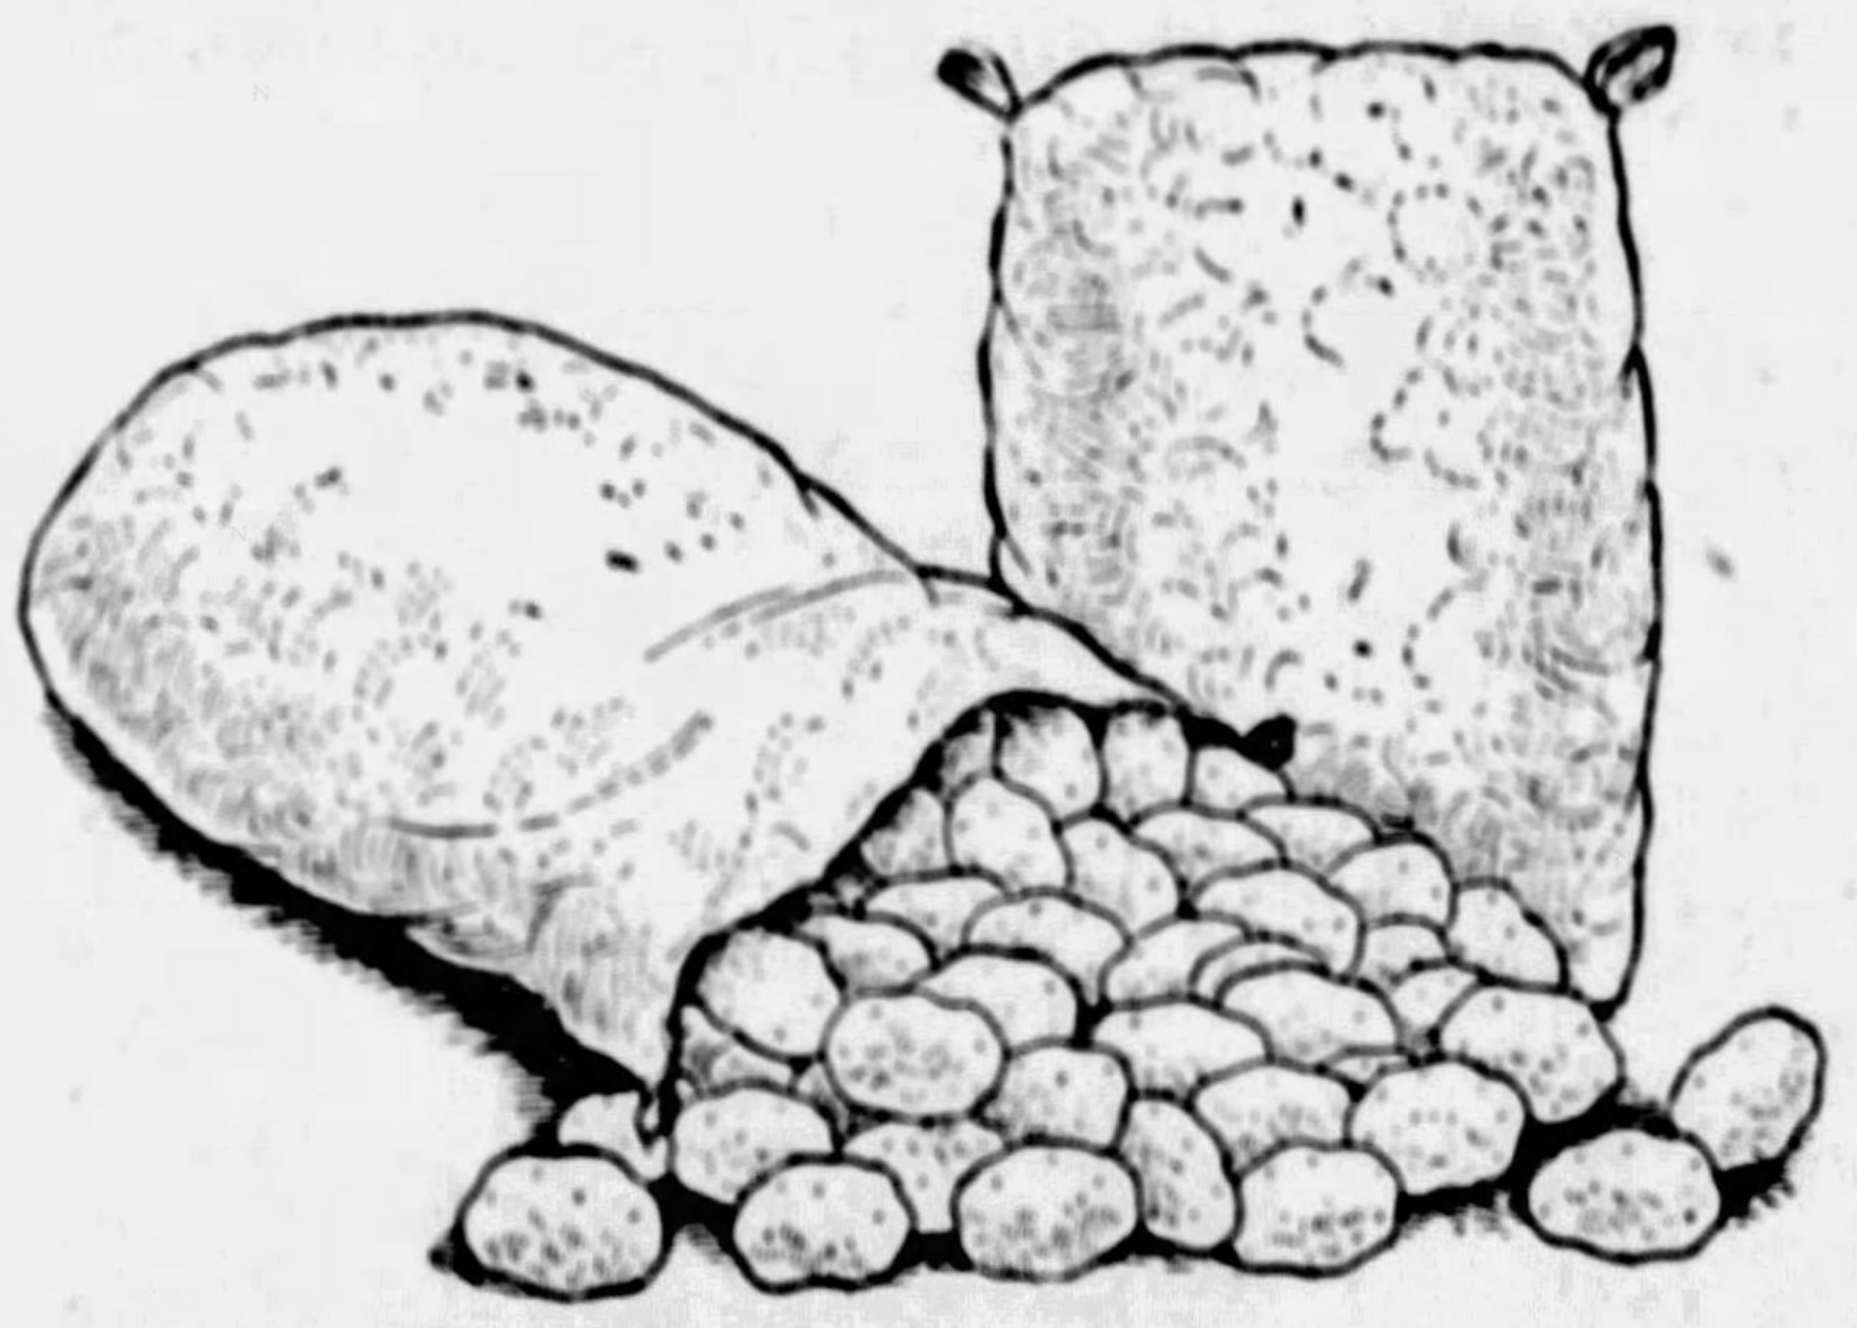
From Rue de la Paix I went to luncheon at the Inter Allied Club with Maj. and Mrs. Yount and George and met several interesting people.

After luncheon we went shopping again to buy more dresses, shoes, hats, stockings, handbags. I don't think I'll ever tire of shopping.

McCann's Potato Club Opens!

Winter Potatoes

$3.50, 2½ bu. sack



HARD, dry, thick-skinned Pennsylvania keepers graded U. S. No. 1—free from blight—the kind that are white and mealy when cooked. Grown after the methods endorsed by the Department of Agriculture—the college idea in scientific potato growing.

Some of the fields have been sprayed as many as fifteen times; none less than nine times. Government experts have analyzed the soil periodically, suggesting the types of fertilizer to be used that would supply in the potatoes the necessary elements.

$3.50 a sack is at the rate of $1.40 a bushel or 35c a peck—far below today's price of potatoes for immediate use. McCann's Winter Potatoes are guaranteed to keep until next March.

How to Purchase Potatoes at This Low Price

If You Want the Potatoes Delivered

Come to the main store or our Wholesale Annex, purchase and pay for as many bags as you will require. Hold the receipt until the potatoes arrive at your home. Deliveries will commence November 8th, and your potatoes will be delivered on or after that day. The delivery charge this year, as in the past, is 15c a bushel, 38c a bag. Our delivery plan includes the following sections; no deliveries will be made on unpaved streets:

Hemorrhoids Disappear

All Pile Misery Banished Without Cutting or Salves.

External treatments seldom banish Piles for the very good reason that the cause is inside—bad circulation in affected parts, veins are flabby and bowel walls weakened.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send fresh, healthy blood to the raw, sensitive membranes. Internal treatment is one safe method. Ointments and other external treatments can't give lasting relief.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and it has proven successful in thousands of cases—so successful that now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists under a money back guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at May Drug Co., who will promptly refund the purchase price if you are dissatisfied.

FIRE HOSE LAID HALF MILE TO FIGHT BLAZE

Struggling over heaps of tin cans, broken bottles and other junk in the dump yard of Charles Weisenhauver near Greentree early this morning, city firemen, after laying about a half-mile of hose from Woodville avenue, West End, along the Banksville road, succeeded in dampening the embers of what had been the incinerator plant. The fire burned furiously for about an hour, consuming all the woodwork underneath a tin roof and around the brick furnaces. Battalion Chief Saul Klein refused to estimate the damage. Three wooden buildings were destroyed.

Every available length of hose was drafted into service, the nearest fire plug being in Woodville street below the Wabash Railroad bridge. After an hour's work word was passed along from the plug that there lacked about four sections of hose.

"Put on your small line," ordered Chief Klein. This was done, but there still remained a gap of a hundred feet to the water plug.

"Bring out the chemical line," was the chief's next order.

This done, the hose finally reached across the hollow from the Banksville road, but hardly had the water been turned on when a coupling gave way and again the firemen were without water.

HOLD MINISTER IN SHOOTING

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Oct. 31.—The Rev. Lewis Hollard, Negro Baptist minister, is in jail here today awaiting the outcome of bullet wounds suffered by Anthony Annarelia, 19, when Hollard fired a 38-caliber revolver into a crowd of boys playing Hallowe'en pranks about his home. Hollard declares he intended to fire into the air to scare the jokers and he says he is unable to understand how Annarelia was wounded. The bullet struck the boy in the leg. The boy denied he was with those who were stoning Hollard's home.

SUN-TELE COOK SCHOOL STIRS INTEREST

Satisfaction and approval has been expressed by a number of women's organizations over the announcement of the Free Cooking School which will open at Memorial Hall Tuesday of next week to continue for three days. The school will be held under the auspices of The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and will be directed by Mrs. George O. Thurn, a well known food and cookery lecturer, who has conducted similar schools for a number of years.

Among the interested inquiries about next week's school which came into the Sun-Telegraph office was an anonymous letter from a bride who begged Mrs. Thurn to give at least one lecture on cake making and "show us new housekeepers just how a cake ought to be mixed so that it will be light and good when it comes from the oven." Mrs. Thurn has promised that the cake will be made and that recipes for cakes as well as many other kinds of cookery will be given out each day. The bride will be welcome at one of the four lectures and with her Mrs. Thurn invites the experienced housekeepers of the Pittsburgh district, the school girls and all other women whether they do their own marketing and cooking or whether they supervise a maid who does their housework. The lectures planned will cover subjects of interest to every housewife, and the dishes cooked will be suitable for service in every home.

TIME-SAVING IDEAS

In one of the classes some new ideas for saving time in the kitchen will be demonstrated. "Short cut cookery does not mean sloppy cookery," Mrs. Thurn said when discussing labor and time-saving devices for the kitchen. "Just because a woman can do things quickly and easily does not mean that she is not doing them well. It is no longer necessary for a housekeeper to stay in the kitchen from 5 o'clock in the morning until 9 at night, as some of our grandmothers did. The modern stoves, electric refrigerators, new cooking utensils, handy canned foods on the pantry shelf and simple, easily understood recipes have all contributed much to the pleasure of modern homemaking. And housekeeping can be a pleasure if women will take as much interest in the new tricks of kitchen activity as their husbands take in new equipment for their offices."

Not only will new equipment for homemaking be shown in the kitchen which is being installed at Memorial Hall, but new recipes will be given out, there will be daily demonstrations of cooking, and there will be a question and answer forum. Every woman in this district is invited to attend and bring her housekeeping questions with her. "Speak out in meeting," Mrs. Thurn urges her listeners. She also advises the women to bring pencils and notebooks in order to jot down any questions which may occur as the lecturer is speaking and also to make note of the many new and interesting ideas on cookery and housekeeping which Mrs. Thurn will bring to Pittsburgh.

TO DISCUSS BUDGET

A feature of one class will be a discussion of the home budget, how to plan a simple one and apply it to any home no matter what the income. Another feature of the school will be suggestions for home entertaining, how to plan parties, what to serve and how to decorate the tables.

The audience is invited to come up on the platform and visit the kitchen after each lecture. There will be new appliances to examine, new electric refrigerators which not only keep the perishable foods at a safe, low temperature, but which can make ice creams, sherbets and other frozen desserts.

Mrs. Thurn will gladly show the equipment of the kitchen, the mixing bowls, measuring cups and all devices, large and small, with which her cooking is done. The spirit which will pervade the school is that of a housekeeping headquarters. Questions are welcomed and they will be answered gladly as well as fully. Admission is free to all for all of the classes.

SHOT SUSPECT RECOVERING

Charles Swartz, 47, of Carson street, shot early Sunday during an attempted holdup of a motorist in Schenley Park, was reported recovering today in the Homeopathic Hospital.

Patrolman Stanley Fijerski, who shot Swartz, reported that Swartz had been stopping motorists by stepping into the highway with a revolver. He was shot as he fled upon the patrolman's command to stop.

Cuticura Healed Water Blisters On Little Boy's Head

"My little boy's head started to bother him and we could see little pimples under the skin. In a few days his scalp broke out with water blisters and itched so that he could not keep his hands off it. The blisters broke and the top of his head was one sore eruption. The hair around the eruptions all fell out. He was cross and kept us awake nights.

"I then sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I purchased more, and after using two cakes of Soap and one box of Ointment he was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Harold Stanton, Julian, Pa., April 8, 1927.

Use Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum to promote and maintain skin purity, skin comfort and skin health; the Soap to cleanse and purify, Ointment to soothe and heal, and Talcum to powder and refresh.

The Hour and Occasion Determine

The Proper Corset

The foundation garment must be quite as thoroughly in the spirit of the time and the moment of its wearing as its accompanying costume. Three new corsets so designed.

A—Sports Hours. Of firmly knit elastic that is supplely supporting to the athleticly-given figure. Full-fashioned by hand it shapes itself to the normal curves with infinite ease. Although a slip-on, a short-lace permits adjustability. Imported at $8.50. And with the sports corset, recommending the Cup-Form Bandeau that makes for the natural line of beauty. $1.50 and $2.50.

B—Tailored Hours. A side-hook garment that is of sufficient body to obtain those clipped lines essential to the trig tailored figure. Of strong brocade in flesh with raised panel for diaphragm support and four sections of knitted elastic on the bias for greater "give." $12.50.

C—Formal Hours. An exclusive Mol-May Riskay. Lined and reinforced horizontally in such a fashion that control and moulding are gained without any boning. A reinforced diaphragm section along with two small elastic sections gives support and flexibility at the same time. A cream lace net brassiere makes it a two-in-one garment. $16.50.

"The Foundation Garment Must Be Fitted." Our expert fitters will be glad to advise you on your figure problems. Phone for appointment—Court 3000.

Our Millinery Section Presents

Mme. Thea Marsi

Celebrated Viennese Artiste

Who Will Place Her Art in Moulding Hats-to-the-Head at the Disposal of Pittsburgh Women This Week

Mme. Marsi has won international recognition for her art in designing hats which give expression to the attractive features of the individual. The subject sits for a hat just as she might for a picture, and it is moulded right on the head. Her shop in Vienna draws customers from all over Europe, as well as a number of prominent American patrons.

She is now making a tour of leading American cities, and will be at Horne's all this week for the purpose of serving Pittsburgh women.

Her visit is merely supplementary to our own special department of Hats-Moulded-to-the-Head, which was a pioneer department of its kind in Pittsburgh, and which is one of the most popular divisions of our Millinery Section.

Mme. Marsi's services will be available at our usual moderate charge for this work. Appointments may be made by phone or in person.

Whether or not you avail yourself of her services, it will be interesting to meet Mme. Marsi during her visit to Pittsburgh and see examples of her work.

Bokhara Coats

Combining Style, Beauty and Rare Lasting Quality

Ultra smartness and beauty are not, usually, combined with utility; but women who have worn Horne coats of bokhara for two seasons, tell us that they still retain their original good looks.

Coats only of the fine imported bokhara cloth are featured here—the fabric which approaches the loveliness of broadtail fur, is lustrous, light of weight.

They are coats for street, formal daytime and evening wear. Chiefly in black, of course, some also in bronze and brown tones.

Models for women and misses, $115.00 to $495.00. Feature prices, $125.00 and $165.00.

Variations of the Afternoon Mode in

Barbara Lee Dresses

Dresses for all occasions of the afternoon, from the simplest pre-nuptial parties and lectures at the club, to teas, matinees, and other functions of a near-formal character. $39.50.

The richness of velvet. The gleam of metal threads in a blouse of delicate sheerness. The sleekness of satin. The stateliness of velvet brocade used in combination with georgette. The dullness of flat crepe, relieved by velvet trimming.

Reproducing the soft browns of autumn. Presenting wine shades which are warm, lively. Blues which are gracious to women of pastel coloring and those with graying hair. Black, which remains the favorite of Paris, the mark of sophistication.

ARTHUR NASH, OF "GOLDEN RULE" FAME, DIES

CINCINNATI, Oct. 31.—(AP.)—Arthur Nash, 55, founder of the A. Nash Tailoring Company, perhaps best known as the exponent of the "golden rule" in business, died last night at Good Samaritan Hospital. He had been admitted to that institution two days ago suffering from heart trouble. His death was unexpected.

The clothing company bearing his name was said to be the largest of its kind in the country. The profits of the enterprise are divided annually, one-third going to the stockholders, another third to the workers, the remainder being put back into the business in the form of increased values.

Mr. Nash, by his business dealings and the unique plan upon which his enterprise was founded, enjoyed a national reputation and he was constantly called upon for speaking engagements in other cities. He was active in civic matters in Cincinnati and was an earnest participant in the activities of the Federation of Churches in America.

He leaves a widow, two sons and a daughter.

ADMITS TRUNK MURDERS

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 31.—Said to have confessed to murdering his wife and sister-in-law and hacking their bodies to pieces and concealing the remains in trunks, Henry Moity was being returned to New Orleans early today following his capture in the Louisiana marshes.

Police of Thibodaux telephoned New Orleans authorities last night that Moity had been surrounded by a posse and seized in his swamp hideout. They added that Moity had confessed to the crime which has stirred New Orleans with its revolting brutality.

The fugitive was being returned under heavy guard, it was said.

Increase Your Weight 5 Pounds in 30 Days

Make Yourself Strong, Healthy and Vigorous at the Same Time

By this time most people know that the world's great flesh producer is McCoy's Tablets.

Take them for a few weeks and the hollows in your cheeks, your neck and chest will soon fill out and whether you be man or woman you'll have an attractive figure and plenty of "get there" energy in just a short time.

No one will call you skinny any more.

In McCoy's you find a combination of health builders that bring energy, strength and vigor and at the same time put pounds of good healthy flesh on those who are underweight.

One underweight woman, exceedingly thin, gained 10 pounds in 22 days and doesn't have to worry any more about her figure.

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking 4 sixty cent boxes of McCoy's Tablets, or 2 One Dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

The name McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets has been shortened—just ask for McCoy's Tablets at May's Drug Stores or any drug store in America.

Doctor's Verdict

This case is critical. These colds are always dangerous and should never be neglected.

Doctors recommend hot Bulgarian Herb (Blood) Tea to break up a cold quickly, because it heats up the chilled blood stream, increases the circulation, and purges dangerous germs from the system.

Be sure to ask your druggist for the genuine Bulgarian Herb (Blood) Tea in the red and yellow box. 35c-75c.

The Plays Stage and Screen And Players

Fay Wray May Play Abie's Rose, Created on Stage by Evelyn, Sister of Ann Nichols, Author

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

(Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.)

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 31.

THE little Wray girl—Fay, I mean—who was selected from a group of Universal actresses by Eric Von Stroheim to be starred in "The Wedding March," is due for other recognition. I am told—and say this softly, for it is only a rumor—that Fay will play the leading role in "Abie's Irish Rose," Ann Nichols' famous play.

I couldn't get a word out of anyone at Famous about this, but it comes from such an excellent source I have no hesitancy in rumoring it. Fay will play, so the tale goes, the Irish girl created on the stage by Evelyn Nichols, a sister of Ann Nichols. The latter approves thoroughly of Fay Wray, and since there will never be anyone engaged for the part of whom she does not approve, this is another reason I believe the story is true.

Every time I rumor a story, I say, "Never again." Yet, temptation is strong, even though occasionally our rumors do not materialize.

So much was written about Lupe Velez, the little Mexican girl, when she played opposite Douglas Fairbanks in "The Gaucho;" then we didn't hear anything else about her. I wondered if she were to be only a flash in the pan as so often happens in this business. Now, she appears on the horizon again—this time in "Stand and Deliver," Rod La Rocque's next picture. Lupe is the type who believes in being realistic. If she has to slap a man in the picture, it isn't a little gentle slap with her, but a blow that would rival one handed out by Jack Dempsey or Gene Tunney.

The market for original scenarios is increasing in Hollywood. I find this true more and more in my travels around the studios. Yet, there isn't a successful book or a popular play that isn't bought by the movie producer sooner or later. "Wall Flowers," by Temple Bailey, one of the best sellers in the book shops, has been purchased by F. B. O. simply because it has had such a wide circulation among the fans of the country. Jean Arthur will create Miss Bailey's heroine for the screen and Lola Todd will play her sister. Miss Todd has been sick for five months with intestinal flu, so that her return to the screen is a matter of rejoicing to her family and friends. This is her second picture under the direction of Leo Meehan, who is to direct "Wall Flowers." The cast, I fancy, is complete for the list consists of Crawford Kent, Mabel Julienne Scott and Hugh Trevore in addition to the two named above.

Elinor Glyn has repeatedly said that Rex, the horse, has "it." Someone has probably told Rex of Mrs. Glyn's diagnosis, for now Rex has taken unto himself a sweetheart, a lady horse with the romantic name of Starlight. Rex is willing to do for his inamorata what the other successful stars do for their best girls. He is giving her a chance in his new picture, "Wild Blood." She plays opposite him. Others in the cast of this Universal horse opera are Ethlyn Clair, Nelson McDowell and Theodore Lorch.

While I was out on the "French Dressing" set, Allan Dwan called my attention to the black sheets on the bed in "French Dressing." "I've come to Hollywood," said Allan, "to find out black sheets are au fait." Hollywood may take exception to that, for black sheets may be Movie Hollywood, but not Hollywood outside of the films.

Pictures for actors go in cycles. You see one certain star, male and female both, in a lot of pictures. Then suddenly you do not see them. That's true of Robert Frazer. For a while he seemed to be one of the favorite leading men. He had more jobs than anyone. For a long time now I haven't happened to see him. But that will all be changed in a few days, for he has been signed to play the male lead in May McAvoy's picture, "The Little Snob." That's good news, too, for Mr. Frazer is a popular young leading man.

"Walking Back" is a natty title. We all agreed upon that when William K. Howard let it be known that he was going to lose his dignity and make a rip-snorting comedy. "Walking Back," however, has been set ahead in the far future. Mr. Howard isn't ready to produce it. Instead he has chosen "My Country," a heavy drama with Rudolph Schildkraut in the leading role. The original is by Julian Josephson.

No bit of news in months carries the interest of William Farnum's return to the Fox Company. Perhaps I should say the "sentimental interest," for it was as a Fox star that Mr. Farnum has been signed to play the lead in "Hangman's House," by Donn Byrne. We wish him good luck and hope that his part in the Byrne novel is one that will give him the opportunities he deserves. Jack Ford, the director, will probably see to it that he gets the right break.

TALK ABOUT MUSIC PROGRAM TO BE GIVEN

An orchestra program talk will be given at Pittsburgh Musical Institute tomorrow evening. It will be on the music to be played here the latter part of the week by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Charles Boyd will be the speaker, and the illustrations will be played in two-piano or piano duet arrangements by William H. Oetting and Dallmeyer Russell.

Thursday evening a program will be given by Miss Martha B. Steckel of the department of expression, assisted by Marian Clark Bollinger, pianist. Miss Steckel will read Tennyson's "Enoch Arden" with the musical setting by Richard Strauss. In addition Miss Steckel will offer three selections by Amy Lowell, and Mrs. Bollinger will play Dohnanyi's "Rhapsodie in F sharp minor."

"THE BEGGAR'S OPERA" TO BE SUNG TONIGHT

The London cast and production of "The Beggar's Opera" will appear this evening at 8 o'clock in Carnegie Music Hall as the opening number of the Bortz deluxe concert series. This was the first musical play to appear on an American stage and was presented at New York at the Nassau Theater in 1751. It recently finished a run in the Lyric Theater of London.

OPERA, DRAMA ARE LISTED

The San Carlo Grand Opera Company will open tonight in the Pitt, the engagement comprising eight operas, with matinees Thursday and Saturday. Tonight's offering will be Puccini's "La Boheme," with Myrna Sharlow, former prima donna of the Chicago Opera, as Mimi.

E. H. Sothern is departing from Shakespearian roles this season, and will appear in the Irish comedy, "General John Regan," by George A. Birmingham, in the Nixon tonight.

"My Maryland" begins its second week in the Alvin tonight. John B. Reynolds, manager of the Alvin, says that the demand for tickets for this week continues at record figures and he expects the "My Maryland" engagement to smash all previous records for attendance in his theater. The next matinee will be Wednesday.

Coming to the Nixon Theater for the week beginning Monday evening, November 7, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday, is "The Girl From Childs." The cast is headed by Ann Milburn and Irving Fisher.

The attraction in the Pitt the week of November 7 will be Jeanne Eagles in "Her Cardboard Lover." This will be her first time here since her appearance in "Rain" as Sadie Thompson. The usual matinees Thursday and Saturday will prevail.

3 NOTED MISSION WORKERS AT CONFERENCE

Three of the foremost missionary workers in Africa are attending a three-day inter-denominational conference opening at the Second Presbyterian Church, Eighth street, today. One is Dr. T. A. Lambie, whose father, John S. Lambie, was for 10 years a member of Pittsburgh's Select Council. Dr. Lambie is physician to Ras Tafari, regent of Abyssinia. The others are the Rev. Rowland V. Bingham, director of the Sudan Interior and Abyssinian Frontier Missions, and the Rev. George W. Rhoad, a worker in Abyssinia.

The Rev. Mr. Bingham will speak at tonight's session on "Fulfilled Prophecy." Dr. Lambie will give an illustrated lecture on "Abyssinia."

Sessions will be held at 3:30 p. m. and 7:45 p. m. Tuesday and Wednesday.

MRS. CHALFANT ON BOARD

Mrs. Minnie K. Chalfant, 5516½ Avondale place, was today appointed to the Board of Public Education by the judges of Common Pleas Court. She succeeds Helen H. Pearson.

Mrs. Alice M. Carmalt, Thomas E. Boyle and Dr. A. L. Lewin were reappointed. The terms of four members expired and the four appointed today are for the full term of six years, effective November 7.

Mrs. Carmalt and Dr. Lewin have been members of the board since it was created.

Mrs. Chalfant is the wife of Frederick B. Chalfant, division engineer for the city. She is a graduate of Bryn Mawr College and before her marriage taught in Schenley and Peabody High Schools.

EX-PITTSBURGH MAN KILLS SELF

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 31.—(AP.)—Richard E. Roberts, 50, who came here from Pittsburgh a year ago, hanged himself today in a shoe store he managed after leaving his wife a note saying he couldn't stand to see her suffer longer. The widow, in a hospital, was not told of her husband's death.

TROLLEY CREWS TOLD TO KEEP NEWSBOYS OFF

A coroner's jury having recommended that the Pittsburgh Railways Company issue definite regulations as to the boarding and alighting of newsboys on trolley cars, F. W. McCarthy, superintendent of car operations, stated today that all motormen and conductors have been instructed to see that the Pennsylvania law prohibiting children under 12 from engaging in street trade is carried out. The recommendation by the coroner's jury was made in the case of Emil Bernheimer, of Reading, whose automobile struck Charles R. Hawthorne, a newsboy, 5128 Dearborn street, on October 11 at Penn avenue and Pearl street. Bernheimer was exonerated.

INDEPENDENTS TO HOLD 22 MEETINGS THIS WEEK

Twenty-two meetings have been scheduled for the week by the Independent party. Three will be held tonight, one in the Washington school, Mt. Lebanon, another in the Davidson school, Penn township, and the third at 14 Parkway, North Side. The largest meeting of the week will be held in the North Side Carnegie Hall Wednesday night.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Luncheons and Bridges Will Season Formality and Gaiety at Many Debutante Parties

EVEN though there are to be an unusually large number of debutante parties this season, the buds will not become satiated with so much gaiety, for they have chosen to season the formality of "coming out" teas and balls and dinners with luncheons and bridges. There is always something delightfully pleasant and informal about luncheons, and bridges, of course, are admittedly chatty affairs,

One of the luncheons planned for a debutante is that to be given by Mrs. Benjamin Dangerfield, Jr., of Bennington avenue, for Anne Louise Marshall, charming daughter of the Lee Holmes Marshalls of Dunmoyle street on Friday afternoon, December 22. The debutantes of the season will be guests. Mrs. Dangerfield is a friend of the debutante's mother,

Anne, as you know, is to make her bow to Pittsburgh society with her cousin, Nancy Hamilton, daughter of the Charles Lee Hamiltons of Sewickley, at a tea on November 12. Their grandmother, Mrs. George Vardy Marshall, of the Kenmawr Hotel, is giving the party assisted by her daughter, Mrs. William Loudon Rowe, aunt of the honor guests,

For a while during the past summer it was feared Anne's coming out would have to be postponed because of the illness of her father. Her plans for the season are not complete as yet, for the family were out of the city all summer,

Anne is a Dobbs Ferry girl, and her cousin Nancy is a student at Smith College,

Speaking of informal entertainments for the buds of the season reminds me of the delightful bridge Mrs. Edward J. House gave in her Beechwood boulevard home Saturday for the debutantes. The bridge was originally planned for Friday. There were 10 tables in play. And the honor guests were Mary Louise Johnson, Mary Mellon McClung and Anne King Scott, three popular society girls who will make their debuts during the fall and winter season,

A great many society folk are planning to attend the Cinderella ball to be held at the University Club Friday evening, November 25, ostensibly because they wish to aid the work of St. Margaret's Memorial Hospital,

Mrs. Donald Scott Rodgers, who is chairman of the dispensary board sponsoring the event, has asked Margaret McClintic, who is always willing to help out with a benefit, to serve as chairman of the floor committee; Miss Anna K. Childs and Mrs. Stanley Brown to take charge of tickets; Mrs. Arthur M. Scully to be in charge of boxes and patronesses; Catherine Suydam of cigarettes, and Marjorie Gothoefer of publicity. That there are to be surprises of some sort in store for the guests we know, for Alice Walton Childs has been appointed chairman of features,

Added to the list of Pittsburgh society folk who have been making their usual fall visits to New York to shop, to see the new plays and to attend the opera are the George S. Olivers, who have been at the Ambassador,

* * *

The Andrew Bishop McClarys are now at home in Windsor, Vermont, following their wedding trip to Ireland and Scotland. Mrs. McClary was formerly Mary Martha Armstrong, daughter of the Charles Dickey Armstrongs. The McClarys had such a pretty wedding, I remember, performed in the garden of "Indian Knoll," the summer home of the Armstrongs at Osterville, Cape Cod. Mrs. Armstrong is now the guest of her son-in-law and daughter,

The marriage of Miss Charlotte E. Kime, daughter of Mrs. Cora L. Kime of Howe street, and David Raymond McCullough of Tarentum, was solemnized last Wednesday at 4:45 o'clock in the Kime home. The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, James Kime, was attended by her sister, Miss Arlene Kime, as maid of honor. Glen McCullough was his brother's best man and the flower girl was Bebe Kime, niece of the bride. Miss Virginia Criswell of Pleasant Valley, W. Va., played the wedding march. Mr. and Mrs. McCullough are motoring in the South.

Miss Helen Smith and Miss Elsie Cottrill, of Wilkinsburg, entertained with a bridge luncheon Saturday in Webster Hall in honor of Miss Lillian M. Cargo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Cargo, of Woodlawn avenue, Wilkinsburg, whose marriage to Jesse Reynolds Oakley, of Swissvale, will be solemnized November 23. Four tables were in play.

* * *

Arthur Lubin, of Hollywood, Cal., who spent Friday and Saturday as the guest of his fraternity, Beta Sigma Rho, in Pittsburgh, was entertained at dinner Saturday night by members of the fraternity.

* * *

A benefit card party will be given by Branch No. 211, L. C. B. A., Wednesday night in St. Canice's School hall, Orchard place, Knoxville, for the benefit of the new chapel, which will be dedicated in the future.

PUBLIC MAKES THEATER, CLUB MEMBERS TOLD

"The theater is never better than the public and the public can never get a better theater than it deserves," was remarked by Clayton Hamilton in his talk at the Woman's City Club Saturday. Mr. Hamilton was speaking at a luncheon meeting held jointly by the City Club, the Women's Press Club and the League of American Pen Women. In the absence of Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl, president of the City Club, who was in New York, Miss Suzanne Beatty presided, Mrs. Madeline Young Love and Mrs. Maud Walker Guthrie, the Press and Pen Women's presidents, also acting as hostesses. Mr. Hamilton was introduced by Elmer Kenyon, president of the Pittsburgh Center of the Drama League.

Mr. Hamilton said it seems to be necessary to plead and plead and plead again to the people of culture and taste to go to the theater because the wrong kind of people are going now and the theater is having a preponderance of profane, vulgar, lecherous, blasphemous and obscene plays. Since women make up 85 per cent of theater audiences, Mr. Hamilton pointed out to his hearers, on their shoulders falls the responsibility, as a civic duty and as a duty to posterity, to keep beautiful plays on the boards.

At the quarterly meeting of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters Friday in the Fort Pitt Hotel the speakers will be Miss Charlotte M. Conover, from the National League of Women Voters, who will talk on "Progress in Municipal Administration" and Mrs. L. C. Morgat, who will tell "The Story of the Ballot Boxes." The morning session is called for 10:30 o'clock.

This afternoon, the Twelfth Ward League of Women Voters held its monthly meeting in Kingsley House. The subject for the afternoon was "Political Parties—Their Origin and Principles," with Mrs. Elizabeth Motz as the speaker.

In the Allison School, Wilkinsburg, Mrs. John O. Miller will speak to the teachers of the Wilkinsburg schools tomorrow at 4 o'clock.

Mrs. Motz will discuss "Political Parties—Their Origin and Principles," at the monthly meeting of the Penn Township League tomorrow night in the Thad Stevens School.

The Eighth Ward League will meet in the Athalia Daly Home, Gross street, on Wednesday evening, when Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, chairman of the Allegheny County League, and Mrs. George R. Wallace, a member of the board, will be the speakers.

The Fifteenth Ward League, which has been recently organized, will meet on Thursday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Gallagher, North Elizabeth street.

An afternoon card party will be held by the Tabernacle Society of the Pittsburgh Council of Catholic Women in Oppenheim-Collins auditorium, November 11. Mrs. William H. Postner, chairman, will be assisted by Mrs. W. Y. Taylor, Miss Cecelia Fox, Miss Catherine Griffin, Miss Ellen McCarthy, Miss Rose Flannagan, Mrs. L. M. Puhl, Mrs. Joseph Hartman, Mrs. J. L. Fritsch, Mrs. Mary D. McGinniss, Miss Jane Popp, Mrs. Alice Wilcox.

Many benefit affairs are being planned for the council. Mrs. John H. Roney, Mrs. M. A. Bittner and Mrs. George J. Rudolph will be hostesses at an afternoon card party in the Oppenheim-Collins auditorium, Thursday of this week. A musicale and card party will be held at council house Wednesday evening, November 9, when the program will be given by Mrs. John H. Lauer, Mrs. Thomas J. Carroll, Raymond Steele and Miss Evaline Haley. Mrs. Frank L. Steele, as hostess, will be assisted by Mrs. I. A. Mamaux, Miss Margaret Enright, Mrs. W. Y. Taylor, Mrs. W. P. Tatnall, Miss Mathilda O'Hara, Mrs. Frank Genet, Miss Katherine Griffin, Mrs. J. J. Studeny, Mrs. Clara E. Rodgers and Mrs. Frank G. Burkley will be hostesses at a benefit card party in the home of Mrs. Clara E. Rodgers, Orchard street, Knoxville, Tuesday, November 8, both afternoon and evening. Mrs. E. M. Snyder will be chairman of a card party at the home of Mrs. James F. Dezort, Bradford Woods.

The board of directors of the council will have its monthly meeting at council house, Wednesday, November 9. The business session will be followed by a lecture by Dr. John H. Conover on "The Prevention of Disease."

Next Friday's meeting of Dormont New Century Club will be held in the children's room of Carnegie Library. The business session will be held at 1 and will be followed by an art lecture and a tour of the international art exhibit.

On November 10 Mrs. Harold G. Ewens, second vice president of the club and director of the club choral, will be hostess at a benefit card party in her home. The proceeds will be used to defray musical department expenses.

This year's graduates from the kindergarten department of the Henry Clay Frick Training School were guests of honor Saturday at a luncheon given by the Kindergarten Alumnae Association in the Congress of Clubs. The honors were shared with the graduates by the officers of the Pittsburgh and Allegheny Kindergarten Association. A program was presented by Miss Phyllis Burkholder, Mrs. W. R. Allen and Miss Marion Lane, soloists; Miss Elsie Metz, reader; Miss Clara Bruggeman, solo dancer, and seven girls who gave a doll dance under the direction of Inez Burroughs Hess.

Quota Club members had a surprise at their luncheon in the William Penn Hotel today when as honor guests there were present four international Quota officers, Dr. Mabel H. Palmer, of Davenport, Ia., international president; Miss Ida May Anthony, the international secretary, who is also from Davenport; Miss Adele Emin, of Providence, R. I., the treasurer, and Miss Isa Taylor, of Clarksburg, W. Va., a director. These, with other members of the international board, had been present yesterday at the dedication by the New Castle Quota Club of its Crawford-Oak Ridge Girls' Service Home, an event attended by many Pittsburgh Rotarians.

The first students' book tea of the season will be held at the Y. M. and W. H. A., Bellefield avenue, Thursday afternoon. Elmer Kenyon of the Pittsburgh Center of the Drama League will talk on "Current Plays." There will be a program of vocal selections by Miss Eleanor M. Nevins, accompanied by Miss Sarah Friedman. During the tea hour Mrs. J. Lewis Palley will pour and will be assisted by Florence Shapiro, Harriet Schwartz, Florence Sneidman, Rosalind Cohen, Beatrice Kann, Ralph Goldstein, Albert Schermer, Edward DeSure, Philip Goldberg and Edward Golden.

"Widening Individual Horizons" is the interesting sounding study title which the Woman's Alliance of the First Unitarian Church has chosen for the month of November. Under this general subject there will be three programs on the first three Wednesdays of the month. This week Mrs. Samuel Eliot will speak on "Appreciation of Music;" Mrs. T. J. Worthman will discuss the poems of Edna St. Vincent Millay, and Mrs. Shirley Mason will talk on "Modern American Poetry and Poets." Next week Mrs. J. G. Bonar will have as her subject "The Joy of Beauty," and for the third meeting Mrs. Penelope Redd Jones will speak on the International Art Exhibit and will conduct the members through the galleries. On Thursday and Friday of this week a rummage sale will be conducted by the alliance at 5800 Penn avenue.

The annual ingathering of the Needlework Guild, Allegheny branch, will take place November 4 at the First Presbyterian Church, North Side. There are 20 sections of this branch, from which 42 institutions are the recipients of underclothing and household linens. The total number of articles distributed last year was 5,212.

Under the direction of the Students' Government Association of the college the annual color day exercises will be observed at the Pennsylvania College for Women Thursday morning in the chapel. Miss Mary Louise Succop, president of the juniors, will present the colors to the freshman class. After the exercises the annual song contest will be held. Members of the faculty will be judges and awards will be given for the best composition and the best singing.

An event of interest on the calendar of the Home and Hospital Club will be the dance and card party to be held next Thursday night in the Highland Country Club, the proceeds of which will be used for the club's philanthropic work. Mrs. Edwin Langdon, the chairman, is being assisted by Mrs. S. M. Parks, Mrs. Harry Parker, Mrs. George Morecroft and Mrs. H. M. Reed.

* * *

A fancy costume contest will be one of the features of the Halloween reception and card party which the Nurses' Club of Pittsburgh will give tonight in the William Penn Hotel. There will be dancing until 1 o'clock.

HEBREW ASSOCIATIONS EXTEND ENROLLMENT

Extension of the membership enrollment campaign of the Y. M. and W. H. A. until all prospect cards have been exhausted was agreed upon last night at a workers' dinner in the Morris Kaufmann Memorial auditorium of the Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association, Bellefield avenue. Nearly 800 men and women were guests at the dinner at which it was announced a large number of members had been enrolled into the "Y" organization.

Army of Hunters Set To Invade Woodland

Approximately 20,000 hunters will take the field in Allegheny and surrounding counties tomorrow morning as the small game season opens. Rabbits, grouse, quail and woodcock will be the quarry of the nimrods. Rabbits are said to be plentiful.

The raising of the hunting license fee from $1 to $2 has not limited the number of hunters, the first estimates of the number of licenses issued indicates. About 15,000 hunters had been licensed in this county on Saturday it was estimated and that number probably would be doubled.

A "tip" to hunters is contained in the following announcement of C. H. Roth, secretary of the Pittsburgh Motor Club.

"It has been learned by the Pittsburgh Motor Club that grouse, pheasants and quail are very plentiful in this state, especially in the southeastern and southwestern parts of Monroe county, and extending along the valley of the Pocono Creek to the Pocono range. The approximate distance from Pittsburgh to Monroe county is 225 miles, and the drive can be made over splendid roads.

"The route from this city is as follows: Take the Lincoln highway, Route No. 1, to Chambersburg, turn left on No. 12 to Harrisburg, go north along the Susquehanna River on Road No. 4 and No. 14 to Millersburg, turn right on No. 23 through Pottsville and Tamaqua to Stroudsburg, turn left on No. 2 to Mt. Pocono."

The Big Difference—REAL CREAM

Here is not merely a "creamed" or "thickened" soup, but a real cream soup made with plenty of real cream—the kind you would use in your own finest cooking.

It also combines the savory goodness of vine-ripened, garden-fresh tomatoes and the tempting spiciness of skillful seasoning. That's the happy combination you get in every spoonful of Heinz Cream of Tomato Soup.

So, for Cream of Tomato Soup, rich with real cream, be sure to ask your grocer for Heinz • • The taste is the test.

Whereas A Girl Risks Her All To Get A Rich Society Husband

IT NEVER PAYS

by Gilbert Rogers

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

MARGIE MARSH comes to New York with a thousand dollars and a wonderful education. She keeps house with four other girls, learns stenography and decides after three years to marry. She fails to find her ideal, and Dan Shevlin, a shrewd man of the world, offers to introduce her into smart society through a Mrs. Brooke, provided Margie will give him some security. This security consists of a note which he dictates and Margie recklessly signs, to the effect that she loves him and will never regret the six months she has spent with him. Through Mrs. Brooke she buys wonderful clothes which Shevlin pays for. Mrs. Brooke opens her cottage in Newport and Margie meets her brother, Mark Trelaw, a cripple. She goes for a swim, climbs up an ugly little sail boat and comes face to face with Jerry Evesham, a most attractive young man who takes it for granted that she is very wealthy. Margie scores a success with rich Tubby Wells, and discovers he is secretly married. This information proves of great interest to Shevlin. Margie wishes she had never given him that compromising letter. She overhears Mrs. Brooke talking to Shevlin and has a vague feeling that she has gotten herself into evil company. Mrs. Brooke confesses that she is in Shevlin's power and Tubby Wells invites Margie on board his yacht. She goes in her bathing suit; he makes violent love to her and to escape him she dives off the boat, realizes she cannot reach shore and is rescued by Jerry.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"I THINK your aunt ought to give you a million or two."

"Well, it's her money. Besides I guess she needs it. Social climbing comes high." He squinted at the sun. "Grub—let's eat! Listen, I'll take you home on that ship of mine whenever you say so, but don't say so yet. Can you stick it out here longer? I haven't enjoyed myself like this for—well, I've never enjoyed myself like this!"

He rowed out to his boat again and came back not as quickly as before, and Margie waited and thought and felt that she, too, was queerly, deeply happy. But she didn't want to find out why. It might spoil it all to find out why.

Her strength, with the swift rallying of youth, was hers again. And her chill had been effectually banished. She stood up watching his row-boat. He dumped out things on the sand.

"Ship's pretty well stocked. We won't be so badly off. I caught a fish this morning, too. Can you cook?"

"Can I? Oh, isn't this fun?"

"Look out! There goes the cocoa in the water."

"You did it. Don't blame me."

"I know, but I was looking at you."

"Well, that isn't my fault."

"It is. No girl has a right to be so pretty." Silence, a long silence, Jerry still looking at her. Being pretty—that was wonderful, but it didn't matter if you were or not, if—if somebody you liked thought you were.

The fire was driftwood, pungent and aromatic and cleverly arranged so that the smoke didn't get into one's eyes. The cheese got a bit soft, and even tried to run. Also toast was a total loss. But—Margie would remember that meal when she had forgotten all others.

They explored the island afterwards and were astonished to see the light fading from the sky. The sunset was a glow of soft colors and a sad hush hung over earth and sky. He stood beside her, and all at once, quite naturally his arm slipped around her. A little tremor ran through her, but she did not move, did not move until he had turned her towards him and set his lips against hers. So for a moment they stood silent in each others' arms.

Then he released her. "I didn't mean to do that," he said angrily, almost somberly.

She was hurt. He had spoiled the thing, broken the moment of delicacy and surrender, with a banal scruple, a misunderstanding. Did he think this kiss just any kiss—how could he be so stupid? Her eyes were smouldering.

"Oh, perhaps—perhaps you'll get over it," she said quickly, trying hard to be light, careless, worldly.

"I didn't mean that. I mean—you're the most beautiful and charming girl I've ever seen, and I want to know you and know you and know you. But I can't. How can I let myself be mad about you when I haven't got a nickel and you—"

She smiled a little then. "What makes you think I'm wealthy?"

"I've got eyes, haven't I? And you're used to things. And I'd only make myself miserable knowing you better because—because even if I could ever make you care for me—I've nothing to offer, no luxuries. And I shouldn't want to be—to be a kind of appendage, to be supported."

"That is a shame." Margie still smarted from her first reaction. She was torn by the desire to give way utterly, to face him, tell him she didn't have a nickel either and she didn't care, but she couldn't tell him that. She couldn't explain that, not yet. And in her hurt pride and confusion, she became perverse, saying things with a lightness that insulted the depth of her own warm feelings.

"Really? . . . You're unusual, aren't you? What a pity we can't see each other any more in that case . . . For I have enjoyed myself. Still, we ought to be going home."

He nodded without speaking. Across her shoulder, as they rowed out, she watched the charred embers of the fire sending its faint smoke up in the soft, summer evening. The dingy boat fortunately made conversation impossible, for above its rattling engines only a shriek could have been heard. So, too, was the ancient Ford which he helped her into at the wharf when they were back. But though it shook as if it might come to pieces, and Margie sat straight and high in the air, it was an enchanted car to her, driving through an enchanted twilight.

She knew what had happened to her now. She knew she was in love. And at the door Jerry came out of his trance.

"See here, I'll try to make some money somehow! Anyway, I'll call you up tomorrow. Will you be in at 10?"

Would she be in at 10? Would the sun come up or the earth go on rotating on its axis!

CHAPTER XV.

SHE went into the house as if she had become a different person. She reflected that she had never wanted anyone before, and now—she did not want anyone else.

Mrs. Brooke met her half way down the Colonial hall, and with an exclamation of surprise at her costume, hurried her up to dress. It was late, and where had she been? But Margie couldn't have answered. She couldn't have made things clear. She couldn't say, "I've been on a yacht and jumped overboard and spent the day with a man I met accidentally, and cooked lunch on a beach, and he kissed me, and I love him." That would be impossible. Fortunately Mrs. Brooke did not wait to have her question answered, before she plunged into a recital of her own activities. "Busy!—really scrubbing floors would be easier work . . . shopping all morning . . . they say Mrs. Culver . . . anyway I know she doesn't pay her bridge debts . . . then they insisted that I play nine holes. . ."

She broke off suddenly to turn to the window, set in the landing, then swung back with a disappointed face.

"Dan's coming tonight," she said in another voice. "I had a phone message while I was out."

Margie was moved to sudden new sympathy. She understood, oh she understood now! She could imagine following Jerry Evesham anywheres, doing anything just to see him, having no life of her own, caring for him, never caring for anyone or anything else. Why, if Jerry were bad to her, she'd still go on loving him! She knew that now. And Mrs. Brooke did not seem weak to her any longer. She couldn't help loving Dan Shevlin. That was her misery—and her happiness.

"Darling, your eyes are shining. Why you're growing simply stunning! Will you explain to me why I'm not so hideously jealous of you that I hate you like poison?"

Carlotta Brooks' arm slipped affectionately around Margie's shoulder. "And now do hurry! I'll go away so as not to bother you. Dan may be here at any moment, and he does loathe being kept waiting when he's hungry."

Margie had turned on the hot water tap, ferreted out a powder puff, and scampered into the first dress that her hand fell on. But when she came flying downstairs again, Dan Shevlin hadn't arrived, and at last Mrs. Brooke reluctantly gave up waiting.

"I suppose we'd better begin without him. There's no telling . . . You don't suppose something has happened to him?"

The candlelight flooded the long table with a soft radiance, making more beautiful still the old silver service, the Spode china, the lace and crystal and the bowl of drooping roses. But Mrs. Brooke was silent now, and Margie was glad. She wanted to think. She wanted to remember how he had looked and what he had said. She touched her waist gently. His arm had held her tight there . . . she found herself lost in a kind of trance.

Life looked serious now, full of serious problems, stretching in a vast blankness before her, but it was life. It wasn't make-believe either! And she was going to hear from Jerry at 10 tomor-

STORM BREAKS VIOLENTLY ABOUT WILSON

Life and Letters of War President

After His Apparent Victory in His Quad Fight at Princeton, Determined And Bitter Opposition Arises

The rise of the "battle" for establishment of the quad system at Princeton was told in yesterday's installment of "The Life and Letters of Woodrow Wilson" in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. Not only were the clubs opposed to the unifying of the college community as Wilson desired, but opposition developed among influential men whose chief concern at the time was organization of the graduate college that had been decided upon. They—among them Dean West and Grover Cleveland—feared that the quad project would defer establishment of the graduate college, if it did not kill that enterprise.

By RAY STANNARD BAKER

Wilson's Quad Struggle

WILSON'S quad plans reached a decisive stage at the committee meeting of the board of trustees June 10, 1907. It was altogether an unusual meeting, prompted, no doubt, by the weighty matters then agitating the university. Twenty-five out of the 27 trustees were in attendance.

President Wilson presented the report of the committee on social re-organiaztion. He had worked it out with studious care, on his own typewriter, and had corrected it in his own hand. It had been discussed by the committeemen and had their general approval.

Wilson was in excellent form. Now 50 years old, he was at the height of his powers. His prestige in the university and with his board of trustees was extraordinary. Scarcely any college president in the United States occupied quite such a place of distinction as he. He had not only made a notable record as an author, as a speaker, as an educational innovator, but he had been seriously suggested as a candidate for President of the United States. He had the vast authority of success. Up to that time he had never known failure in any major endeavor.

As he looked about him at the members of the board it was upon a company of men who trusted him, who were devoted to him.

The report completed and reinforced the statement he had made in the previous December. "A vital, spontaneous intellectual life" was the supreme purpose of the university. Great strides had been made by the introduction of the preceptorial system—the "greatest strategic move in that direction that has been made in the whole history of American universities"—but progress was likely to be "checked or even nullified by hostile or unfavorable influences"—in short, "by a university life that severs the social from the intellectual interests of the place, and does not, with its scattered clubs and divided classes, make us up into a community even on the social side."

Wilson Seems Victorious

Exactly what happened in the board meeting has been hotly disputed and variously represented. All the trustees except one voted in favor of "something," and the president understood them to vote exactly in the words of the resolution, that he be authorized to proceed with the maturing of his plans and to seek the co-operation of the clubs in its elaboration.

With a vote of 24 trustees favoring his general plan—including Grover Cleveland, who had earlier expressed his doubts, and M. Taylor Pyne, who—as later to be a bitter opponent—to one against it, he assuredly had warrant to go ahead. Several of the trustees, we know, were heart and soul with him from the beginning.

In a letter two days later David B. Jones said:

"The issue has been fully and clearly stated, and when the report and your statement are printed the clubmen can exercise their teeth upon them and will find more comfort in gnawing at a file than in attempting to bolster up the present social organization of the university. After your comments upon the report, I was most impressed by the very brief and simple statement which Mr. Pyne made. Coming from him, with his long and intimate knowledge of the situation and his close and personal relations to it, it was overwhelmingly impressive and pathetic to a degree. It showed great courage and strength in a great emergency and it gave me a new insight into the man's real character."

Certainly all of these men believed that the action which the board had taken was an indorsement of the essential idea and purpose of the president's plans. Moreover, there is no evidence in the record or in the correspondence of the time that any of the trustees, except perhaps Cleveland, thought that Wilson's plan in any way interfered with the graduate college proposals or that there was any "agreement" that the graduate college should have the right of way to the exclusion of all other projects.

An Exciting Time

Indeed, at this very meeting, Cleveland not only voted with the others regarding Wilson's proposals, but, as chairman of the graduate college committee, discussed architects for the proposed building, but reported that there had been no decision on questions of site and plans because of the "variety of contingencies and circumstances to be weighed."

Wilson went forward eagerly with his plans. It was commencement time at Princeton and he had the opportunity of talking to student and alumni groups. The proposals were not only interesting; they were exciting. They were shocking! At all the club gatherings and banquets they were the sole subject of discussion. What did they mean? How would they effect university life?

He was not attempting to abolish the clubs, but to transform them into a more closely built and useful part of the university. He said:

"Moreover, I should hope that it would be borne in mind that this scheme of social and academic coordination, which present conditions in the university seem to render imperatively necessary is not a plan to prevent club life in Princeton. Club life is based upon social instincts and principles which it would be impossible to eradicate. But these natural instincts and tendencies would, under the new order of things, undoubtedly express themselves in a different way, a much better way than at present."

Wilson was plainly much pleased after commencement with the first reaction toward his plans.

"We have a great task before us," he wrote to Cyrus H. McCormick, "but fortunately everybody who knows the facts is convinced of its necessity, and throughout commencement I have had the most gratifying indications that the alumni will lend us their support in the most loyal way; that all we have to do is to be frank with them in order to carry them with us in a body."

The Storm Breaks

But his satisfaction was short-lived. "The Princeton Alumni Weekly" for June 12 contained the committee report to the trustees, Wilson's own address and his statement to the clubs, and as it circulated throughout the country, as students, alumni and faculty began to study the proposals, the storm broke.

As early as the first of July Wilson recognized that it was to be a fight to a finish. He wrote to Dr. Jacobus:

"The fight for the quads is on very merrily, and must now be seen through to a finish. I think that in the long run it will be taken soberly and judiciously, though now there is a great deal of wild talk, and amidst the wild talk scores of particulars come to life which show that the situation is even worse than I had supposed and that the remedy is absolutely imperative."

Wilson was not the man to hesitate, cringe and doubt when opposition came. His convictions on large principles were formed only after he had matured them deliberately in his own mind and was convinced they were right. Once formed they were fixed. "They seemed to have for him the authority of objective, unquestioned truths. It was apparently impossible for him to make allowance for the elements of doubt and uncertainty in the convictions of men in general." Opposition was a challenge to battle, to be waged with all the doggedness and zest of his Covenanter forbears.

In the beginning Wilson had believed that the initiation of the changes he had suggested would be relatively inexpensive—the "conversion of the clubs"—but as opposition developed he saw that the university would itself have to begin at once to construct some of the quadrangles, and he lost no time in seeking money for that purpose. On July 1 we find him asking Cleveland Dodge for a letter to Mrs. Russell Sage:

"I want to ask her for money to carry out our new schemes. I am more deeply convinced every day that those plans must be carried out at once. In the agitation created by the new proposals, things come to the surface every day which confirm me in my belief that time is the only remedy not only, but also reveal in a new and extraordinary way the degree to which the clubs have taken precedence over the university in the thoughts and affections of our recent graduates."

A National Problem

Authorities outside of Princeton circles, whom he respected, tended to confirm him strongly in his resolution to proceed. He felt that in solving a Princeton problem he was solving a national problem! When at Harvard in June to deliver an address, Wilson found the leaders deeply interested and warmly congratulatory.

"If you do it, we must; and we ought all long ago to have done it," they told him. He learned that President Van Hise at the University of Wisconsin was about to put a similar plan into operation and had received a grant of $100,000 a year for the purpose.

But some even of Wilson's closest friends, Cleveland H. Dodge for example, were doubtful about pushing the plan too rapidly.

No one could have been more devoted to Wilson than Cleveland H. Dodge. He had been a classmate at Princeton, and he loved the man and his ideals with a loyalty that was life long. The origins of the men were widely different. Dodge was born to wealth and position; he was conservative minded, but his passion for human welfare and human progress was not less ardent than that of Wilson. He was full of kindness, thoughtfulness, generosity.

Wilson regarded Dodge's unflagging support as one of his greatest treasures of friendship.

While Dodge was warmly sympathetic with Wilson's quad proposals, he was a calmer and more cautious man. He wrote:

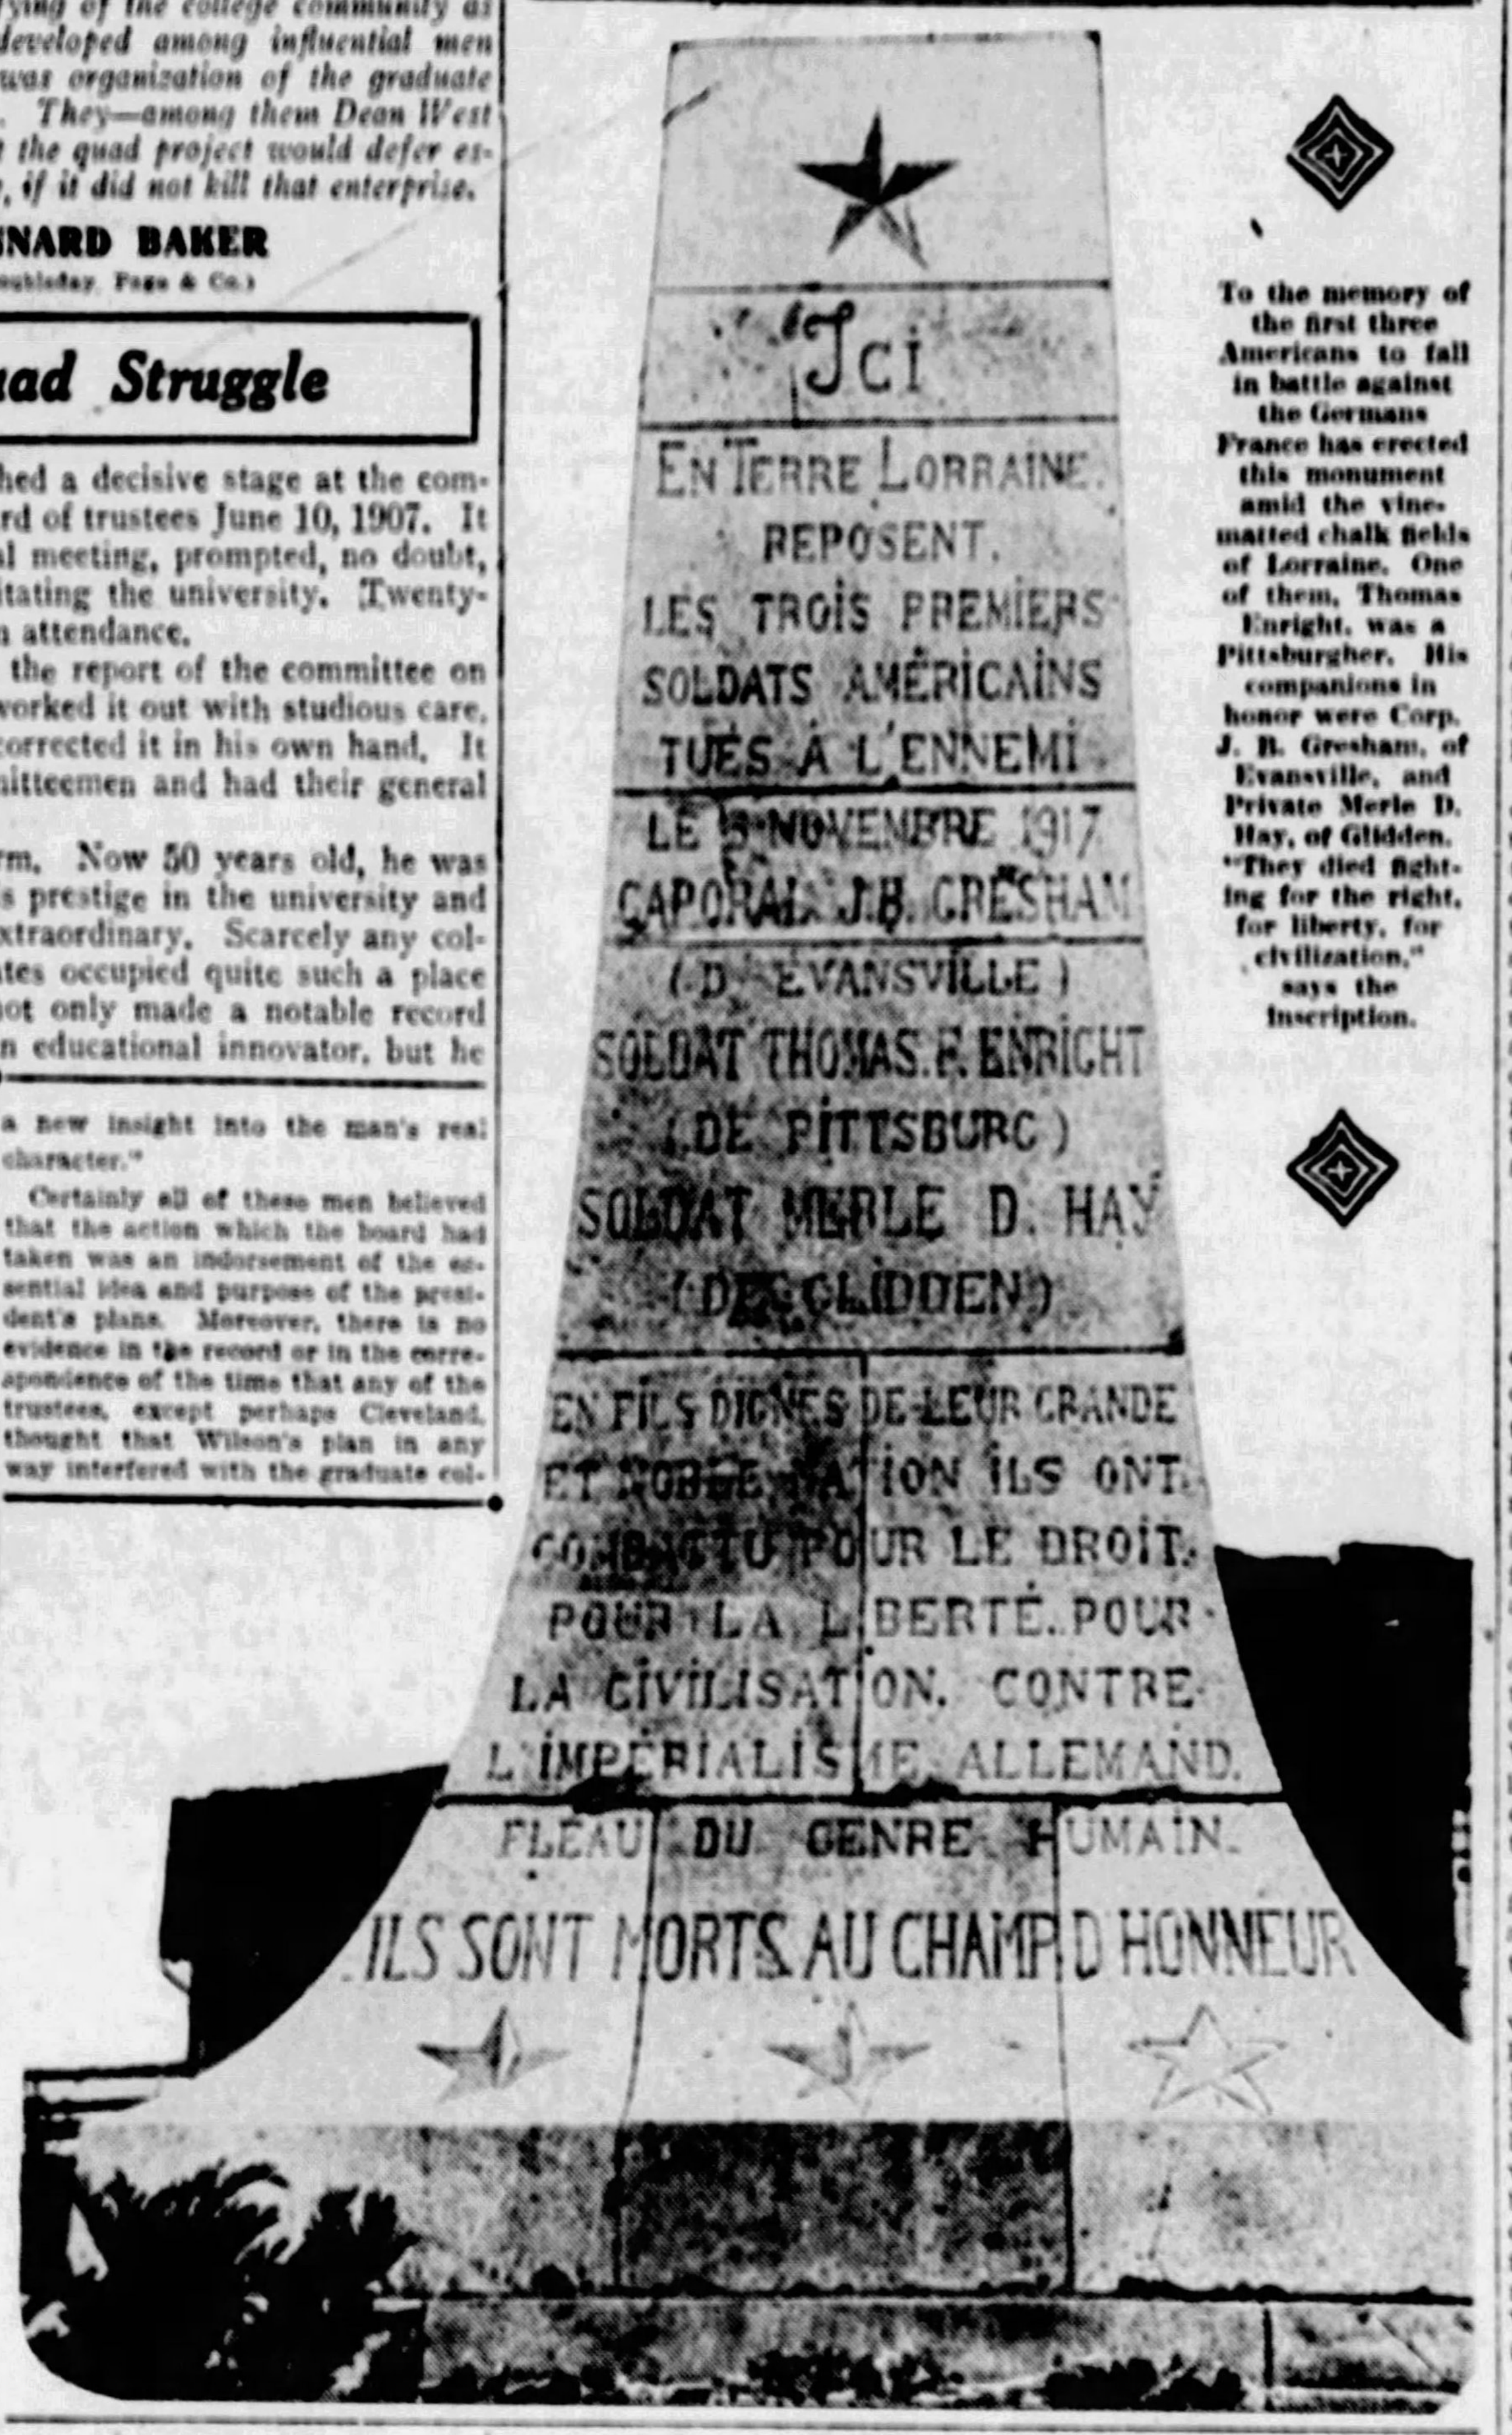
"I feel very strongly, as you do, about the necessity of carrying through your plans, but I think we both agree that, if we can do it by evolutionary methods rather than by revolutionary methods, it will be better."

Wilson responded immediately, on July 3, 1907:

"You may be sure that I believe in evolutionary processes, but money will lubricate the evolution as nothing will. Indeed, as I look forward to the execution of the scheme, there is nothing but the financial side of it that gives me uneasiness. Everything else, I am sure, will work out as we desire it to work out, after the excitement has passed off and everybody has had his say."

The fight between Woodrow Wilson and Dean Andrew F. West will be followed in tomorrow's chapter. The Princeton battle reaches great violence.

TO THE FIRST TO FALL



To the memory of the first three Americans to fall in battle against the Germans France has erected this monument amid the vine-matted chalk fields of Lorraine. One of them, Thomas Enright, was a Pittsburgher. His companions in honor were Corp. J. B. Gresham, of Evansville, and Private Merle D. Hay, of Glidden. "They died fighting for the right, for liberty, for civilization," says the inscription.

Radical Dies

MAXIMILIAN HARDEN

The famous German radical, Maximilian Harden, one of the foremost Teuton writers and publicists, whose fearlessness in exposing failings of the monarchy was greatly instrumental in establishing the present republic, died in Switzerland last night.

HARDEN, ENEMY OF KAISER, DIES AT 66

BERLIN, Oct. 21. — Maximilian Harden, famous German publicist and writer, died last night at Montanovernala, Switzerland. He was born in Berlin in 1861. His most conspicuous work was his exposure of the "round table" scandals which shocked the world about 15 years ago, leading to the exile by the kaiser of members of many powerful German families.

Harden, in his famous organ, Die Zukunft, directed a crusade against what he termed "Babylonian vice," and his attacks enlisted the support of the whole German people, forcing the kaiser and the government to abolish this vicious organization and inflict drastic punishment on the ringleaders.

After the German debacle in 1918 Harden called for the abolition of the German empire. His assaults upon the kaiser as the evil genius of the country aided in the founding of the German republic.

In one of his broadsides, he declared "We started the war with a dirty trick, and now sit upon the ruins of 30 years of Hohenzollern politics."

He denounced Von Tirpitz's submarine warfare as responsible for America's entrance into the war, insuring Germany's defeat.

Harden was the author of several important works on the German merchant marine and the development of German industries and, while an extreme radical, was regarded by his countrymen as a great force for good.

Maximilian Harden was born a Jew, Isidor Witkowski, in Berlin, October 20, 1861. As a youth he changed his name and religion, adopting the Christian faith.

row morning. How many hours was that to wait?

How good-looking he was! She thought of Ruth Irving with her glasses and Ruth Irving's tall, taciturn, bald-headed beau, back in New York. Was it possible that Ruth Irving shared with her this unbelievable feeling of sheer goodness and joy, this glowing thing that made her heart warm? It did not really seem possible, and yet perhaps she wasn't the only person in the world who had ever loved. Only no one had ever loved quite so much . . .

"Lord, we're cheerful! I need a cigaret. As soon as no man is present, two women can be dull as dull."

"Oh, I'm not feeling dull. I'm just . . . thinking."

"About what, Margie?"

"About being poor. Do you know, I don't think I should mind if I were poor, always poor—I mean if I liked someone a lot."

"That's the sort of thing you can believe in a Paquin gown after a Sherry luncheon as you step into your imported town-car. The reality—ugh!"

"Oh, I know . . . but it might even be fun sometimes," Margie protested wistfullyy. "You know you could be happy somewheres, in the country maybe, or even in a couple of tiny rooms in the city. I think if—if you were in love with a man, it would make you love him all the more, sharing things with him like that, hardships, I mean, and showing him you didn't mind."

Mrs. Brooke sighed. "Don't! You make me feel like a hundred. To think I once would have agreed with you. But it's so far back, it only makes me realize how old I am."

"I wouldn't be surprised if you agreed with me now."

A half wistful smile touched the corners of Mrs. Brooke's mouth for one fading moment. "I shouldn't be surprised," she echoed. But her eyes went to the window again. "You don't really suppose something has happened to Dan?"

"Oh, of course not. Why should it?"

"He's such a reckless driver. Crazy, when he gets behind a wheel."

"He's probably just detained."

"What could detain him? Oh, just some woman or other—somebody, I suppose that's it, don't you?"

She asked the question in a conversational manner, but Margie noticed that her hand was trembling.

"Of course not!" she asserted loyally. "That's the last thing—you're just saying that—"

The sound of a car on the drive under the trees came sharply, suddenly close. There was a moment's delay, then faintly the peal of the doorbell. Mrs. Brooke bit her lip, as Dan Shevlin walked in.

"Thought you weren't coming," she half drawled. "Oh, dear, I'm so tired." She looked bored, but as her eyes scrutinized Shevlin's face, her pretense failed wretchedly. And Shevlin's grin seemed to proclaim that he, too, saw through it.

"I'm starving," he announced. "Mind if I sit down—like this?" He sat down as he spoke, and turned his hard gaze on Margie. "How's the hothouse beauty—artificially raised—transplanted and all that? Incidentally, I've picked the wealthy husband for you, little one. He's due up here next week—wonder why I hadn't thought of him before. Tubby Wells?—why he can hire Tubby Wells as a valet if he wants. Ever hear of Adrian Martin?"

But Margie was staring at him, with a sick feeling of dismay welling up in her. She had forgotten why she was here! She had forgotten her promise, her bargain. For the first time it dawned on her that having come to the social colony for the avowed purpose of marrying a millionaire, she had promptly fallen in love with a pauper.

She looked at Dan Shevlin, a little white of face. She'd have to tell him somehow, beg him to let her off, promise to pay back some future day for her precious fling. But—was it going to be so easy? Margie felt a sense of something like utter foreboding.

CHAPTER XVI.

DAN SHEVLIN starting at her with his luminous eyes across that table of crystal and flowers . . . and Mrs. Brooke, interested, frowning a little.

Margie's heart felt sick. She would have to tell them, she would have to tell Shevlin that she couldn't go through with her bargain.

This Adrian Martin, all the other Adrian Martins, didn't matter now. Life began and ended only with Jerry Evesham.

"Am I crazy?" she half whispered to herself. "I ought to know better. You don't just fall in love with one man—you fall in love with lots of men, and out again!" But what chance had reasoning, observation, knowledge, against the surety of this emotion that possessed her now—this feeling that if Jerry Evesham should die, she would die, too?

To Be Continued.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Tuesday, November 1

Virtue is the Golden Mean Between Two Opposite Vices.—
ARISTOTLE.

WITH the ever gracious and loving Venus ruling this day, and supported by the magnanimous Jupiter, versatile Mercury and precipitous Uranus, this may prove to be a memorable and happy day. The activities may center on heart and home affairs, with social, artistic and affectional interests uppermost. But affairs of every nature should prosper and be pleasant, bringing happy change.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a pleasant and prosperous year, with domestic, social and affectional affiliations occupying the predominant place in the activities. Affairs generally should thrive and bring happiness. A child born on this day may be splendidly equipped for a notable career, with pleasant and thriving conditions crowning its many virtues and good graces.

Notable Nativity: Maud Adams, actress.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

THESE MODERN LOVERS

A WOMAN is never over thirty in the eyes of a man who loves her.

No matter what a man's reputation as a Don Juan may be, every new girl fancies that she is the Christopher Columbus who has discovered his "real heart" at last.

* * *

You can get a "used car" that is almost like new; but most of the masculine hearts you get these days have run so many miles that their batteries are all worn out and apt to "go dead" after the first few kisses.

HELEN ROWLAND

You never can convince a woman in love that she is making a fool of herself any more than you can convince an intoxicated man that he is making a spectacle of himself.

A sweetheart is always more beautiful than a wife; because a man looks at a woman before marriage through the rose colored glasses of imagination; after marriage he scrutinizes her through the magnifying glass of cold judgment.

A lover's promises are like the weather reports. You can't put much reliance in them; but no matter how often they fool you it doesn't prevent you from listening to them just as hopefully next time.

* * *

When a man begins talking cynically about women, you may safely conclude that some ONE woman has just tweaked his vanity or punctured his illusions about himself.

The sad thing about looking for flaws in the man you love is that you will always FIND them—but you'll go right on loving him just the same.

* * *

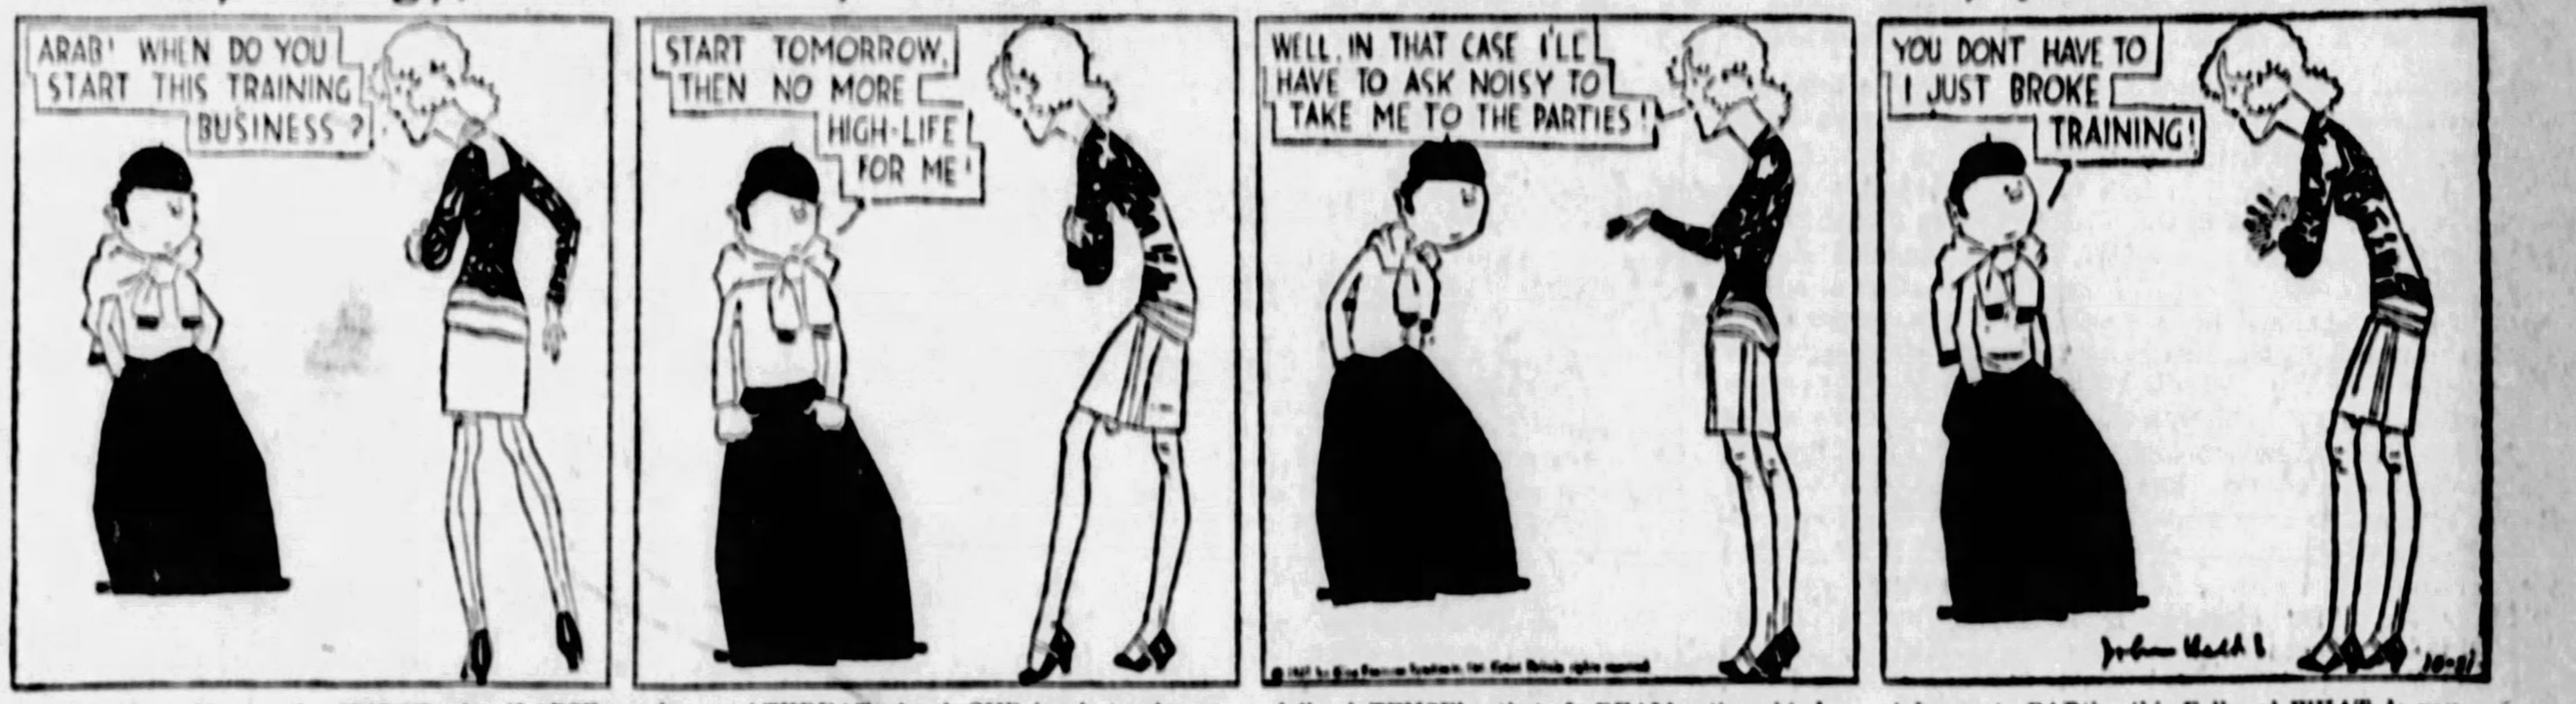
Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Story by Lloyd Mayer

By John Held, Jr.



ARAB! WHEN DO YOU START THIS TRAINING BUSINESS?
START TOMORROW, THEN NO MORE HIGH-LIFE FOR ME!
WELL, IN THAT CASE I'LL HAVE TO ASK NOISY TO TAKE ME TO THE PARTIES!
YOU DONT HAVE TO I JUST BROKE TRAINING!
John Held Jr.

"My dear, I'm on the VERGE of colLAPSE—I mean I ACtually AM, because this obNOXious ARab person HONestly has me WHIPPED down to a NUB at this point, no less! I mean he has been sort of giving me these FOOTball FIGHT talk effects for DAYS, my dear, and THREATening luGUBriously to give up CHOC'late nut SUNdaes on account of going into TRAINing and all—can you BEAR it, my dear? Well, ANYways, I actually began to be TOO imPRESSED about the idea because I mean he has sort of CONsecrating on it so awfully inTENSEly that I REALly thought he MEANT what he said about giving up PARties and things and sort of TRAINing Violently at this point. But, my dear, I give you my WORD, I NEARly had hysTERics because you see when I sort of CASurally ASKED, I inCINerated that in THAT case I'd have to depend on NOIsy to take me to PARties this Fall and WHAT do you s'pose the odd soul SAID, my dear? I mean it was SIMply SCREAMing because he said that arrangement would be QUITE unNECessary because he had just broke TRAINing! ACtually, my dear, I think it's the FUNniest thing I've ever HEARD of—I mean I ACtually DO!"

Stage-Struck and Nagged - By ELSIE MARLOWE

MARYLYNN wants to be an actress. No, she has never acted, and she doesn't know whether she can act; but she has a pretty face. "Isn't that enough?" asks Marylynn.

DEAR ELSIE:

I wish you would tell me something.

I want to go on the stage. I have just finished High School and I'll soon be 19. I will have to train to do something to earn my living. Mother and Dad want to put me through the Teachers' College, but I'm simply crazy to go on the stage.

I'm not boasting that I have any particular ability or talent. To tell you the truth I have never been asked to take part in any of the school theatricals, but everyone agrees that I am very pretty. What do you think, Elsie? Would you advise me to go to college when I'm so crazy to be an actress? MARYLYNN.

Give yourself a couple of hard pinches and come to, Marylynn. A pretty face alone never made a good actress. If all you have to offer as a qualification for the footlights is beauty, take Dad's tip and train for the schoolroom. You'll be sure of three square meals a day, at least.

Acting is like any other career. It takes a special talent or ability in the acting profession to put it over. Just as a special talent in writing makes an author, or a special talent in painting makes an artist, so a special talent in acting makes the actress. A pretty face may help, but it's beauty PLUS which makes footlight fame. You will need, besides an ability to act, the strength and courage to put in long hard hours of grilling physical and mental effort. You will need a good voice, a graceful carriage, a gracious poise. Doesn't sound so easy now, does it? But if you haven't all these qualities you'll be a sad flop as an actress.

So come out of your dream, little sister. You're not a youngster playing around. You're a grown woman planning how best to earn her living in a world that's ready to give you a run for your money no matter what kind of a job you pick. And it's a cinch, Marylynn, that the fellow who picks the job for which he is best suited is going to have the easiest time landing.

Take an inventory of yourself. Find out what your assets are. Then set yourself to train for your particular niche in the big market of service. And when you're giving yourself the once over, discount that pretty face, Marylynn. For the world is full of pretty faces, but they can't be used to pay the rent and buy a new hat.

Fanny's next.

She "can't stand nagging," so she's going to run away, out into the great wide world where she can be her own boss, and where there won't be any interference or criticism.

What a big surprise our little Pal is going to have if she really does it!

DEAR ELSIE:

Just another victim of "too much familyitis" broadcasting. As far back as I can remember I have planned to run away from home by the time I became sixteen. It's the nagging that gets me. There's a tension in the air and I'll feel relieved when I get out. The fact that I'm given food and a place to sleep is continually thrown up to my face. Of course, no other parents feed their children.

I realize that running away is no delightful game. I'd have to work hard and save and be lonely at times, but I can't stand the nagging from morning till night and the continual suspicion over every move I make. Elsie, is it hard for a girl to get along in the world? Should I leave home? FANNY.

So you don't like "nagging," honey. Then you're out of luck. For you'll have to face nagging all the days of your life. And meddling and bossing and suspicions, too.

That's life, little girl. Nobody lives alone in this crowded world. Our lives overlap and fit into each other like the bits of a picture puzzle. The older you grow, the more you will depend on other people and the more they will depend on you. You'll never be free. You'll never be able to do what you'd like best to do. You'll always have to take orders and stand criticism.

For, though you may run away from mother and dad, you can't run away from the Big Human Family to which we all belong. And the nagging you get now in your little family will seem very precious and tender when you look back at it in the hard years to come.

Do try to be patient, dear. Try to look beneath the cross, unfair words to the loving hearts beneath. Try to understand how hard life is sometimes for those around you and how much they need the help and sympathy you forget to give. If you do that, I suspect that the nagging will begin to fade away like a bad dream.

Notes

The drawing contains many notes—full notes (white circles); half notes (white circles with staff); quarter notes (black with staffs); one-eighth notes (with one flag on the staff) and one-sixteenth notes (with two flags).

Which type of note is most frequent in the drawing? Look them all over and make your guess within 20 seconds.

Saturday's Teaser

To pick triangles is exceptional; squares, very good; circles, good; diamonds, average; crosses, fair.

Reigning on Rainy Days

The smartest now brown silk umbrellas have gnarled handles of genuine Chinese bamboo, in a mottled treatment of brown and tan tones. As brown is the reigning color in fall fashions, stylish umbrellas must appear in tones to blend with the costumes with which they are carried.

Paste the Tear

A small tear in a skirt, coat or other garment can often be repaired very neatly by the use of a small piece of adhesive tape placed at the back.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

HARD WATER PLUS MELO MAKES SOFT WATER

You can see through these windows!

THEY'RE clean! And why shouldn't they be? They were washed in soft water. Hard water wouldn't clean them. Hard water would combine with soap to form a greasy ring around the basin. And hard water would streak and smear the windows.

You do want spotless windows. No streaks, or smears, or blurs. Soft water will take care of that. Hard water plus Melo makes soft water. Soft water will clean windows easily. Do you know Melo? Get a can today at your grocer's.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By Adele Garrison

Mary Buckles on Her Armor for the Love Lists

I HURRIED to my bedroom door and opened it at Mary Harrison's soft call. Her hail was a welcome diversion to me. I had puzzled enough over the problem presented by Dicky's remarks concerning our widely divergent yet equally mysterious neighbors, the Lincolns, who had just taken possession of that stately old estate, The Larches, and the two men who were occupying the Grimsey shack at the rear of the farm.

I guessed, however, that Mary's errand was connected with only one member of the Lincoln family, and that member the one who occupied the most prominent place in my own thoughts. Eleanor Lincoln's open ogling for Noel Veritzen's attention patently had piqued the attention and aroused the antagonism of Dicky's lovely young niece, and as I threw open my door and admitted her, I knew that I would have an enjoyable and amusing interview. Mary is not only direct in her treatment of any problem which arises before her, but her methods are picturesque as well.

"Am I disturbing you, Auntie Madge?" she asked with pretty deference as she came in, then broke into tempestuous exclamation.

"I can't help it if I am," she cried. "I've simply got to talk to you."

"You couldn't disturb me, dear," I said smiling, and drawing forward a chair for her. "Sit down and unburden your mind. What's on it?"

"That darned cat up at The Larches," she returned. "Did you see the dead set she made at Noel, and at Uncle Dicky, too, for that matter? She evidently thinks herself a regular vamp. And she had it all planned to have Noel take lunch there every day. My word! but she's a fast worker, that dame."

I choked into my handkerchief, trying to pass my mirth off as a cough, but failing miserably. Mary fixed me with her bright eyes, then grinned widely.

"Go on, laugh," she said, and promptly I availed myself of her permission. After a second of indecision she joined me heartily.

"But she's got several more thinks coming, that oriole," she said after a little. "If she thinks I'm going to play Puss in a Corner while she walks off with Noel, she'll mighty soon find out her mistake."

I shot a fleeting wondering glance at her, contrasting her open declaration of war with the way a typical girl would have acted had she seen a young man of her train ogled for by some other girl. The first move of that nineteenth century girl would have been to try to convince everybody that she had no interest whatever in the young man in question.

A generation or two farther back and a young woman would have retired from the world and "gone into a decline," if she had faced the possibility of losing the young man she loved. The present-day girls throw down the gage of battle tragically or humorously as their temperaments dictate.

I put out a tentative little feeler tipped ever so slightly with amused malice.

"I didn't know you were so interested in Noel, Mary," I said.

She put her head on one side, reminding me rather forcibly of a saucy robin.

"I'm not mad about him, if that's what you mean," she said. "I haven't any plans to Charleston him to the altar, or even to annex him as a permanent sweetie. But I've played around with him more than I ever did with anybody else, and no long, lean, lank lady from the Land of Nowhere is going to grab him away from me unless I hand him over to her myself on a silver salver, with a card attached reading 'Compliments of the Season.'"

"As I take it," I commented, with twitching lips, "you have no intention of preparing Miss Lincoln a salver like that very soon."

"You can say your prayers on that, Auntie, darling," she retorted flippantly. Then she struck a more sober note.

"I wouldn't care if she'd only understand the lad," she said. "But nobody understands Noel except me."

Smart Girdles

Gypsy girdles are girlish in the slim effect they import to the figure they swathe. Wrapped twice about the hips, such a girdle is made of very wide and supple ribbon, which is often matched, in a narrower width, for an accompanying shoulder bow. Velvet or metallic brocade ribbon is equally smart.

Better Than Whiskey for Colds and Flu

To cut short a cold, cough or the flu and prevent complications, nothing gives such quick and delightful relief as Aspironal, the new, scientific "Liquid Cold Remedy" that clears the head; relieves congestion in the nose and throat; checks the excessive flow of mucus; banishes dull headaches and that chilly, achy feeling.

Aspironal is a complete Liquid Cold Remedy, acting gently on the liver and bowels, and your druggist is authorized to refund your money while you wait at the counter if you do not feel relief coming in two minutes. If your druggist cannot supply Aspironal, sent direct upon receipt of price, 50c. Aspironal Laboratories, Dept. 1, Atlanta, Ga.

The bakermen who went to sea

TWENTY years ago a group of Sunshine master bakers went abroad—doughty discoverers they were. They brought back a shipment of baking wisdom and English baking machinery to bake the tempting British "hard sweets" fresh in the Sunshine bakeries.

Today these delicious "hard sweets" lie on your grocer's shelves at the popular Sunshine prices, under such names as Sunshine Hydrox, Sunshine Sylvet Creams, etc.

You can thank the Sunshine Bakers for this. Ask for them by name. That's thanks enough, thank you.

N. Y. SOCIETY PAYS TRIBUTE TO MOVIES

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Society turned out today to pay tribute to the movies. It has been Pathe Day throughout New York and the city's prominents were seen in many of the theaters that are observing Pathe Week, which opened yesterday and which will continue until Saturday. Productions of the Pathe Studios are being shown in virtually every large movie house.

Some 300 cadets and officers from West Point were in attendance at the Strand Theater to witness the showing of the "Dress Parade," starring William Boyd. The cadets were accompanied by the commanders of Governor's Island. Members of the Oelrich and Vanderbilt families held blocks of loge seats at the Paramount Theater, where "The Forbidden Woman," with Jetta Goudal in the leading role, featured the program.

"The Angel of Broadway," featuring Leatrice Joy, drew crowds at the Colony Theater, and "The King of Kings," DeMille's masterpiece, almost filled the Gayety Theater. The week's celebration was started by J. J. Murdock, directing head of the Pathe Producers-DeMillie combination.

PROBE WOUNDED MAN'S STORY

A. P. Blakley, 22, of 3402 Dersor street, is in the Pittsburgh Hospital under police guard while his story of being shot in a Penn township holdup attempt is being investigated. Blakley told police that after being shot by two holdup men, who slipped up on him while he was cranking his automobile in Blackadore avenue, Penn township, he fired six shots at his assailants, wounding one of them.

Shortly after Blakley was found wandering in Homewood avenue, Wilkinsburg police reported firing on a man seen attempting to remove the license plates from an automobile in Wood street, Wilkinsburg.

$5,000 OUT AS MONEY BURNS

KITTANNING, Pa., Oct. 31.—Five thousand dollars in bills were used to kindle a fire in the home of Peter Zalensky here Sunday morning.

The money, representing the Zalenskys' life savings, and had drawn from the bank Saturday by the husband. He neglected to tell his wife that he had left it, wrapped in a newspaper, in the kitchen. She rose first Sunday morning, picked up the paper and used it to start the morning fire.

BARR BRANDS REED'S SPEECH INCONSISTENT

Senator David A. Reed's address at the Republican headquarters was called "inconsistent" by former Senator C. M. Barr, the campaign manager of McGovern and Shields, in a statement issued last night. "Senator Reed rightly lauds Andrew W. Mellon for saving money for the nation," said Barr. "How can the Senator at the same time laud Armstrong and Babcock for their inefficiency in handling the people's affairs in Allegheny county?" Barr also denounced Senator Reed for dealing with national rather than local issues in his address.

PITTSBURGH AVIATORS CAMEO THEATER GUESTS

More than 500 Pittsburgh aviators, their families and friends, were guests last night of Universal Film corporation and the Cameo theater management at a private showing of "The Lone Eagle," a war aviation film. E. W. Cleveland, president of the Pittsburgh chapter, National Aeronautical Association, was official host. Capt. Thomas S. Voss, commandant of Rorgers Field, Aspinwall, and Ray A. Tucker, of the Aero club of Pittsburgh, were among the speakers.

HALLOWE'EN "GOODIE" KILLS MIDWAY CHILD

A pre-Hallowe'en celebration was the indirect cause of the death of Inez Florian, 8, of Midway. She died in Mercy Hospital Saturday night a few hours after a nut kernel lodged in her larynx while she was celebrating in her home. She was rushed to the hospital, but died soon after being admitted.

Printed Calico Once Illegal

BEFORE 1774 the use of chintz or printed calico for dresses was illegal. Eighty persons were convicted in 1768 before the Lord Mayor of London for "wearing chintz gowns and were fined $25 each."

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

1. What is the largest non-Christian city in the world?
2. Who was the leader of the Red Shirts?

TO some the loveliest season of all time; to others, the saddest. In the Autumn of life when one reviews the Spring of Youth and Love, what dear, sweet memories rise to comfort the dull dreary days! To such a one, Autumn is truly lovely, for the reds and golds bring back the shining glory of the sweetest season of all.

To the others—those who have made of their lives but a dull, drab monotony, the Autumn brings naught but unhappiness of other days. To them there is no beauty in the wonder of the Autumn days. How much better to so live that Autumn will bring all the beauty and loveliness of a rich, full life of happiness and achievement!

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.

US. Senator from New York

IT is necessary to make frequent repetition of the advice about babies, because so many of them are being born. Each and every baby needs the most careful attention. Without it, the infant cannot prosper.

DR. COPELAND

Lots of fine women, good cooks, too, never use a recipe book. They trust to memory for the ingredients and quantities for each dish they prepare.

Of course, this is all right in cooking, because we will survive the wrong mixture. But a pharmacist would never put up a mixture of poisons without consulting the authorities. He must be absolutely sure he is right and he cannot afford to take a chance.

Bringing up a new baby without refreshing the memory is not wise. Even if you have had two or three fine children it is a good thing to review your knowledge. You will not experiment with your youngster, of course, but be very sure you are not experimenting.

You must take just the same care in the feeding and care of your baby that the pharmacist does in filling a complicated prescription. The safe rule is to follow the rules.

After all, what is the sure test of the favorable progress of your baby? How can you tell that all is well?

The most reliable test, the surest guarantee of the health and physical prosperity of your infant is its increasing weight. The scales tell the story.

I am assuming that your baby is given the chance to kick and stretch, and throw its arms all it likes. If the infant does this, his muscles are hard and his flesh is solid. Increasing weight in a normal child should be increase in bones and muscles, not merely increase in fat.

A healthy baby will have clean, clear skin, bright eyes, firm tissues and active muscles. Then it will gain weight steadily.

During the first few days of life the child may lose weight, but by the end of the first month it is likely to gain nearly two pounds. It will double the weight in five months and treble it in a year.

The sure way to know what is going on is to have a set of reliable scales and make use of them every week. Keep a record of progress, so that you will know just what is being accomplished.

You wouldn't think much of an engineer who pretended to run an engine without a steam gage. The scales and their record serve the same purpose in bringing up a baby. They tell the story of your success in the infant's management.

Let me go over these weights again, giving them in another way. We want your baby to gain a couple of pounds the first month, but no matter what the weight was at birth, we hope the child will weigh 15 pounds at the end of the fifth month and about 21 pounds at the end of the year.

A baby unusually small at birth is expected to make it up during the course of a few months. Careful feeding is essential to this important result.

Be sure to use the scales and to be governed by them. If there is not satisfactory gain in weight the reason must be found. If you can't locate it promptly talk with your friend, the doctor.

For many years I lived constantly in the dread of constipation, exerting the greatest care over my selection of food and worrying considerably about my condition. Some time ago Pluto was recommended to me, and I found it the best corrective I had ever used. Upon the advice of my doctor, I now take a small quantity of Pluto each morning in hot water and find it an unequalled preventative. I am looking and feeling 100% better since following this treatment.

Pluto Water Winning Its Great Fight Against Constipation

Constipation was strongly entrenched when Pluto Water entered the lists to combat its disease-breeding grip on the American people. It has made and is making marvelous headway in eradicating this wide-spread malady. It is simply Nature using one of her most effective weapons—mineralized WATER—in cleansing the intestinal tract of germ-breeding, poisonous accumulations.

Pluto Water contains, in marvelously exact proportions, just the kind of minerals to flush away constipation. The action is pleasant, prompt and complete. It loosens and cleans, while it soothes and heals. Unlike drastic drugs—sugar-coated cathartics—it is non-habit forming. In from 30 minutes to two hours after drinking relief comes, and a small quantity daily will keep you regular and in fine trim.

Let Pluto Water banish constipation permanently and its sinister brood of ills. Bottled at the Springs, French Lick, Ind. Sold at all drug counters and at fountains.

ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
U. S. Senator from New York and formerly Health Commissioner of the City of New York

Dr. Copeland says: "Mineral waters of the right sort are preferable to many of the cathartic compounds on the market. Their power to overcome the immediate effects of constipation is unquestioned. They are soothing and healing to the tissues. Sugar coated pills are pleasant to take which may add to their danger. That is the reason they are coated with sugar. They are no less drastic and habit-forming because they appeal to the taste. Mineral waters pass through the system, doing nothing else but to flush and cleanse the intestinal tract."

"A Little Thing Like Life"

By ELSIE ROBINSON

ON THE walls of a lifer's cell in a penitentiary which I visited hangs this slogan—

"What's a Little Thing Like Life?"

There's a very gallant gesture in those six words, the gesture of a spirit which cannot be bound by prison bars. We have shut his body away but we cannot jail his proud, courageous spirit. He will be captain of his soul even though his years are forfeited to fate.

You and I, too, are prisoners. You may not realize this now, but you will some day. Sooner or later life will close about you as the gray walls have closed about that sentenced man. You will find yourself trapped within our human cowardice and weakness. Ignorance and death, sorrow and sin will bar your way. You will be as powerless to free yourself as he is to break through his walls of granite and steel.

Then—it will be up to you whether you or the walls will win.

You can act the part of a doomed prisoner if you wish. You can cringe and brood and sulk and whine.

Or, you can refuse to be bound by your cell. You can cry—"What's a little thing like life? What if I am cooped in its cell. I need not cut my spirit to its petty dimensions.

"WHAT'S A LITTLE THING LIKE LIFE!"

I'm going to hang that on the wall of my cell. I, too, am going to spend myself as if I would last forever.

And, if I don't—

AT LEAST, I'LL HAVE HAD THE BREAKS!

Amazing New Belt Brings IMMEDIATE SLIMNESS-
BUOYANCY-YOUTHFULNESS

So Different from Anything You Have Ever Tried That the United States Government Has Granted THREE Distinct Patents. So Healthful Physicians Prescribe It.

So marvelous does it slenderize that stylists declare it is woman's greatest boon in her quest for charm and attraction.

Within one short year the Armmori Belt has caused a sensation among fashion leaders who see every sensible, stylish woman in the land wearing this astounding garment. A new and thrilling sense of buoyancy, grace and poise awaits the woman who has yet to try on the Armmori Belt.

Not a Corset, Not a Girdle—A Scientific Principle

Why is the Armmori Belt entirely different from any other foundation garment that has ever been created? The Armmori Belt is based on a principle as old as the human race. You, the woman of today, possess exactly the same muscles as Eve did. But living as we do, the abdominal muscles have sagged entirely out of shape.

The Armmori Belt corrects this sag because it is designed to follow the muscular construction of the abdomen itself. When you bend, the Armmori bends with you. As you move, it moves. It conforms to your every motion as a second set of muscles, supplementing and restoring your own which have been neglected.

The Armmori Belt becomes part of the new YOU—it moulds a new form and follows the buoyant rhythm of your body. You adjust it gradually—as the newer, slimmer contour is formed.

Keeps the abdomen flat while lifting and supporting.

The Armmori has a tremendous appeal to the Outdoor Girl and the Stout Woman. It has an even greater appeal to the woman who requires support for hernia, pregnancy ptosis or post-operative strain, because it follows the motion and lines of the abdominal muscles. It contains a very unusual grade of elastic webbing in which the rubber is not stretched in the weaving. Moreover, this webbing will wash and iron.

Sizes 24 to 52
Easy to Fit

Aids Nature Contract Muscles, Reducing Superfluous Flesh

The instant you are fitted with an Armmori Belt, unsightly bulging lines are concealed—a slender silhouette revealed. And after wearing the Armmori for a short time, you will be delighted to have your mirror and your friends tell you that excess flesh is gradually disappearing from your hips, thighs and abdomen.

Some women will act at once—they will see the Armmori Belt immediately and within a week will enjoy new admiration, new attention, new grace and a new feeling of health. Will you be one of those women who lead? Will you act promptly?

Paris, New York, Deauville, Copenhagen—wherever the Armmori Belt has been introduced—warm letters of praise have followed. The Armmori Health Belt at $6.50 and $7.50 in the flesh coutil and $10.00 in rich brocade, has been declared the peer of any garment in the world at any price, in the results it renders. The Armmori is the wedding of Science and Fashion in a foundation garment.

It is very fitting for the name Armmori to be pronounced like "Amour" the french for love. You will love your Armmori.

ONE OF 'EM'S FOR GLORY; THE OTHER FOR SAFETY

Here are two interesting pictures. One was taken at a professional football game in New York recently and the other was taken at the annual game between two great universities. It may be added that one of the bugbears of a college player's career is that a camera will catch him loafing on the play. It doesn't seem to bother the boys in the upper picture. It also may be added that the kick was blocked in the lower picture and it enabled the white-shirted players to win the game. Write your own moral. International Newsreel Photo.

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

CAN you recall a major league baseball manager who did so much to win a pennant and yet received so little credit for it as Donie Bush, the Pirate skipper, in 1927?

You would have to travel a long way over the backward trail in baseball to find another instance in which clever leadership, smart handling and strict discipline were such tremendous factors in the winning of a flag and were given such slight notice or acclaim by a large part of fandom.

IN previous years there was much ado about the parts played by the managers as well as by the teams that won pennants in the big show, and in addition to the praises heaped upon the players for their achievements, the McGraws, the Hugginses, the Harrises, the McKechnies, the Morans, the Robinsons, the Hornsbys and other successful generals were landed to the skies as the men whose smart leadership had been the main force in the big triumphs.

But the 1927 National League pennant was captured by Pittsburgh and the world series came and went, yet comparatively little has been read or heard about what Bush did to bring the muslin to this city. Most fans appear to take the attitude that Donie merely did what he had been hired to do, and let it go at that. They don't consider seemingly that previously powerful Pirate teams won only one pennant from 1921 to 1926 inclusive.

BUT now that there is time for sober reflection, if you look back over the race with unbiased baseball eyes, you will find that Bush's managership must have had a great deal to do with the pennant success of the Corsairs.

It is one thing for a ball team to have strength on paper and it is quite another thing to make that team show it from day to day on the field.

Sometimes there are players on the roster who do not take their work seriously enough; they feel that their baseball salaries are coming anyhow, whether they win or lose, and, unthinkingly perhaps, they fall into habits that do not work out for the good of the club on the field.

PITTSBURGH had some players of that sort in 1927. Bush discovered it early and set about to correct the condition. He gave notice that he would not tolerate it.

Things would go along all right for a few weeks, and then the old trouble would appear again. Once more Bush would assert his authority and enforce discipline, and he kept it up like the little fighter he is until finally he had the offenders whipped and eating out of his hand.

That's why Pittsburgh won the pennant—because Bush made the men play the ball of which they were capable and kept them from kicking the league championship away.

AND that's why President Barney Dreyfuss remarked late in August: "As far as I am concerned Bush can manage the club again next year. He has shown me that he is a successful manager, whether he wins the pennant or not."

Only recently another baseball man of long experienced remarked: "I doubt if very many Pittsburgh fans realize what a big job Bush did in driving that club to a pennant. But for the way he handled the outfit I think it would have finished third or fourth."

AND there were some real baseball obstacles, as well, that Bush had to overcome in order to make his burnt-out team fall across the finish line a pennant winner on the day before the closing of the season.

Aside from the handicaps of lost players such as Kremer, Traynor, Smith, Wright, Harris, some other points stand out about the Pirates

THIEL TUTOR TO RETURN TO HIS ALMA MATER

DR. TOMMY HOLLERAN, football coach at Thiel College of Greenville, Pa., and former University of Pittsburgh backfield star, is to return to his alma mater next fall as freshman football coach, it was learned today.

Holleran will succeed Dr. H. C. (Cliff) Carlson, of Braddock, as mentor of the Panther yearlings. It has been rumored for some time that Carlson would step down at the end of the current season, which rounds out his latest two-year contract, and Carlson himself now has admitted the truth of these reports.

Men in close touch with Pitt athletic affairs say Holleran already has been selected for the berth and formal announcement will be made at the close of the gridiron season.

Dr. Carlson will remain as head basketball coach at Pitt. Pressure of his professional duties is given as the reason for his withdrawal from the football position.

THREE DEADLOCK FOR LEAD IN P. G. A. PLAY

DALLAS, Oct. 31.—(AP.)—Gene Sarazen of New York took an early lead in the qualifying round of the P. G. A. tournament here today by shooting the first nine in 34, one below par in spite of slow, wet greens.

Joe Turnesa of New York and Johnny Golden of Paterson, N. J., stepped into a tie with Sarazen at the quarter post by shooting a 34 for the first nine holes in spite of the fact that Golden "three putted" three greens.

Francis Gallett of the Blue Mound Country Club, Wis., shot a 35 and Harry Hampton, Memphis; Mel Smith of Seattle and Charles Guest of Hollywood, scored 36s.

Robert Mitchell, Massena Springs, N. Y., the 17-year-old contestant, had tough luck on the fourth hole, where trees cost him a 10, and he finished with a 47. He was alone in the 40s, however, Wilfred Reid, of Detroit, taking 41, while 40s were scored by George McLeod, of Sharon, Mass.; Anthony Manero, of New York, and George Christ, of Rochester.

Ted Turner, of Lowell, Mass., found the same trees on No. 4 that proved disastrous to Mitchell and took a 12, which gave him a 45.

The weather was cool with a hint of rain in the overcast sky as the tournament got under way.

Robert Stupple, of Highland Park, Ill., the first man to finish the out nine, scored a 37, two over par. His companions, Peter O. Hart, of Marietta, O., and George McLeod, of Sharon, Mass., scored 38 and 40, respectively.

Harry Hampton, of Memphis, came in with a 36, one over par. Wilfred Reid, of Detroit, took 41.

TO REORGANIZE LEAGUE

The P. & O. Basketball League will be reorganized at a meeting to be held in Kaufmann's Wednesday evening at 7:30. Because of numerous applications for berths, the circuit may be split into several sections. Managers attending the meeting are requested to use the Fifth avenue entrance of the store.

UNBEATEN THINNED; YALE AT CREST

By JESS CARVER.

AS THESE lines were being written, your correspondent, on a good Pennsylvania train, was being borne from one of football's most dismal centers. If there is a more hopeless atmosphere existent today in a gridiron's domain besides the one at Morgantown, it is at Easton, Lafayette's native heath. At that, there is little to choose between the plights of West Virginia and Lafayette.

Even the passing landscape, which should be beautiful under the rays of a fast dying autumn sun with the ruddy and gold and red and brown coloring of the foliage, seems drear and ill. Believe you me, West Virginia is in a pretty sad way.

To tell the truth, things are so bad that the West Virginia fans are crying for Ira Rodgers' head, and seem bound to oust the former all-America star. This is about the most important gridiron news of the week-end for the Pittsburgh district, aside from the fact that two of its favorite elevens remaining in the running for the mythical national title, Pitt and W. & J. being the local members of the little band of six undefeated and untied teams of the country.

The defeat suffered Saturday at the hands of Carnegie Tech, while not totally unexpected, was as salt to the already gaping wounds of West Virginia's football body. One lone victory in six starts and two ties and not a major game won, it is a drear situation at West Virginia. They usually manage to get at least one major triumph each year, but this season they haven't a chance in the world for scoring one, for they have W. & J. and Missouri to face in the remaining big games of the year. And it will take a 100 per cent better team than West Virginia has put on the field so far this year to hold either of these elevens to two touchdowns.

THREE TEAMS FALL

The situation all over the country underwent a remarkable change in the games of Saturday. Three undefeated elevens fell before the onslaughts of Notre Dame, Yale and Illinois. Another supposedly crack machine was held to a scoreless tie by a team rated as being vastly inferior in all departments. I refer to New York University.

As matters stand now, there are six undefeated and untied elevens in the country. They are—in the east—Pitt, Princeton and W. & J. In the mid-

by HARRY KECK
SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

AS a result of last Saturday's games, there no longer is any doubt of the fact that next Saturday's battle between Pitt and Wash-Jeff in the Stadium will be the leading gridiron contest in the East that afternoon, for it will bring together the two undefeated teams in the section with the best records. Aside from Pitt and Wash-Jeff only Princeton and New York University remain undefeated, and the Panthers and Presidents both have won six games, while the Tigers have chalked up five and New York University has been held to a scoreless tie.

To Return

TO ALMA MATER

Dr. Tommy Holleran, former Pitt backfield star, now coach at Thiel College, who is slated to return to his alma mater as freshman coach next fall, succeeding Dr. Cliff Carlson, who will resign at the end of this season.

As the struggle between Dr. Sutherland's men and those tutored by Andy Kerr draws near, the possibility also looms that the stadium will see its first sellout. The Pitt-Carnegie Tech game of week before last provided the largest crowd in the stadium's history, close to 60,000, and bets already are being made that the Presidents, who, along with Pitt, have beaten Tech, will test the capacity of the athletic plant.

As a real feature, the game leaves little to be desired, for, in addition to the fact that only a tie can prevent one of the two keen rivals from gaining the outstanding position for eastern honors, there will be a man-to-man battle for supremacy between Capt. Gibby Welch of Pitt and Bill Amos of W. & J., two of the greatest backs in the country, and the event is likely to be just the reverse of last year's engagement, in which both teams played safe and wound up in a scoreless tie. Each has the man power to get out after points and an aggressive fight should provide one of the most spectacular battles seen in years in a long gridiron.

WHILE Pitt and W. & J. will hold the attention of the fans throughout the week, the name of another big district eleven is coming in for a great deal of conversation. It is that of Penn State, which has beaten Penn, Syracuse and Lafayette in its last three games after losing to Bucknell and appearing to be in for a lean season. The 40-to-6 triumph over Lafayette last Saturday was an eye-opener, in view of the fact that W. & J. had won by only 14 to 0 over Coach

Tunney Strolls Unrecognized In Albany

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 31.—(UP.)—Gene Tunney strolled about the Union depot here for half an hour yesterday before being recognized.

He was on his way to the Brant Lake camp of David Fitzgerald, of Glen Falls, and was accompanied by Upton Close, author.

As usual, Gene preferred to talk of books rather than fighting.

He said he expected to meet old friends and take life easy at the camp for the next week or two.

NOTES of the BOXERS

WALCOTT LANGFORD, of Chicago, the Negro who combines the monikers of two of the greatest Negro fighters in history—Joe Walcott and Sam Langford—for his fighting name, will make his bow to Pittsburgh fans next Monday night, when he will meet Lou Scozza, rugged Italian middleweight of Buffalo, in the 10-round main bout at Motor Square Garden.

There will be no show in Motor Square Garden this evening because of Halloween.

Langford has boxed many of the leading middleweights during the last year, while Scozza has taken rapid steps forward in battles with Moxie Rosenbloom, Yale Okun, Mike McTigue, Johnny Risko and others.

McKeesport boxing fans yesterday saw Harry Dudley and Jackie Murray, Negro welterweights, who box in the two feature bouts in the Tube City Thursday night, work out in the Majestic Club's arena, the Palisades roller rink, and came away satisfied that the pair should acquit themselves creditably against Alex Simms, of Canton, and Tex Phillips, of Fayette City, respectively, when they meet in the 10-round main and eight-round semi-final bouts. Two six-round preliminary bouts will round out the bill.

Teddy Welch, snappy lightweight of McKeesport, weighs in with a challenge directed at Phil Goldstein and Tommy Crowley, who are claiming the lightweight championship of this section. According to Bernard Kelly, Jr., his manager, Welch will make 135 pounds at 2 p. m. for either or both.

Dundee Won't Quit

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP.)—Despite the urgent request of his friends that he retire from the ring, following his defeat at the hands of Tony Canzoneri, Johnny Dundee, the Italian featherweight with the Scotch fighting name, has decided to continue his activity.

Johnny Dundee.

"From now on, boxing centers are going to see as much, if not more, of Johnny Dundee as they did from 1921 to 1924," is the announcement of the veteran.

"I have given the best that I had every time I fought," Johnny said. "When I am convinced I no longer can stand up among the topnotchers in my class, I will be the first to notify the press and public that I have forsaken the ring forever."

Dundee, objecting to the criticism of the press regarding his "comeback" in the ring after a year's absence, declared that he lasted 15 rounds against the fast, hard-hitting and aggressive Canzoneri and added that he did not think anyone would beat Canzoneri.

THROUGH the SPORT LENS by HAVEY BOYLE

A SPY dashes in out of breath to gasp that he cannot understand what is the matter with Lafayette this season. Lafayette took a surprise dose when West Virginia held them to a tie, insult was added to injury when Wash.-Jeff. came along to win 14 to 0, breaking a long undefeated string for Lafayette, and then for good measure Penn State gave the Easton team a bad licking last Saturday. Three on the button in a row certainly is enough to cause the boys to gasp over whatever has happened to the Maroon this season.

Havey Boyle.

No one quite knows, because Herb McCracken, the coach, said at the start of this season that the material he had looked like the best he ever handled. In fact, he said, he would stack his backfield against any aggregation in the country. Football coaches hearing how optimistic McCracken was at the start of the season and noting what terrible results have come will shudder and will make a resolution to be even more pessimistic than usual.

LAFAYETTE, accustomed to fine success under successive coaching administrations by Jock Sutherland and McCracken, apparently knows how to take a bad season. At least the wires have not yet started to carry stories of students and alumni taking to the war path to get McCracken's scalp.

In these feverish days when even such an established and accomplished coach as Jack Wilce of Ohio State is in danger of official decapitation the Lafayette boys are showing the world how to take them on the chin as they used to show Pitt and many another how they could accept victory.

JOCK SUTHERLAND just couldn't make up his mind what combination he would try against Allegheny in that tune-up game on Saturday. Apparently, Jock went onto the bench with the latest edition of the telephone book and with the book open idly ran through the alphabet to discover all the boys he wanted to use against Allegheny. If he missed any of the second string boys it was because some of the telephone book pages stuck together. Jock would no sooner lead us in the press box to believe that at last he had struck upon a happy combination than he would roll up his sleeves, give a flick of his fingers and cause a new bevy of players to dash out for relief work, if it could be called that.

GIBBY WELCH scored two touchdowns against Allegheny in the very short time he was in the game in the first period. The easy time Gibby had in running for touchdowns against the inexperienced Allegheny team indicates how very foolish are those football statistics which show the country's leading scorer. Gibby could have added 50 or 60 points to his huge total if he had stayed in the game from first to last. Yet such a performance, while adding to his total, certainly would not make him any more spectacular than he is. If there is one game where individual points should never be reckoned it is football, where there is no uniformity of opposition, in the first place, and where no individual would be any good without 10 other men doing their part to help that certain individual. When you hear of leading scorers remember what a chance Welch had to gain an empty distinction at the expense of a hard-working but inferior foe.

HERE is a recommendation for Mr. Buck Baird, who refereed the game between Allegheny and Pitt. When a goal was made, Mr. Baird made no secret of the fact, and when it was no good he was just as plain and emphatic. In all other ways Mr. Baird conducted himself as a good football official.

KARL DAVIS of Pitt believes the State game here on Thanksgiving Day, will draw a bigger crowd than the Wash-Jeff game here next Saturday. Generally, Thanksgiving Day is a better day for attendance than any Saturday afternoon, but if the gates aren't closed next Saturday, with a capacity crowd on hand, many of the boys will be mistaken.

THE football season at the Stadium has been a great success except in two particulars. Mr. Don Saunders, in charge of the press coop, has a notion that coffee is better with sugar in it, and that all sandwiches should carry dressing. Outside of these false impressions, Don Saunders is the acme of perfection on press arrangements.

A man killed a dentist because the dentist hurt him. It's funny no one had thought of that before. The man who did the killing, most likely said, "Now this isn't going to hurt you at all."

SOCCER by TOM BIRKS

Pittsburgh soccer club might be composed of most of the real veterans of the district, but it surely did put on a childish act when it refused to allow a penalty kick to be taken by the Celtics just before the finish of the game. It was a West Penn cup tie, and there might be a stiff reprisal by the governing body.

Just what the Blue and White figured it could gain is beyond the writer. Celtics were leading by a goal with a minute to play. The penalty had been given by the referee who could not change his decision at that stage of the game, therefore the only logical thing to do was line up and get it over with.

The German Club and Internationals played another close game yesterday, the Germans winning by the odd goal in three. The German boys sure did hit the ball hard when goals meant something.

Pilot Likely To Quit Colts

CUMBERLAND, Md., Oct. 31.—James F. McGuire, president of the Cumberland team in the Middle Atlantic League, has been offered the management of the Johnstown team in the league next season. Johnstown, champions of 1925 and 1926, lost the championship to Cumberland this year. Cumberland won the first half of the split season and Johnstown the second half. Cumberland beat Johnstown in the final playoff.

Johnstown directors were the first to advise of the move to obtain McGuire as the successor of Chief Albert Bender. McGuire admitted he had received a written invitation to transfer his baseball activities to the Flood City. He could pilot the team at a salary of $6,000 a season, so the communication read.

McGuire has turned down the offer until he knows definitely what is to become of his interests in the Mid-City Athletic Association, which controls the Cumberland club, and in which McGuire has a majority of the stock. It is because of his holdings in Cumberland that he is unable to jump at the proposition. He has been the first approached to step into the berth left vacant by the return of Bender to his coaching duties at the United States Naval Academy.

If McGuire can dispose of his stock in the Cumberland team he could undoubtedly take advantage of the Johnstown offer.

SPORT COMMENT

that show Bush did a rather unusual job in finishing in first place.

You have heard it said, for instance, that no club can be called really strong, much less be a pennant winner, unless it has exceptionally good players in three places—behind the bat, at second base and at shortstop. The majority of games are won or lost around second base.

BUT what did Bush have in those all-important positions

A second baseman, who, though trying hard and faithfully was so faulty in his work that a number of games were lost at his position and he is going to be moved back to first base next season.

A shortstop who was far below his best form much of the season, and who fell off so much farther after an injury that the management was on the point of trying to make a first baseman out of him and moving Traynor over to shortstop.

In the catching department, things were upset all during the season, first by the 30-day suspension of Smith and later by a series of injuries to the same player, forcing Gooch to do all the work except when Spencer was pressed into service while a lefthand pitcher was working for the opposition.

Winning out with the most important three-positions on the club weakened to that extent was considerable of an achievement, any way you look at it.

THERE is another bit of ancient dope that says a club, to be a pennant winner, must have a line of stars right down through the middle.

That is, it must have a catcher of the front rank, a powerful staff of pitchers—or at least about three who can win consistently—a crack second baseman and shortstop and a great center fielder.

The Pirates' shortcomings behind the bat, at shortstop and at second have having already been discussed, the pitching department and center field are the other places to command consideration in connection with the straight-down-the-middle theory.

Here again it must be admitted that conditions did not favor Bush. Counting the time it took him to regain his stride after his injured knee had mended, Remy Kremer was lost for almost two months, and among the other hurlers none but Carmen Hill could be counted upon for steady and effective pitching practically every time he stepped upon the knoll.

IN center field, Lloyd Waner was a marvel in many ways, one of the greatest young players ever dug up by any club, and one who next year will be even nearer to being a second Willie Keeler.

But with all his other remarkable qualities it cannot be said for Waner that he possesses a center field throwing arm. In fact, it is said that the management itself realizes this and is seeking a strong-throwing center fielder for next year so that the younger Waner can be sent to left.

In view of all this, to say nothing of the other troubles he had, should it not be admitted in all fairness that Donie Bush did a great deal more to bring the 1927 pennant to Pittsburgh that he has been given credit for doing?

GEHRIG'S TEAM TOPS BABE'S CLUB, 5 TO 2

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 31.—Thirty thousand persons saw Babe Ruth's team lose to Lou Gehrig's aggregation by a 5-to-2 score at Wrigley Field yesterday. Gehrig pounded out two home runs and a double. Ruth's contribution was a two-base hit. In practice, however, the Babe knocked a pitched ball over the score board, setting a record for long-distance hitting in the local park.

Herb McCracken's men. The Nittany Lions have flashed one of the finest "comebacks" within memory, and nowhere are the alumni of the Blue and White more enthusiastic than right here in the Pittsburgh sector, where they will have a chance to see their favorites in action against Pitt on Thanksgiving Day in the season's finale for both teams.

IN connection with the Pitt-W. & J. meeting, glimpse the following letter received by the writer and signed by eight Wash-Jeff rooters of Little Washington:

"Dear Sir:—It is impossible for even the most intelligent and non-dogmatic followers of football not to protest slightly upon your seemingly prejudiced comparison of the schedules of Pitt and W. & J. respectively. As a sports writer, it is understood that you must have your own opinion of the field engaged in whatever sport is in season, but is it not rather juvenilistic to be so obviously prejudiced as you show yourself to be?

"In comparison, W. & J. plays Thiel, Tech and West Virginia, as does Pitt. The latter engages with Grove City, which certainly easily is counterbalanced by Bethany, as is Allegheny by Waynesburg. Drake is not more than the equal of Western Maryland. (As an emigrator from the Mid-West, one of us might add that, from actual observance, Western Maryland is better than Drake.) Nebraska, with a much weaker club than usual, can be dubiously evened with Lafayette, although it is doubtful if it could favorably compare with the eastern gridders. Penn State was defeated by Bucknell, and that is the only remaining balance of the two teams. The reverse of your statement is much more plausible than as it stands!

"Will it always remain for W. & J. to receive her due from the New York and Philadelphia papers? One can only be thankful that the sports writers of these city papers will give an unbiased opinion; that they are able to overcome or disregard local pressure, for the Pittsburgh writers do not seem to possess the strength of mind to do that. (This is excepted in the case of the Pitt-W. & J. game, when the latter is invariably placed the favorite just the week before the game.) We suggest that they are only hurting themselves in the view of papers that are read throughout the country, and not limited locally.

"By the way, since this Pitt aggregation, muchly touted and heralded by the Pittsburgh papers, is such a brilliant, scintillating team, what odds are given on the coming game? It is indeed a revelation to notice the inconsistency in your verbal appellations and your actual wagering. You outfumble us very nicely—and at the jitney soda fountain!"

This letter is enlightening, to say the least, for we have no recollection of ever having written anything along the lines at which the criticism is directed. It seems there must have been two other fellows. Appears very much as if the fumble is on the other foot!

WESLEYAN STARTS WORK FOR CLASH WITH NAVY

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., Oct. 31.—West Virginia Wesleyan will settle down to real work this afternoon to prepare for the approaching contest with the Navy.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 31.—(AP.)—Hearing on the suit brought by Frank L. Moore, betting commissioner of Newport, Ky., to recover $9,000 from Rogers Hornsby, captain of the New York Giants, and former manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, was continued today until December 1 because of a congested circuit court docket.

Both Moore and Hornsby were present with their attorneys and announced that they were ready for hearing. Erstwhile friends, Moore and Hornsby did not speak to each other.

Moore alleged he advanced the money to Hornsby, who answered the transaction involved betting on horse races and therefore inadmissible at law.

FACTS

Taxpayers of Allegheny County

$33,166,240.69 of your money has been spent or authorized for County improvements under County Commissioners Armstrong, Babcock and Houlahen. Charles C. McGovern, recently defeated for renomination for the office of County Controller, is now basing his candidacy for the County Commissionership upon charges that the present County Commissioners are incompetent, inefficient and extravagant, and that he is efficient and competent.

We believe that the program of public improvements begun, as well as other needed projects, should be carried on. The facts as to these charges should determine our votes for this important office at the election on November 8th when all of the men above mentioned are candidates. We have no interest other than that of all taxpayers and good citizens, namely, to secure efficiency.

We have caused an examination to be made of the facts which we throw open to any and every citizen at our office, 1907 Henry W. Oliver Building. We intend publishing in the newspapers daily summaries of the charges and the facts relating to each charge. Each advertisement in each newspaper will be different from the others.

McGOVERN SAYS:

"There is in the Controller's Office no record of minutes of the Allegheny County Sinking Fund Commission ever having had a meeting and no one seems to remember that the Commission has transacted any business within the last three years."—Controller's Report, Page 38.

The Facts Are

The minute book of the Commission in the Controller's office records 19 meetings held during 1926-27.

The members of the Commission are the three County Commissioners, County Treasurer and County Controller, the County Controller being the Secretary.

The Minutes of 3 meetings in 1926 are signed by the Controller, 16 others by the Deputy Controller.

There is no record or evidence of any attempt by the Commissioners, to evade or prevent meetings.

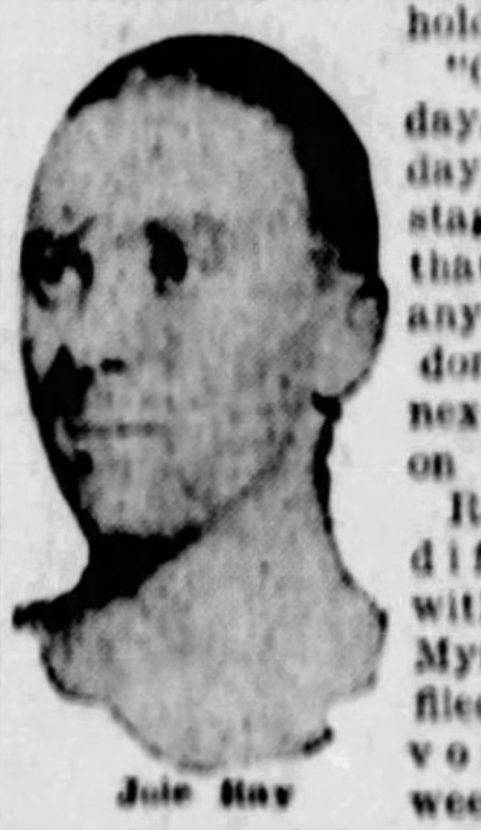
RAY, DOWN IN LUCK, PLANS "COMEBACK"

By Universal Service

GARY, Ind., Oct. 31.—Joie Ray, once world's champion runner, is trying to stage a comeback here, while working in a Gary steel mill for $35 a week.

He is broke and discouraged. His title is in the possession of Paavo Nurmi, famous Finnish runner; his wife is suing him for divorce, and his demise as a sprinter is being sung in sporting circles everywhere.



Joie Ray

Meanwhile the former track record holder is hopeful.

"One of these days," he said today, "I'm going to stage a comeback that will outshine anything I've ever done. And the next time I'll hang on to my dough."

Ray's domestic difficulties are with his wife, Mrs. Myrtle Ray, who filed suit for divorce several weeks ago, asking custody of their two little daughters. He was arrested here last week and released on bonds pending a request for his extradition to Chicago. It is believed he will be returned there for trial on charges of non-support.

"I run the distance from my parents' home to the mill every morning and evening," Ray continued. "And I box every evening in the town gym. Just because the sporting world thinks I'm through doesn't mean that I am.

"Why, when Jack Dempsey was training for the last fight he wouldn't have anybody but me for a pacer. I could have told him, however, about fair weather friends who hang around a fellow when he's winning and walk out on him when he's down and out and his money's gone."

west, Notre Dame, in the far west, Washington, and in the south, Georgia.

Dartmouth, Georgia Tech and Michigan were the teams to fall by the wayside Saturday and they fell with quite a bang. The triumph of Notre Dame over the Yellow Jackets and Yale's victory at the expense of the Green did not cause as much comment as the way in which the Illini handled old Michigan. Fielding Yost will probably reiterate his

On the basis of practice scores, Eastern players had the edge in today's round in which all except 32 entrants will be eliminated. Of the decision to retire as active coach at Ann Arbor now.

PITT ABOUT BEST

There is little doubt in the minds of most football followers and critics that Pitt and W. & J. are the class of the East. It is very unfortunate that Yale and Penn State had to drop out of the running so early, for at present, these two elevens are playing the best football of any teams outside of Pitt and W. & J. The latter had letdown games on Saturday, but will face the biggest tests of their respective seasons when they clash in the Stadium in Pittsburgh next Saturday.

Poor old Lafayette, already far down in the depths, was kicked deeper into the mud by Penn State's roaring Lions and now finds the season a total loss. They aren't crying for the blood of the coach at Easton as they are at Morgantown, where it seems as though nothing will satisfy the folks until Rodgers is replaced. They are unable to make suggestions as to a possible replacement, but most of the people with whom I talked, are certain that it is Ira's fault that the Mountaineers are making such a poor showing.

True, Ira didn't acquit himself as a genius in the way he handled his team Saturday. The team didn't look to be well grounded in the fundamentals to begin with, the generalship was poor and the defensive was atrocious.

Maybe all this is Ira's fault and maybe it isn't. But things are certainly in a sad state right now in Mr. Morgan's town.

MIXED BOUTS DRAW WELL

Mixed bouts recently staged at McKeesport by the Majestic Club have proved good drawing cards, and at least two of them will feature the card to be presented at the Palisades Rink Thursday evening.

The main bout of 10 rounds finds Alex Simms of Canton, O., meeting Harry Dudley of Oakland, Cal., at present making his home in Pittsburgh.

The semi-final of eight rounds will bring together Tug Phillips of Charleroi and Jackie Murray, a Philadelphia Negro, with a fine record. Matchmaker James McGirr will have the first two bouts lined up by tonight.

There is keen interest in the coming show, and the indications point to one of the largest turnouts of the season. Dudley and Murray worked out in public yesterday afternoon at the Majestic Club, along with Kid Crutchfield, and made a good impression on a large number of fans who visited the rink to watch them go through their preliminary stunts.

INDIANA TOPS CLARION

Indiana Normal pulled a big surprise when they swamped their close rival Clarion Normal, by a score of 51-0. After being held to a 0-0 tie in the first quarter, Coach Miller's Indiana Normal gridders showed midseason form by scoring eight touchdowns.

Travel Necessary. Business of Farming.

—By B. C. FORBES—

IN THE SOUTH—Oct. 30.—To find out what's going on throughout this country you must travel. There are many, many developments of vast, fundamental bearing upon our progress which never are chronicled in even the best metropolitan newspapers far from the scene. Spectacular happenings often are of infinitely less importance than silent, untrumpeted developments, especially developments in the realm of agriculture, which after all, is still our most basic industry, unsurpassed by transportation or electric power or oil or steel or automobiles or even building, since food comes before shelter.

American agriculture is making headway, particularly in its industrial aspects so to speak.

THE inevitable movement towards bigness in the tilling of the soil itself is making less advancement than the movement towards bigness in handling the fruits of the soil's tilling. But great agricultural enterprises, rivaling in magnitude those of industry and transportation, are coming as surely as tomorrow's sunrise. Here and there, starts already have been made and these large scale farm corporations have done well.

But large-scale organization has been more conspicuous in such directions as co-operative marketing, in establishing butter and cheese and prepared milk and powdered milk factories, cotton mills in cotton-growing states, sugar factories and factories to handle the cane waste, canneries for packing fruits and all kinds of vegetables, tobacco factories, power plants and transmission lines to supply electricity to farms, etc.

CONSIDER what has been achieved in Tennessee during the last year in the dairy field alone:

The Borden Company has built a condensed milk plant at Lewisburg, a powdered milk plant at Fayetteville, collecting stations at Pulaski, Columbia and Shelbyville, representing an investment of almost a million dollars. Some 150,000 pounds of milk is daily drawn from five counties and excess butterfat not used in condensed or powdered milk is made into butter, about 10,000 pounds daily.

Carnation Milk has built a condensed milk plant at Murfreesboro with collecting stations in adjoining counties, at an outlay of half-a-million. Capacity is 100,000 pounds daily and excess butter fat is sold to the Rutherford County Co-operative Creamery, the second largest in the country which makes it into butter.

These activities are in the Blue Grass basin of Middle Tennessee.

The Pet company has established a half-million dollar condensed milk plant at Greeneville in East Tennessee; capacity 100,000 pounds.

Kraft Cheese Company has opened a large factory at Dyersburg in West Tennessee, capacity 100,000 pounds daily.

IN addition to these industrial plants founded on agriculture, Tennessee has seen the development by the enterprising, enormously rich DuPonts of a plant at Old Hickory, a suburb of Nashville, which makes, I am told, about one-fourth of this country's total production of rayon. It uses wood pulp from Canada and chemicals from the east and north. Location here was determined by the peculiarly suitable water and by the labor supply. An important addition is now being made to the plant.

Two other Rayon plants have been launched in East Tennessee, one by the American Bimberg Company and the other by the Glantzsoff company, both German owned. The total investment will run into millions.

EVERYWHERE the spirit of progress abounds. It is especially strong through most parts of the South. The truth is that the South is only now, for the first time, taking on new, vigorous, prosperous life since the war—not the World War but the Civil War.

Home capital is multiplying. Outside capital is pouring in. Industries are springing up everywhere. Farming is becoming more business like, more diversified. The South's popularity as a playground is rapidly extending and now the annual crop of tourists is swelling the South's prosperity. The amount of money going into modern roads, into modern hotels, into modern facilities for amusement and recreation and sport is enormous.

Railroad building is active. And ports are being brought into being and enlarged at an unprecedented pace.

And perhaps best of all, as Gov. Dan Moody of Texas impressed upon me, millions are today being spent on education where only thousands were spent before in Dixie land.

GET away from your home community once in a while and imbibe a new thrill over being an American.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP.)—Aggregate net operating income of the first 74 railroads to report September earnings was $126,461,000, a decrease of 6.53 per cent compared with $137,286,000 for the same number in September, 1926. Their August net was $109,546,000. Gross revenues for September was $525,469,000, a drop of 5.1 per cent from a year ago, and compared with $521,797,000 in August this year.

Sees Equipment Shortage.

Probable shortage next year in railroad equipment, both cars and locomotives, is reported to members of the Railway Business Association by Alba B. Johnson, its president. Unless the railroads take prompt steps to obtain new equipment, he questions whether it would be possible for them to continue giving satisfactory service in the event of increased railroad traffic. Total tractive power of freight locomotives owned by class one railroads declined 1.02 per cent in nine months this year, he stated, while total capacity of freight cars increased only one quarter of 1 per cent.

Boveri Electric Net Loss.

American Brown Boveri Electric Corporation and subsidiaries had net loss of $151,640 for nine months of 1927 after charges, against profit of $1,468,808 before federal taxes, in the same period of 1926.

California Crude Output.

Crude oil production in California last week averaged 629,300 barrels daily, an increase of 2,000 barrels daily over the week before.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Gain for Sweets Company.

Sweets Company of America for September quarter reports net income of $32,199 after all charges equal to 32 cents a share on 100,000 capital shares, against $5,460 net or 5 cents a share in the June quarter, and net of $39,795 or 39 cents a share in the September, 1926 quarter.

General Cigar Shows Gain.

General Cigar Company reports for September quarter net income of $633,344 equal after preferred dividends to $1.91 a share on the common, as against $557,415, or $1.14 a share on the common in the September, 1926, quarter. Nine months net was $2,353,936 or $5.14 a common share, against $1,669,510, or $3.55 a share on common last year.

Fisher's Index Lower.

Prof. Irving Fisher's commodity index number for week ended October 28 was 145.1 per cent, against 146.2 per cent in the previous week and 146.2 per cent two weeks ago.

Slight Gain At Seminole.

Production of crude oil in the Seminole area for 24 hours ended 7 a. m. Saturday was 492,324 barrels from 541 wells, as compared with 494,562 barrels Friday from 541 wells.

Committee on Oil Conservation.

A committee of nine, Washington reports state, representing equally the government, the petroleum industry and American Bar Association, will soon be selected to draft tentative legislation for conservation of the country's natural petroleum resources.

Skelly Oils Quarter Better.

Skelly Oil Company reports for the quarter ended September 30 net income of $769,935 after depreciation, depletion, etc., equal to 78 cents a share on 1,000,000 shares issued against $214,326 or 21 cents a share in the preceding quarter, and $1,914,681 or $1.91 a share on 999,998 average shares outstanding in the September quarter, 1926. Nine months' net income totaled $1,521,427, or $1.46 a share, against $5,021,146, or $5.02 a share last year.

Steel Output Above 1925.

That the steel industry of America is this year producing more steel than at any time in its history, excepting only the high record year of 1926, is the statement of a Pittsburgh steel manufacturer who makes a practice of studying the records kept by the American Iron and Steel Institute. According to this manufacturer, the industry thus far in 1927 has been producing at a rate considerably higher than commonly credited, production for the first nine months of the year having averaged 81.5 per cent of practical capacity, which is greater than for the same period in 1925 and only slightly below the same period in 1926, the record year. "During the first nine months of this year," the steel manufacturer said, "production of ingots was about 2½ per cent greater than during the first nine months of 1925, and only about 6 per cent below the same period in 1926, which was the record production year of all time. These figures show that as a matter of fact the industry is this year producing more steel than at any time in its history, excepting only the high record year of 1926. The Institute records also indicate that ingot production in 1927 has averaged 88.5 per cent of practical capacity. The ingot production in September was at the rate of 76.2 per cent of such capacity and it is believed October production will be slightly higher."

Retail Trade Volume Large.

Retail trade over the country in the first three quarters of this year exceeded the large volume of last year, the Federal Reserve Board announced. Sales of mail order houses increased more than two per cent over the corresponding period of 1926. Department store sales averaged about 1 per cent larger. Chain stores showed relatively larger increases, but this was attributed partly to an increase in the number of stores. Mail order houses and chain stores did a larger business in September than in the same month of 1926, according to the board's summary. Department store sales were in about the same volume.

STOCK PRICES STAGE BRISK RECOVERY

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP.)—Despite stiffer call money rates and the lack of any important trade news, stock prices staged another brisk recovery today under the leadership of the high-priced industrials. A few issues of which the floating supply is small, were marked up 5 to 18 points, while gains of 2 to 4 points were scattered throughout the list. Trading was only moderately heavy in volume.

Banks called about $15,000,000 in loans, presumably in preparation for the heavy first-of-the-month currency demands. The first 74 railroads to report their September earnings showed aggregate net operating income 6.53 per cent below that of the corresponding month last year.

Pools resumed activities in a number of specialties. American Machine and Foundry was run up nearly 10 points and the American Tobacco issues and Warren Bros. each advanced 6 points, all to new high records. Rossia Insurance, which broke more than 20 points Saturday, recovered about half the loss in today's trading.

General Motors continued to respond to the unusually favorable quarterly earnings report and the expectation of an extra cash dividend early next year. American Smelting, Colorado Fuel, Woolworth, Commercial Solvents and General Asphalt all recorded substantial gains.

Rails moved forward under the leadership of Atlantic Coast Line, New York Central, Chesapeake and Ohio and Delaware and Hudson, all of which sold 3 or more points above Saturday's final quotations.

Lone Star Gas Firm In Local Market

There was a moderate turnover in Lone Star during the early hours of the session on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, with the price showing fair strength as orders accumulating over the week-end were filled. One or two large blocks changed hands, but most of the trading in the issue was in odd lots ranging from 20 to 100 shares.

A steadier tone in the oil and gas stocks on the New York exchange was thought to be partly responsible for Lone Star's early firmness as several of the prominent issues on the "big board" reflected good demand and pointed upward, although spreads from Saturday's close were not conspicuously wide. It was thought sentiment in regard to the oils was helped by a statement of a Cities Service executive who called attention to the factor of percentage relationship of oil supply and demand and its bearing on crude prices. A year ago, he said, Mid-Continent crude was at a record level with supply only 3 per cent below demand, whereas at the moment, demand is only about 6 per cent below supply, with crude prices down to rock bottom levels for several years. His inference was that it may require only a moderate adjustment of supply and demand percentages to bring a distinct change in the color of the general oil situation.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP.)—The cotton market opened firm today at an advance of 16 to 19 points covering, combined with trade and commission house buying based on the relatively steady showing of Liverpool and an unfavorable view of weather conditions or prospects in the South. Temperatures did not seem as low as some of Saturday's buyers had expected, but a cold wave was reported still threatening, and comparatively little southern hedge selling was in evidence at the start. The advance, however, attracted realizing, and the market eased off 8 or 10 points from the best in early trading.

The early advance extended to 20.55c for December and 20.77c for March, making net gains of about 25 to 27 points on the active positions. There appeared to be some realizing at these figures, which checked the upturn and caused reactions of 10 or 12 points from the best, and the market later was quiet but steady, active positions ruling around 18 to 20 points net higher at midday. A private report was published placing the crop indication at 12,000,000 bales, but appeared to be without much effect on the market.

NO. 684.

AN ORDINANCE—Granting unto the Standard Plate Glass Company, its successors and assigns, the right to construct, maintain and use three concrete piers extending into Galveston Avenue 2' 11" from building line at a depth of 7' below grade of said street, for a proposed building, property of the Standard Plate Glass Company, Twenty-second Ward, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Section 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That the Standard Plate Glass Company, its successors and assigns are hereby given the right and authority at its own cost and expense, to maintain and use three concrete piers extending 2' 11" from building line into Galveston Avenue at a depth of 7' below grade of said street, building located 252' south of South Avenue, Twenty-second Ward, Pittsburgh, Pa., for the purpose of erecting a proposed building, property of the Standard Plate Glass Company.

The said grant shall be in accordance with the provisions of this Ordinance and in accordance with the plan hereto attached and identified as Accession No. B-326, Folder "B", in the files of the Division of Public Utilities, Bureau of Highways and Sewers Department of Public Works, entitled, "Proposed extension of concrete piers into Galveston Avenue for a proposed building, property of the Standard Plate Glass Company, Twenty-second Ward, Pittsburgh, Pa."

Section 2. The said company, prior to the construction of said piers, shall submit to the Director of the Department of Public Works a complete set of plans showing location and all details for the use of said piers, and the said plans shall be subject to the approval and supervision of the Director of the Department of Public Works.

Section 3. The rights and privileges herein granted shall be subject and subordinate to the rights of the City of Pittsburgh and its powers over city streets and to the ordinance of the City of Pittsburgh, relating thereto and to the provisions of any general ordinance which may hereafter be passed relating to the construction, maintenance and use of city streets and compensation for same.

Section 4. The said grantee shall bear the full cost and expense of the repaving and repair of sidewalks and street pavement damaged, repair of sewers, water lines and other surface and sub-surface structures which may be in any way damaged or disturbed by reason of the maintenance and use of the said sidewalks and street. All of the said work shall be done in the manner and at such times as the Director may order, and shall be subject to his approval and supervision.

Section 5. The rights and privileges granted by this ordinance are granted upon the express condition that the City of Pittsburgh, without liability, reserves the right to cause the removal of the said piers, upon giving six (6) months' notice through the proper officers pursuant to resolution or ordinance of Council to the said Standard Plate Glass Company, its successors and assigns, to that effect; and that the said grantee shall, when so notified, at the expiration of the said six months, forthwith remove the said piers and replace the sidewalks and street to their original condition, at its own cost and expense.

Section 6. The said grantee shall assume any liability of the City of Pittsburgh for damages to persons or property, including the street and sub-surface structures therein, by reason of the maintenance and use of the said sidewalks and street, and it is a condition of this grant that the City of Pittsburgh assumes no liability to either persons or property on account of this grant.

Section 7. The foregoing rights and privileges are granted subject to the following condition, to-wit: This ordinance shall become null and void unless within thirty (30) days after its passage and approval, the Standard Plate Glass Company shall file with the City Controller its certificate of acceptance of the provisions thereof, said certificate to be executed by the President and Secretary of the Company, with its corporate seal attached.

Section 8. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

Passed in Council October 24, 1927.
Approved October 27, 1927.

OFFICIAL—PITTSBURGH

NO. 685.

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing and directing the Mayor of the City of Pittsburgh to make, execute and deliver in the name of and for the City of Pittsburgh a contract with Citizens Passenger Railway Company, Citizens Traction Company, Fort Pitt Traction Company, Consolidated Traction Company and Pittsburgh Railways Company, providing for the temporary abandonment of street railway tracks at the corner of Fifth and Penn Avenues, Second Ward, as more fully set forth and described in said agreement, all in the City of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Section 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That the Mayor of the City of Pittsburgh be and he is hereby authorized and directed to make, execute and deliver in the name of the City of Pittsburgh and for the City of Pittsburgh the following contract with Citizens Passenger Railway Company, Citizens Traction Company, Fort Pitt Traction Company, Consolidated Traction Company and Pittsburgh Railways Company and affix thereto the corporate seal of the said City.

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

MADE and entered into this.... day of .... A. D. 1927 by and between Citizens Passenger Railway Company, Citizens Traction Company, Fort Pitt Traction Company, Consolidated Traction Company, and Pittsburgh Railways Company, all corporations of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and all hereinafter referred to collectively as "Railway Companies," parties of the first part, and the City of Pittsburgh, a municipal corporation of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, party of the second part.

WITNESSETH

WHEREAS—An Act of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, approved on the 3rd day of May, 1905, P. L. 379, authorizes the making of contracts between cities, boroughs and townships of the one part, and street passenger railway companies and motor power companies of the other part, "to secure the removal of any street railway tracks already laid, etc.," and this contract is entered into pursuant to the provisions of the said Act of Assembly; and

WHEREAS—The City of Pittsburgh did, by ordinance approved April 4, 1859, grant unto Citizens Passenger Railway Company, its successors, lessees and assigns, the right to construct single or double tracks on "Cecil Place (now Fifth Avenue) from Penn Avenue to Liberty Avenue, Second Ward, and to connect said single or double tracks with its tracks as now laid on Penn Avenue * * *;" and

WHEREAS—The Citizens Passenger Railway Company, pursuant to the above recited ordinance, constructed the street railway tracks, now in use on the streets and avenues of the City of Pittsburgh over the route hereinbefore mentioned; and

WHEREAS—The Citizens Passenger Railway Company, by agreement dated September 1, 1887, leased all of its property and franchises for a term of 99 years from August 1, 1887, to Citizens Traction Company; and

WHEREAS—The Citizens Traction Company, by agreement dated October 15, 1895, leased all of its property and franchises for a term of 950 years from November 1, 1895, to Fort Pitt Traction Company; and

WHEREAS—By virtue of an operating agreement dated May 1, 1901, between Fort Pitt Traction Company and Consolidated Traction Company, all the property and franchises of said Fort Pitt Traction Company were in the possession of and were being operated by said Consolidated Traction Company; and

WHEREAS—By virtue of an operating agreement dated December 30, 1901, between Consolidated Traction Company and Pittsburgh Railways Company, all the property and franchises of said Consolidated Traction Company are now in the possession of and being operated by said Pittsburgh Railways Company; and

Whereas—The City of Pittsburgh deems it necessary, for the public benefit and convenience, that the Railway Companies shall temporarily abandon their street railway tracks as hereinafter more fully described and set forth, and cease to use the same, and is willing to keep said portions of said streets and avenues free from street railway tracks during the term of this agreement, and the Railway Companies are willing to temporarily abandon their street railway tracks as hereinafter more fully described, on the terms and conditions hereinafter decided.

NOW THEREFORE THIS AGREEMENT WITNESSETH: That the parties hereto, in consideration of the mutual covenants and conditions herein recited, do mutually agree as follows, each binding itself, its successors and assigns, to the other, its successors and assigns.

First: The Railway Companies agree that they will temporarily abandon their double track curve at the corner of Fifth and Penn Avenues, more particularly described as follows:

Beginning in the center of the east bound track on Penn Avenue which point of beginning is situated at right angles opposite a point in the south curb line of Penn Avenue, 45 feet more or less as measured eastwardly along the said curb line of Penn Avenue from its intersection point with the east curb line of Fifth Avenue, thence southwestwardly by circular and spiral curve for a distance of 82 feet more or less to a point of connection with the north bound track on Fifth Avenue which point of connection is situated at right angles opposite a point in the east curb line of Fifth Avenue 42 feet more or less as measured southwardly along the said curb line of Fifth Avenue from its intersection point with the south curb line of Penn Avenue.

Beginning in the center of the west bound track at Penn Avenue, which point of beginning is situated at right angles opposite a point in the south curb line of Penn Avenue, 30 feet more or less as measured eastwardly along the said curb line of Penn Avenue from its intersection point with the east curb line of Fifth Avenue, thence southwestwardly by circular and spiral curve for a distance of 82 feet more or less to a point of connection with the south bound track on Fifth Avenue, which point of connection is situated at right angles opposite a point in the east curb line of Fifth Avenue 32 feet more or less as measured southwardly along the said curb line of Fifth Avenue from its intersection point with the south curb line of Penn Avenue.

and will cease to operate street cars along and over said street railway tracks for the term hereinafter mentioned.

Second. This agreement shall be in effect for 49 years from the date hereof, provided, however, that the Railway Companies, their successors and assigns, or any of them, shall have the right at any time previous to the end of the term above provided, if they deem it necessary for the improvement of the service, to reconstruct said railway tracks and appurtenances, or any part thereof, on said streets and avenue, and to connect said railway tracks, or so much thereof as may be reconstructed, with the railway tracks on the streets and avenues of the said City of Pittsburgh in the same manner as they are connected at the date hereof and shall have the same rights and privileges as they had before said tracks and appurtenances were removed, and this agreement shall thereupon terminate and be of no further effect, insofar as it affects the street railway tracks so reconstructed. Upon the expiration of this agreement or the termination of the same for any reason, the Railway Companies may reconstruct said railway tracks and appurtenances, or any part thereof, upon said streets and highways in the said City of Pittsburgh, in the same manner as they are connected at the date hereof, and with the same rights and privileges as they had before said tracks and appurtenances were removed.

In the event, however, that the entire railways system of Pittsburgh is unified and consolidated into one single ownership, and the various mortgages on said system satisfied, and a general mortgage covering the entire system executed in lieu thereof, the right and permission which the Railway Companies have to relay their track on said streets and avenues shall be terminated, subject to the provisions hereof; that the Public Service Commission may direct that the facilities and service be restored.

Third: In case of the foreclosure of any of the following mortgages:

(a) Mortgage of Citizens Traction Company to the Fidelity Title and Trust Company, Trustee, dated October 1, 1887, and recorded in the Recorder's Office of Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, in Mortgage Book Volume 415, Page 81; or

(b) Mortgage of Fort Pitt Traction Company to Pittsburgh Trust Company, Trustee, dated December 2, 1895, and recorded in the Recorder's Office aforesaid in Mortgage Book Volume 760, Page 42; or

(c) General Mortgage of the Pittsburgh Railways Company to the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, Trustee, dated December 31, 1913, and recorded in the Recorder's Office in Mortgage Book Volume 1519, Page 1; or

(d) Any mortgages given in renewal or substitution of the mortgages hereinbefore referred to, or any other mortgages whereby a lien has been secured against any of the street railway tracks and appurtenant operating system temporarily abandoned under and subject to the provisions hereof, the purchaser or purchasers, at judicial sale, of the company or companies organized by such purchaser or purchasers, shall have the right at any time thereafter to reconstruct or cause to be reconstructed the railway tracks and appurtenances so abandoned, and connect the same with the other street railway tracks in the same manner as they are connected at the date hereof, at such time as such purchaser or purchasers or such company or companies may desire, and operate street railway cars thereon.

In the event of the termination for any reason of the agreement of lease between Citizens Traction Company and Fort Pitt Traction Company, dated October 15, 1895, Citizens Traction Company shall thereupon have the right at any time thereafter to relay and reconstruct the railway tracks and appurtenant operating system so abandoned, and to connect the street railway tracks with other tracks on the streets and avenues of the City of Pittsburgh, in the same manner as they are connected at the date hereof, and to operate street railway cars thereon and thereover.

Fourth: The City of Pittsburgh covenants and agrees that it will permit such temporary abandonment of street railway tracks on the route hereinbefore described, and during the continuance of this agreement municipal consent shall not be granted to any other company or individual to use or occupy the portion of the said streets and avenues covered by said tracks for street railway purposes, in accordance with the provisions of said Act of Assembly.

Fifth: The Railway Companies, upon the execution of this agreement, shall, at their own cost and expense, remove the rails, ties and operating appurtenances on the route hereinbefore more particularly described, and replace the paving within the street railway area in the same condition as it is at the present time, and thereafter the Railway Companies shall be relieved of all liability to pave, repave, furnish, keep clean and repair the aforesaid portions of said streets and highways over which the street railway tracks are temporarily removed, until such time as the said railway tracks may be duly reconstructed and used.

All of the provisions of this agreement shall be subject to the provisions of the General Ordinance of the City of Pittsburgh approved February 25, 1890, except as otherwise provided.

In Witness Whereof, the Citizens Passenger Railway Company has caused its corporate seal to be hereunto affixed, attested by its Secretary or an Assistant Secretary, and this contract to be signed by its President or one of its Vice Presidents; Citizens Traction Company has caused its corporate seal to be hereunto affixed, attested by its Secretary or Assistant Secretary, and this contract to be signed by its President or one of its Vice Presidents; Fort Pitt Traction Company has caused its corporate seal to be hereunto affixed, attested by his Secretary or an Assistant Secretary, and this contract to be signed by its President or one of its Vice Presidents; Consolidated Traction Company has caused its corporate seal to be hereunto affixed, attested by its Secretary or an Assistant Secretary, and this contract to be signed by its President or one of its Vice Presidents; and Pittsburgh Railways Company has caused its corporate seal to be hereunto affixed, attested by its Secretary or an Assistant Secretary, and this contract to be signed by its President or one of its Vice President; and this contract is signed and executed in the name of the City of Pittsburgh and for the City of Pittsburgh by its Mayor, and the seal of the said City is by the Mayor hereto affixed, he having been duly authorized so to do by ordinance of Council of said City, all done the day and year first above written.

NO. 686.

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing and directing the Mayor of the City of Pittsburgh to make, execute and deliver in the name of and for the City of Pittsburgh a contract with The Suburban Rapid Transit Street Railway Company, Consolidated Traction Company and Pittsburgh Railways Company, providing for the temporary abandonment of street railway tracks on Muriel Street and Seventeenth Street, between the points as more fully set forth and described in said agreement, all in the City of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Section 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That the Mayor of the City of Pittsburgh be and he is hereby authorized and directed to make, execute and deliver in the name of the City of Pittsburgh and for the City of Pittsburgh the following contract with The Suburban Rapid Transit Street Railway Company, Consolidated Traction Company and Pittsburgh Railways Company and affix thereto the corporate seal of said city.

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

Made and entered into this........ day of .... A. D. 1927, by and between The Suburban Rapid Transit Street Railway Company, Consolidated Traction Company and Pittsburgh Railways Company, all corporations of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, hereinafter referred to collectively as "Railway Companies" parties of the first part, and City of Pittsburgh, a municipal corporation of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, party of the second part.

WITNESSETH:

Whereas—The Act of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, approved on the third day of May, 1905, P. L. 379, authorizes the making of contracts between cities, boroughs and townships of the one part, and street passenger railway companies and motor companies of the other part "to secure the removal of any street railway tracks already laid, etc.," and this contract is entered into pursuant to the provisions of the said Act of Assembly; and

Whereas—The City of Pittsburgh did by ordinance approved the 16th day of March, 1893, grant unto The Suburban Rapid Transit Street Railway Company, its successors, lessees and assigns, the right to enter upon, use and occupy with single or double tracks, inter alia, the following streets:

" * * * thence along said Jane Street west to South Seventeenth Street; thence along South Seventeenth Street to Muriel Street; thence along Muriel Street west to South Tenth Street, * * * all in the Seventeenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh; and

Whereas—The Suburban Rapid Transit Street Railway Company, pursuant to the above recited ordinances, constructed the street railway tracks now in use on the streets and avenues of the City of Pittsburgh hereinbefore mentioned; and

Whereas—The Suburban Rapid Transit Street Railway Company was formed by the consolidation and merger of the Suburban Rapid Transit Street Railway Company and the South Twenty-second Street Railway Company, under agreement dated July 15, 1893, and under date of January 1, 1902, all the property and franchises of The Suburban Rapid Transit Street Railways Company were leased to Consolidated Traction Company for a term of 900 years, and by virtue of an operating agreement dated December 30, 1901, Consolidated Traction Company is operated by the Pittsburgh Railways Company; and

Whereas—The City of Pittsburgh deems it necessary for the public convenience that the Railway Companies shall temporarily abandon their street railway tracks located on the streets and avenues in the Seventeenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, as hereinafter more fully described and set forth, and cease to use the same, and is willing to keep said portions of said streets free from street railway tracks during the term of this agreement, and the Railway Companies are willing to temporarily abandon the street railway tracks on said portions of said streets hereinafter more fully described, on the terms and conditions hereinafter recited.

NOW, THEREFORE, THIS AGREEMENT WITNESSETH: That the parties hereto in consideration of the mutual covenants and conditions herein recited, do mutually agree as follows, each binding itself, its successors and assigns, to the other, its successors and assigns:

First: The Railway Companies agree that they will temporarily abandon the street railway tracks on the following streets and highways:

"Beginning at the present terminus of the track on Muriel Street about 23.9 feet as measured eastwardly from the east property line of 15th Street, thence by single track eastwardly along Muriel Street 235.7 feet to a point, thence curving to the south to and onto So. 17th Street 95.1 feet, thence southwardly along 17th Street by single track 67 feet more or less to a point opposite the north property line of Sidney Street extended" and will cease to operate street cars along or over said tracks, or any of them, for the term hereinafter mentioned:

Second: This agreement shall be in effect for 49 years from the date hereof provided, however, that the Railway Companies, their successors or assigns, or any of them, shall have the right at any time previous to the end of the term above provided, if they deem it necessary for the improvement of the service to reconstruct said railway tracks and appurtenances, or any part thereof, on said streets and to connect said railway tracks on the street and avenues of the said City in the same manner as they are connected at the date hereof, and shall have the same rights and privileges as they had before said track and appurtenances were removed, and this agreement shall thereupon terminate, and be of no further effect insofar as it relates to all or any portion of said railway tracks reconstructed. Upon the expiration of the term of this agreement and the termination of the same for any reason, the Railway Companies may reconstruct said railway tracks or appurtenances upon said street in the said City in the same manner as they are connected at the date hereof, and with the same rights and privileges as they had before said tracks and appurtenances were removed.

In the event, however, that the entire railway system of Pittsburgh is unified and consolidated into one single ownership, and the various mortgages on said system satisfied, and a general mortgage covering the entire system executed in lieu thereof, the right and permission which the Railway Companies have to relay their tracks on said streets shall be terminated, subject to the provisions thereof that the Public Service Commission may direct that the facilities and service be restored.

Third: In case of a foreclosure of any of the following mortgages:

(a). Mortgage of The Suburban Rapid Transit Street Railway Company to The Colonial Trust Company, Trustee, dated September 1, 1913, and recorded in the Recorder's Office of Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, in Mortgage Book, Volume 1498, page 205; or

(b). General Mortgage of the Pittsburgh Railways Company to the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, Trustee, dated March 31, 1913, and recorded in the Recorder's Office aforesaid in Mortgage Book Volume 1519, page 1; or

(c). Any Mortgages given in renewal or substitution of the mortgages hereinbefore referred to the purchaser or purchasers at judicial sale, or the Company or Companies organized by such purchaser or purchasers, shall have the right at any time to reconstruct or cause to be reconstructed the railway tracks and appurtenances so abandoned and connect same with other street railway tracks on the streets and avenues of the said City in the same manner as they are connected at the date hereof at such times as such purchaser or purchasers of such Company or Companies may desire to operate street railway cars thereon.

Fourth: The City of Pittsburgh covenants and agrees that it will permit such temporary abandonment of street railway tracks on the streets and highways hereinbefore referred to, and during the continuance of this agreement, municipal consent shall not be granted to any other Company or individual to use or occupy the portions of said streets covered by said tracks for street railway purposes in accordance with provisions of said Act of Assembly.

Fifth: The Railway Companies, upon the execution of this agreement, at their own cost and expense, shall remove the rails upon the route hereinbefore more particularly described, restore the area of paving so disturbed in such manner as to leave it in proper form for resurfacing by the City of Pittsburgh, and pay to the City of Pittsburgh the estimated cost, agreed upon by the Department of Public Works of the City of Pittsburgh and the Superintendent of Way of the Railway Companies for the removal of the ties or any remaining portion of the track construction not removed, and thereafter the Railway Companies shall be relieved of all liability to pave, repave, furnish, keep clean and repair the aforesaid portions of said streets and avenues from which the street railway tracks are temporarily removed, until such time as the railway tracks may be duly reconstructed and used.

All of the provisions of this agreement shall be subject to the provisions of the General Ordinance of the City of Pittsburgh, approved February 25, 1890, except as otherwise provided herein.

This agreement shall not go into effect until approved by the Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and all parties hereto agree that the Public Service Commission may at any time order the track relaid and service thereover resumed.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, The Suburban Rapid Transit Street Railway Company has caused its corporate seal to be hereunto affixed, attested by its Secretary or Assistant Secretary, and this contract to be signed by its President or Vice President; Consolidated Traction Company has caused its corporate seal to be hereunto affixed, attested by its Secretary or Assistant Secretary, and this contract to be signed by its President or Vice President; Pittsburgh Railways Company has caused its corporate seal to be hereunto affixed, attested by its Secretary or Assistant Secretary, and this contract to be signed by its President or Vice President; and this contract is signed and executed in the name of the City of Pittsburgh and for the City of Pittsburgh by its Mayor and the seal of said City is by the Mayor hereto affixed, he having been duly authorized so to do by ordinance of Council of said City all done the day and year aforesaid.

NO. 687.

AN ORDINANCE—Granting unto the Crucible Steel Company of America, their successors and assigns, for the right to construct, maintain and use standard and narrow gage tracks at grade on 31st street from Smallman street to Baltimore and Ohio Railroad right-of-way, for the purpose of conveying materials, etc., on narrow gage track from plant to plant and standard gage track from Baltimore and Ohio Railroad track along the southern side of the Allegheny River to the various plants of the Crucible Steel Company of America, 6th Ward, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Section 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That the Crucible Steel Company of America, their successors and assigns, be and they are hereby given the right and authority at their own cost and expense to construct, maintain and use standard and narrow gage tracks on 31st street at grade. Narrow gage tracks beginning at a point located on the north building line of Smallman street and the west 15-foot line of 31st street parallel to said street line; thence northwardly for a distance of 46 feet to a point of switch, turnout in a southwestern direction to the property of the Crucible Steel Company of America; thence northwardly from point of switch for a distance of 118 feet to a point of switch, turnout in a northeast direction to said property; thence northwardly from a point of switch for a distance of 17 feet to a point of switch, turnout in a northwest direction to said property; thence northwardly for a distance of 38 feet to a point of switch, turnout in southeast direction to said property; thence northwardly from a point of switch for a distance of 151.75 feet to a point of switch, turnout in a southeast direction to said property; thence northwardly from point of switch for a distance of 47.75 feet to a point of switch, turnout in northeast direction to Putney way 6.5 feet north of the south building line of said way; thence northwardly from a point of switch on 31st street for a distance of 34 feet to point of switch, turnout in northwest direction to said property; thence northwardly from point of switch a distance of 82.5 feet, turnout in northwest direction to said property; thence northwardly from point of switch for a distance of 220 feet to a point of curve, end of straight track, curve in a northwesterly direction to said property line and a track crossing 31st street located at a point 15.75 feet from the north line of Spruce way.

Standard gage track, beginning at the eastern property line of the Crucible Steel Company of America located 34.75 feet from north building line of Railroad street, thence by curve in a northwest direction, a distance of 38.5 feet to point of tangent located on the east 24-foot line of 31st street; thence from point of tangent parallel to said street line for a distance of 187.41 feet to a point of switch, turnout in a northeast direction to said property; thence in a northern direction from point of switch for a distance of 136 feet end of straight track and a standard gage curved track crossing 31st street, located 97.85 feet from said end of straight track, beginning on the eastern property line of the Crucible Steel Company of America, crossing said 31st street for a distance of 67.74 feet for the purpose of conveying materials, etc., on narrow gage track from plant to plant and standard gage track from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks along the southern side of the Allegheny River to the various plants of the Crucible Steel Company of America, 6th Ward, Pittsburgh, Pa.

THE SAID TRACKS shall be constructed in accordance with the provisions of this Ordinance and in accordance with the plans hereto attached and identified as Accession No. B-321, Folder "B," in the files of the Division of Public Utilities, Bureau of Highways and Sewers, Department of Public Works, entitled, "Proposed switch tracks and tournouts on and across 31st street from Smallman street to Baltimore and Ohio Railroad right-of-way for the Crucible Steel Company of America, 6th Ward, Pittsburgh, Pa."

Section 2. The said company, prior to the beginning of construction of tracks, shall submit to the Director of the Department of Public Works of the City of Pittsburgh a complete set of plans showing location, paving, repaving, sewering and all details for the construction of said tracks and the said plans and the construction of tracks shall be subject to the approval and supervision of the Director of the Department of Public Works.

Section 3. The rights and privileges herein granted shall be subject and subordinate to the rights of the City of Pittsburgh and its powers over city streets, and to the Ordinances of the City of Pittsburgh relating thereto and to the provisions of any general ordinance which may hereafter be passed relating to the construction, maintenance and use of tracks on city streets and compensation for same.

Section 4. The said grantee shall bear the full cost and expense of the repaving and repair of the street pavement damaged, repair of sewers, water lines and other surface and sub-surface structures which may be in any way damaged or disturbed by reason of the construction, maintenance and use of said tracks. All of the said work, including the repaving of the street damaged, shall be done in the manner and at such times as the Director may order, and shall be subject to his approval and supervision.

Section 5. The rights and privileges granted by this Ordinance are granted upon the express condition that the City of Pittsburgh, without liability, reserves the right to cause the removal of said tracks upon giving six (6) months' notice through the proper officers pursuant to Resolution or Ordinance of Council to the said Crucible Steel Company of America, their successors and assigns, to that effect; and that the said grantee shall, when so notified, at the expiration of the said six months, in accordance with the provisions of this Ordinance, forthwith remove the said tracks and replace the street to its original condition, at its own cost and expense.

Section 6. The said grantee shall assume any liability of the City of Pittsburgh for damages to persons or property, including the streets and sub-surface structures therein, by reason of the construction, maintenance and use of the said streets, and it is a condition of this grant that the City of Pittsburgh assumes no liability to either persons or property on account of this grant.

Section 7. The foregoing rights and privileges are granted subject to the following condition, to-wit: This Ordinance shall become null and void unless within thirty (30) days after its passage and approval the Crucible Steel Company of America shall file with the City Controller their certificate of acceptance of the provisions thereof, said certificate to be executed by the President and Secretary of the company, with its corporate seal attached.

Section 8. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

HUNTERS SWARM INTO CENTER

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Oct. 31.—Center county's population almost doubled overnight. Due to the opening of the hunting season tomorrow, hundreds of hunting camps were opened here Sunday and today, thousands coming into the mountains by auto yesterday. While most camps were established deep in the mountains, small game is reported seeking the open, due to the food scarcity in the woods. Squirrel and pheasant have been found more plentiful in open spaces.

Wild turkey have been reported on Muncy Mountain and Tussey Mountain. Rabbits are plentiful, but the warm weather is against good hunting.

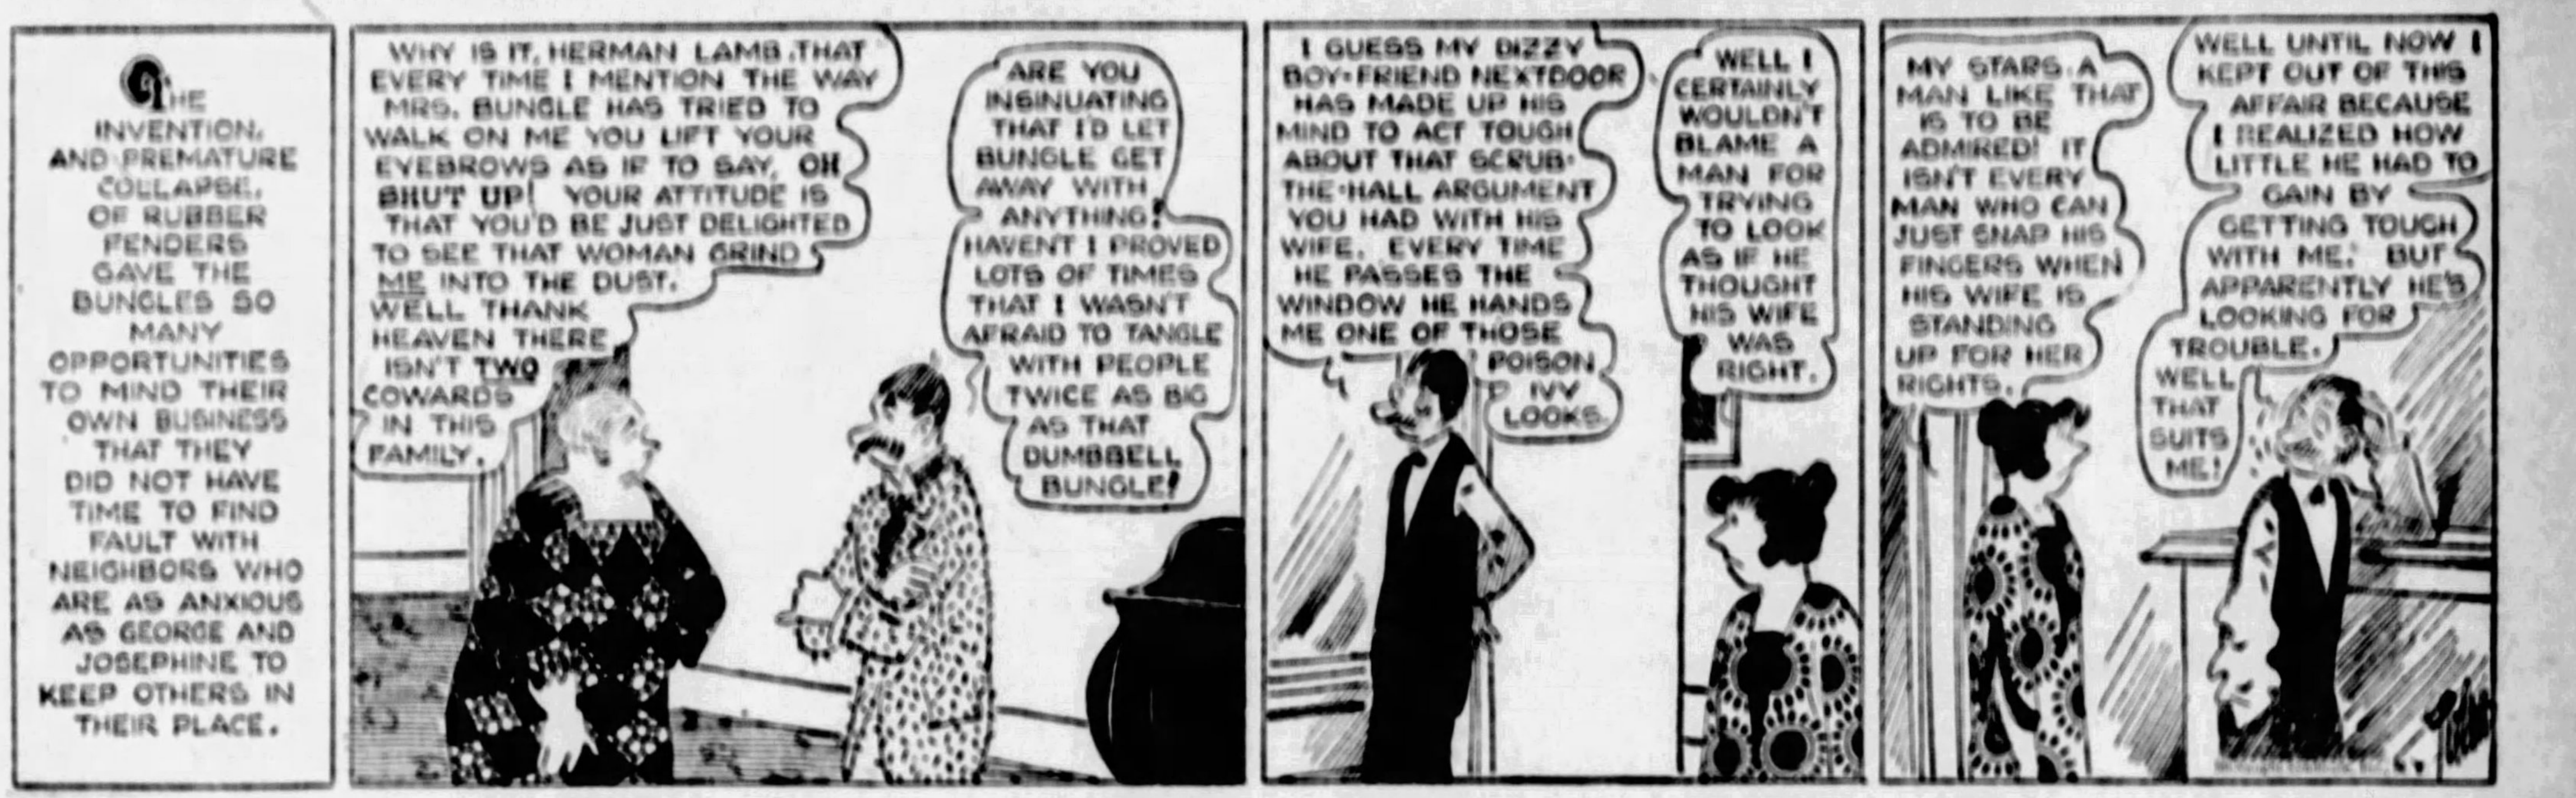
THE BUNGLE FAMILY . . . . Trouble Is Welcome



THE INVENTION, AND PREMATURE COLLAPSE, OF RUBBER FENDERS GAVE THE BUNGLES SO MANY OPPORTUNITIES TO MIND THEIR OWN BUSINESS THAT THEY DID NOT HAVE TIME TO FIND FAULT WITH NEIGHBORS WHO ARE AS ANXIOUS AS GEORGE AND JOSEPHINE TO KEEP OTHERS IN THEIR PLACE.
WHY IS IT, HERMAN LAMB, THAT EVERY TIME I MENTION THE WAY MRS. BUNGLE HAS TRIED TO WALK ON ME YOU LIFT YOUR EYEBROWS AS IF TO SAY, OH SHUT UP! YOUR ATTITUDE IS THAT YOU'D BE JUST DELIGHTED TO SEE THAT WOMAN GRIND ME INTO THE DUST. WELL THANK HEAVEN THERE ISN'T TWO COWARDS IN THIS FAMILY.
ARE YOU INSINUATING THAT I'D LET BUNGLE GET AWAY WITH ANYTHING! HAVEN'T I PROVED LOTS OF TIMES THAT I WASN'T AFRAID TO TANGLE WITH PEOPLE TWICE AS BIG AS THAT DUMBBELL BUNGLE!
I GUESS MY DIZZY BOY-FRIEND NEXTDOOR HAS MADE UP HIS MIND TO ACT TOUGH ABOUT THAT SCRUB-THE-HALL ARGUMENT YOU HAD WITH HIS WIFE. EVERY TIME HE PASSES THE WINDOW HE HANDS ME ONE OF THOSE POISON IVY LOOKS.
WELL I CERTAINLY WOULDN'T BLAME A MAN FOR TRYING TO LOOK AS IF HE THOUGHT HIS WIFE WAS RIGHT.
MY STARS, A MAN LIKE THAT IS TO BE ADMIRED! IT ISN'T EVERY MAN WHO CAN JUST SNAP HIS FINGERS WHEN HIS WIFE IS STANDING UP FOR HER RIGHTS.
WELL UNTIL NOW I KEPT OUT OF THIS AFFAIR BECAUSE I REALIZED HOW LITTLE HE HAD TO GAIN BY GETTING TOUGH WITH ME, BUT APPARENTLY HE'S LOOKING FOR TROUBLE.
WELL THAT SUITS ME!

BUGS BAER
Says

ALTHOUGH our cities have crowded Halloween off the map, it is still on the calendar. And there is no reason why we shouldn't celebrate it with reservations.

There isn't a chance of getting the contented cow up into the steeple of the village church. But you might chase a traffic cop's horse into the discontented subway.

Bobbing for apples in a tub of water has lost its kick since we started bobbing for juniper berries in a bathtub of gin.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

But looking down the well in the light of the full moon is still O. K. When you do this you are supposed to see the reflection of your sweetheart's face in the water. There are no more wells left in the city limits, but you can substitute the dumbwaiter shaft.

If a load of groceries and tomato cans fall on your head your wish will be fulfilled. For it's six, two and even it will be your sweetie who cuts the rope.

Putting the tick-tack on the old maid's parlor window is going to be difficult, for she now lives on the sixty-seventh floor, deeluxe apartments. The tick-tack consisted of a piece of chewing gum, a long string and a nail. When operated properly it would annoy spinsters, elephants or anybody else who had ears.

Taking the gate off the deacon's fence is almost as hopeless as trying to steal a sign containing fifty thousand electric lights.

You would have a fat time trying to pop corn or roast chestnuts over the steam radiator on the fiftieth floor.

You can still ring doorbells and run. But the probability is that you will celebrate Halloween by ringing the elevator bell and walking.

"You Said It, Marceline!"
By MARCELINE d'ALROY

ON "UNSUCCESSFUL QUESTS"

AT a CERTAIN age
In a MAN'S life
There often SEEMS to come
A GREAT longing for—ADVENTURE,
So, pulling on his
GOLOSHES and buttoning his
TOPCOAT, he sets OUT.
At a CERTAIN age in
A WOMAN'S life
There OFTEN comes an
INEXPRESSIBLE longing
For—LOVE. So, covering
Her NERVOUSNESS with Face powder, often BADLY
APPLIED, she sets out.
If MIDDLE-AGED men could See in a MATTER-OF-FACT
WOMAN, or vice-versa,
The REALIZATION of Their QUEST,
ALL might be well,
But they RARELY DO,
EITHER of them,
For MEN seek to adventure
With BEAUTY, and WOMEN
Want ROMANCE plus
VIRILITY. So, FINALLY,
The MAN regretfully takes off
His GOLOSHES and the WOMAN her FACE POWDER, and the WORLD goes on—
AS USUAL.

WHY PITTSBURGH IS GREAT
Its People's Civic Spirit Is Constantly Growing

THE SUN-TELEGRAPH

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER

Boroughs Will Join Us Sometime, Why Not Now?

A petition of Mt. Oliver citizens for a special election on the question of annexation to Pittsburgh was signed by 30 per cent of the voters. The law provides that such a question may be submitted on the petition of only five per cent. Hence, it is evident pro-annexationists not only are militant, but numerous.

Mt. Oliver is a unique muncipality. It is a borough entirely surrounded by the city of Pittsburgh. Its neighboring communities, Knoxville and Carrick, have been part of the city long enough to cause many residents of Mt. Oliver to feel they have become isolated in the midst of progress. They want to "belong."

Pittsburgh needs Mt. Oliver. It needs all of the surrounding boroughs, which really are part of the city. Most of their residents are tied to the city by the bonds of employment and business. Some day they will be part of it. "Eventually, why not now?" Especially in the case of Mt. Oliver.

Criminal—or Mother?

Should a woman, the mother of eleven children, be sent to prison for life?

No piece of news in the papers is causing more talk in homes everywhere than the Detroit case of Mrs. Helen Brennan, about to become a mother for the twelfth time in her 32 years, and who faces a life term in jail under the Michigan habitual criminal statute.

The police declare that Mrs. Brennan, arrested for the theft of $38, is notorious all over the country as a pickpocket and bail jumper, that she is wanted in a dozen cities. Her record, it is contended, makes her liable to the extreme penalty as an habitual offender.

Mrs. Brennan, who, in dread of the life sentence which confronts her, tried to die by her own hand, insists she has been unjustly accused at times, though not in the present instance.

"I can't help being a thief," she said. "I don't know what comes over me each time I have a baby. The urge came over me to steal, and, hardly knowing what I was doing, I'd go out and steal."

Mothers will have deep sympathy for this woman, sympathy drawn from their own experience. They know that women are often subject to all sorts of strange impulses prior to childbirth. Allowances are made for them; society universally extends to motherhood the greatest respect and consideration.

Here is a woman who has given the world eleven lives, yet under due process of law may pass the rest of her years in jail.

Judge Mancuso says: "This case, in my mind, is one in which medical treatment would be more effective than any punitive measures."

What do you think? If you were on a jury whose verdict might condemn this mother to a lifetime behind the bars, what would you do?

Would you consider her approaching motherhood extenuation for her crime? Would you feel that this was a real case for mental study and for the application of every effort to correct this mother's shortcomings and restore her to a life of usefulness?

You will hear a great deal of discussion about Mrs. Brennan. It is a case that touches the very springs of human conduct and is well worth discussing.

Think about this mother whom the law, before which all are equal, says has forfeited her right to freedom. Should she have only justice, or mercy that will weigh her motherhood against her wrongdoing?

Opportunity

When the Civil War began, Ulysses S. Grant was clerking in his father's store in Galena, Ill., a broken, disappointed man of almost 40.

The Young West Pointer had won himself a reputation in the Mexican War as a gallant, resourceful soldier, and a captaincy. But life in army posts irked Grant; his drinking habits got him into hot water; he resigned his commission, and for six years dabbled in farming and real estate in St. Louis, going steadily downhill until he was selling harness for a wage of $15 a week.

Then—OPPORTUNITY! Grant volunteered on the call to arms. Colonel, major-general, lieutenant-general, supreme commander of the Union forces, victor in a tremendous conflict, President of the United States—that was the road traveled by the Illinois store clerk.

Admitted that if there had been no Civil War Grant would probably have remained a man defeated by life, instead of a national hero.

That isn't the point. The opportunity did come—as opportunity comes to almost everybody—and when it came Grant seized it. More important, he had the capacity to use it.

Some people will try to tell you that success is just luck. They will even point to Grant as an example. But it wasn't luck that carried him through one bitterly fought campaign after another to triumph. It was indomitable determination and energy, imagination and soldier-craft. He became a great general because he had the stuff.

There are failures who never had any luck, no doubt; such unfortunates exist, though they are few. There are other failures who didn't take their eyes off their feet long enough to sight opportunity in the offing. There are still others who were afraid to take a chance, or couldn't afford to—plenty of those. And there are yet others who heeded when opportunity called, then slid back down grade for the reason that they lacked the backbone or talent or training needed to make good.

Occasions make men, perhaps, as the occasion of the Civil War made Grant. But the men must exist or the occasion cannot lift them up, and they must have the ability to cope with it, or what good will it do them?

Moreover, as you can see demonstrated often, men also make occasions; manufacture their own opportunities out of foresight and industry and tenacity.

Anybody can have that kind of an opportunity if he really wants it.

Garrett P Serviss Says:

Mercury's Transit

ON the tenth of November there will be a transit of the planet Mercury across the face of the sun. Although the phenomenon will not be visible from the American continents, it is a subject of interest to all the world, for, among other things, it has an important connection with the Einstein theory, since a certain irregularity in its orbital motion is alleged to accord with the postulates of that theory. When the planet is seen projected as a black dot against the sun, an evident opportunity is given to ascertain its exact place, and so measure any irregularity in its motion.

It has long been known that the perihelion point in the orbit of Mercury, i. e., the point where it approaches nearest to the sun on each round, is very slowly advancing. This advance can be measured by observations made when the planet is in transit. The important thing is to determine the exact rate and other circumstances of the advance. Einstein claims that these accord with the requirements of his theory, and not with that of Newton. But this claim is disputed by some astronomers. Possibly some light upon the question will be derived from the coming transit.

The transit will be visible in part from the Pacific ocean, particularly from Hawaii, and the whole transit from Australia.

Mercury, when in transit, appears as a black dot on the sun, too small to be visible to the naked eye. Yet its actual diameter exceeds 3,000 miles. Its distance from the earth at the time of the transit is about 62,600,000 miles, and from the sun about 29,400,000 miles. Thus, although it appears like a patch on the sun's face, yet it is really suspended in its orbit in space about two-thirds of the way from the earth to the sun. As it travels much faster than the earth, it moves across the sun in the same direction in which the earth travels, at a rate depending upon the difference between the speeds of the two planets.

Mercury has a very eccentric orbit, for while its mean distance from the sun is about 36,000,000 miles, it goes away to a distance of 43,350,000 miles when in aphelion, and approaches to 28,550,000 miles at perihelion. This causes it to experience a temperature two-and-a-quarter times as great at perihelion as at aphelion, and this great change occurs within a period of about six weeks. Being so near the sun, the average temperature on Mercury is almost seven times as great as upon the earth. Having a force of gravity at its surface only about a quarter as great as the earth, its atmosphere is very rare, if indeed it has any at all.

In view of these facts it is not surprising that astronomical observations show no signs of life on Mercury, while its surface appears to be as barren as that of the moon.

Another curious fact about Mercury is that it appears to make only one turn on its axis in each revolution around the sun.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Within Your Income

HAVE you assumed more obligations than you can see your way clear to meet?

Instead of facing conditions brought about by yourself you are blaming other members of your family for what they spend and also your employer for not paying you more wages.

You object to the cost of living and will not admit that your predicament comes not so much from the rise in living costs as from the high cost of luxuries which you won't deny yourself.

If you were willing to make sacrifices and regulate your expenses to the amount that good business sense would indicate, you would not be so worried over financial demands you can't meet.

Your vanity has overrun your judgment.

Your unchecked desire to enjoy comforts and conveniences beyond what your income will permit has been your undoing.

The sooner you get down to the plane which permits you to meet your obligations and allows you to save the sooner you will get real comfort out of life.

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and came Ben Hampton and his lady and gave me a rare old English thorn cane, which I prize highly, being the thirty-seventh a collection costing me for the most part more than I can affor

New York has had but one World's Fair. This was held in what is now Bryant Park in 1856. It was opened by Franklin Pierce, then President of the U. S., and did not cause much of a stir.

Two major press associations have ordered thumbs-down on trumped-up news stories about movie celebrities. They warn producers faked kidnapings, desert disappearances, toothless lions attacking blondes with spit curls and such will not be tolerated. Four stories of the past year reached first pages and proved silly canards. The public sickened of these didoes long ago—now the news gathering associations have issued a ukase that is spraying wrinkles on the brows of movie press agents who go in for Page One splashes.

Silly exploitation stories are not confined to movie players. The legitimate stage during the past few weeks has had its young actress who wears a glass hat to preserve her hair; a comedian whose dog was outfitted with false teeth; a toe dancer who hires a private manicure artist for her tootsies, and a leading lady who eats cavair only for breakfast. As an ex-exploiter, guilty of many of these ballyhoos, I have never yet seen one that helped a player along in the profession. As a rule, they create a cheap publicity impression in the minds of the public. Exploitation of a sensational sort, it seems, is only helpful for street carnival shows and circuses. The artist does not need them.

Don't Be Afraid

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The campaign against Fear is the greatest movement of the race. Fear is not bred of ignorance. It is the child of half knowledge. "A little knowledge is a dangerous thing." What we don't know at all we are not afraid of; as a sheep is happy, ignorant of the slaughter-house.

What we half-know scares us. Men used to be afraid of electricity; seeing it only in lightning; now they know it, and the motorman whistles as he regulates the power of ten thunderstorms.

All along, humanity has been walking up to bugaboos and finding out they were absurd.

Strange! Men have thought fear helped morality. They tortured imprisoned, killed, to cure criminals. They beat children. They burned heretics. Gradually they saw their folly. They are learning that crime is essentially fear, the fear of the consequences of doing right, and that you cannot put out fire with kerosene; that is, you cannot cure the fear of doing right by the fear of punishment.

The Romans built a temple to Fear. Fear has played a malign part in the history of religion. The most amazing creation of the human imagination is hell.

There are still those who are afraid to walk under a ladder, to carry a spade through the house, and to start on a journey on a Friday.

Business once was based on fear. Men thought the only way to get work done was by slaves, and by keeping them frightened. The capitalist and laborer still appeal to fear. But little by little the futility of it all is appearing.

Employers and employed are learning to appeal to the free co-operation of each other.

When men half-knew gods they trembled at them. Timor fecit deos —"fear made the gods." The race today fears and dreads God less because we are nearer Him than in the past.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Hurry

OH, it's hurry, hurry, hurry, and it's flurry, flurry, flurry, keeping moving with the hours flying past; rushing onward every season, heedless of all rhyme or reason, with no aim in view except just moving fast. All this hurry makes men blunder; but they never pause to wonder if they couldn't make more speed by taking time; not one snarl do they untangle of life's web, but rush and wrangle, still complaining that it's an uphill climb. In their folly and their blindness they've no time for common kindness, and no care for all love's tender little ways; ever going faster, faster, speed becomes their final master and the ruin of their reckless, rushing days. Oh, it' more of hurry, hurry, more of wea ness and worry, till the mass of m forget life's real intent; they fo true use and duty and lose happi and beauty that are found by sim souls who seek content.

THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized and Endorsed by Mr. Edison)

EDISON has never been seriously injured though he has had several narrow escapes. One time exploding chloride of sulphur flew into his eyes. He ran to a hydrant and let the water run directly into them. For two weeks he could not see, but the mishap had no permanent effect on his sight.

ON another occasion he was experimenting with a device, part of which was a steel rod an inch in diameter and four feet long. Suddenly the rod flew into the air. Coming down, it missed Edison's nose by a hair and plunged through a two-inch plank. Only Edison's agility saved him from a serious accident.

MIMICRY is one of the great inventor's pet diversions. One cold winter morning he entered his office imitating a threadbare "dandy" of the time. With an imaginary cane under his arm and drawing on an imaginary pair of tattered gloves, he sauntered across the floor, a self-satisfied smirk on his face.

A FAVORITE bit of make-believe, out of which Edison gets a real "kick," is to enter his own legal department, and, with great humility, apply for a job as an inventor. At other times he may greet a dignified individual by the name of James with "Hully gee, Chimmy, when did youse blow in?" (Continued tomorrow.)
